DESCUTES NATIONAL FOREST MAY BE CHANGED

Herald Washington Bureau WASHINGTON, July 18.—Congressman Sinnott has introduced a bill changing the boundaries of the Deschutes national forest which has been agreed to by the forest service of the United States.

This bill will include several thousand acres of the deforested land on the edges of this national reservation and will permit the forest service to carry on the work of reforestation and remove the fringe of cut-over lands which are unsightly and which could not be redeemed by private enterprise.

Provisions of Bill

The bill provides among other things, "That the secretary of the interior be, and hereby is, authorized to accept on behalf of the United States title to any lands in private ownership within or within five miles of the exterior boundaries of the Deschutes national forest which, in the opinion of secretary of agriculture, are chiefly valuable for national forest purposes, and, in exchange therefore, may issue patent for an equal value of national forest land, or the secretary of agriculture may permit the grantor to cut and remove an equal value of timber from any na-

BLIND MAN TO TEACH U. OF O.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, July 18.—A blind instructor will teach at the University of Oregon next year, it has been announced, Thomas D. Cutsforth, of Riddle, Oregon, and an alumnus of the University, will be graduate assistant in the department of psychology.

In spite of total blindness, he won a reputation for scholarship while a student at the University and contributed in an important way to the psychology of the blind. Upon graduation he became a teacher in the high school at Riddle, Oregon. In addition to teaching ancient, medieval and modern, English and American history, civics, biology with laboratory, and general science with laboratory, he introduced wrestling into the high school and coached it. He later introduced soccer and coached it also. He is probably the only blind athletic coach in the state.

With unseeing eyes but with a wide capacity for enjoyment he spends his summer vacations fishing, hunting and hiking. He says he has taken in nearly everything in Southern Oregon. In his ramble through the mountains he has picked up an interesting collection of fossil marine animals for use in his general science and biology classes.

Mr. Cutsforth will take up his duties at the University of Oregon at the beginning of the fall term, the 24th of September.

Tourists Pouring Into State; Many Visit Crater Lake

(Portland Oregonian)

"Crater Lake will have more visitors this season than ever before in its history," announces W. J. Weaver, manager of the Umpqua hotel at Roseburg. "The road is now open all the way, the last of the snow in the road having been removed a week ago. There is still snow around the rim, however. The hotel is giving good service and good meals to everyone who visits the place is pleased. I am surprised at the way the tourists are scooting off from the Pacific highway to take the trip to the lake. Apparently most of the tourists traffic on the highway is going to Crater lake for a day or two, and the view of the lake is, of course, well worth while, for there is nothing like the lake in the world. Oregon is not cashing in on all the advertising it has been doing to attract tourists. There is a steady procession of motorists on the Pacific highway and, of course, they all pass through Roseburg. These tourists come from all parts of the nation. A few nights ago, with the exception of ten traveling men, every room in our hotel was filled with tourists—two to the room. The auto camp ground at Roseburg is also well patronized, for there are scores of people who have to live in the open on account of health, and others camp out for the experience. Oregon people are scarcely realizing the extent of the tourist traffic now flowing through the state, for it is assuming astonishing proportions. So many tourists ask Mr. Weaver about Oregon resorts that he is now making
