Country Doctors Are In Demand

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., July 18.—A pressing demand for physicians who will live and practice in rural communities is the most important problem confronting West Virginia, according to the authorities of the school of medicine of the University of West Virginia here.

Summerville, the county seat of Nicholas county, does not have a doctor, and Clay county has only one to look after the people living in its 332 square miles. In some of the other counties, many people live from 15 to 20 miles from the nearest physician, and in some of the mountain counties it has been found almost impossible to get doctors to make visits into the country districts. On the other hand, the cities of the state are very well supplied with medical men, Charleston, the capital, with a population of 39,608, having 102.

"It is not always true that the city or town doctor makes more money than the country doctor," says a statement by Dean Simpson of the School of Medicine. "Country people do not object to paying good fees for medical attention. They are usually glad to get it at any price."

Circuit Court Ends Criminal Docket

All criminals who were indicted at the last session of the grand jury have had trials in the circuit court and the ones whose trials are set for hearing at the next session, are out on bail, according to the report of the clerk of the circuit court.

The docket will have civil cases from now on until the convening of the December term of the court.

Late Saturday afternoon, upon the request of Prosecutor Attorney Brower, paroles were granted by the court to Edward W. Jones, charged with forgery, A. B. Huntington, forgery, and Roy Patch, charged with auto theft. All three defendants made a change of plea from "not guilty" to "guilty" and received suspended sentences in the penitentiary at Salem of two years each.

Prosecutor Attorney Brower stated that he believed that the three men would become good citizens if afforded the opportunity and Judge Kuykendall paroled them to him.

Circuit court will be without the services of Baillif H. J. Mattoon for a period of three weeks as "Mat" left yesterday morning with his wife and son Wendell for a three weeks trip to Santa Cruz, Calif., where a visit will be made with Mr. Mattoon's daughter, Mrs. Ben Kearns. The party are driving to Santa Cruz and according to Lloyd DeLap, "Mat" will never be a violator of the speed laws as 2 miles an hour is "just his limit."
