

PELICAN BAY CO. TO BUILD BOX FACTORY

The Pelican Bay Lumber company has decided to construct a by-products factory. This factory will manufacture some boxes and sash and door cuttings and curtain roller stock.

"It is not the intention of the company to embark extensively into this branch of the business and we will continue to sell our valued customers, box lumber and other needed material," said H. D. Mortenson.

"The present high freight rates are working somewhat to a disadvantage in shipping shop lumber and we believe it will prove advantageous to cut up a considerable volume of shop lumber into sash and door cuttings and avoid freight upon the waste."

The new factory will be 70 x 160 feet in length, with a planing room 40 x 40 feet and a filing room 40 x 40 feet. The warehouse and store room will be 70 x 100 ft. The present installation of machinery will be the machinery necessary for a 4-cut-off box factory and a 2 cutoff sash and door cutting factory.

Work will start very shortly on the building and the machinery will be installed as soon as the building is ready to receive same.

ROCK CRUSHER FOR ROAD HERE

The rock crushing machinery that is to be used in preparing the material for macadamizing the highway between Merrill and Malin, is being unloaded today from the Strahorn line where it crosses the road to Merrill. This piece of road work is being done by the Oskar Huber company and is being rushed to completion as rapidly as men, money and machinery can do it. When finished it will bring the Malin territory within quick and easy reach of this city and will mean greater development for both places.

Men are now at work in the quarry that is to furnish the rock for this work, getting out a supply of material, so that when the machinery is in place and ready for operation there will be no delay in turning out the finished product.

No time has been set for the completion of the work, but those in charge state that there will be no stopping until the contract is finished.

A MESSAGE TO BUSINESS MEN

The following from the Burroughs Bulletin is a message to business men that should be heeded. It is particularly applicable to the business men of this city, most of whom are sitting back and damping the buying public because it does not "come across," without seeking to find out that the principal trouble lies right at his own door.

If your prices are right, tell the people so through your advertising. Convince them that prices have reached the bottom, just as the wholesalers are convincing you and the jobbers are convincing the wholesalers and the manufacturers are convincing the jobbers. Wake up, Mr. Business man. Get some pep into your business. Go after the turn over. Get those idle dollars on your shelves into circulation. Forget the past, don't grumble about the present, put your trust in the future and go after it. Try this for a month and you will have no reason to crab.

Read this from the Bulletin, then get busy: Every individual owes to himself and to the community in which he lives a specific duty to do his share toward the betterment of present conditions.

If a so-called "buyers' strike" is responsible for the increased resistance in selling, then that condition should be settled so that business may resume its normal air of activity.

What may we do to relieve this condition?

We can each of us purchase the things we need, and make those purchases now.

This is one thing that should be done immediately, because if we assume the attitude that we won't buy anything, but that we will wait until things reach "normal," and our customers say the same thing, and their employers take that attitude, then the man we should buy from is forced to take the same attitude toward those from whom he might buy.

If, on the other hand, you induced your customers to buy NOW what they needed now, and they in turn persuaded their customers to buy what they needed, the business would be coming to you, and you in turn could buy NOW from your sources of supply.

But who is going to start this thing?

Are you going to wait for the other fellow to do all his buying or will you also do your share?

We must relieve this imagined necessity for waiting. BUY NOW what we need now. Betterment of conditions is certain to follow, for your action will start the other fellow; he will encourage his neighbor, and before we know it we will be on the up-grade of prosperity.

The nation is filled with people who have been putting off the purchase of articles that they desire until "a little later." These articles are needed, their purchase is fully justifiable, and they can be afforded—but someone told you that times were bad and going to be worse, and you told the other fellow what you heard, and he told it again, and soon all of you were hanging on for dear life to every cent you could get hold of, fearing this bugaboo that had been born of the breath of fearful conversation, gloomy predictions and idle chattering. Everybody got scared at nothing. You held off your buying. The other fellow held off his buying, and the community, taking cognizance of the two, delayed their buying.

Many prices are down to pre-war levels. Most dealers have taken adjustment costs and many commodities are priced as attractively as reason could command. What the business world wants now is action. There must be trading buying, selling, and you can do your share if you will.

Let us all begin today by buying the things we need, and our business needs, and let us sell with old-fashioned, hearty optimism and enthusiasm.

Let us stop saying, "Wait until everybody else begins to buy, then I will." Why not begin NOW?

Did you open that bank account today?

Have you joined the "Checkbook Brigade" that is helping to bring prosperity back to Klamath county?

Have you shoved that idle dollar of yours into the whirlpool of business that it may spin around and around, until finally you get it back with added value by reason of its activity. If not, then do it now.

Offers Sheriff a Drink; Now in Jail

"If I thought you weren't the sheriff I'd give you a drink. There's about one left," said a man working on a stalled automobile, seven miles out of town, when Sheriff Low halted on his way home from Bly last night to lend assistance.

"By George, it is the sheriff," he said as he stepped closer to the officer.

Search of the car revealed four gallons of "moonshine" liquor, a gas stove, three knocked-down barrels and four sacks of rye. Sheriff Low waited several hours until the partner of the man on the scene returned from a trip for repair parts for the auto. Then he brought both to jail. There names are C. H. Young and Ed Perry.

LAYING PLANS FOR CHECKING PINE BEETLE

Recognition by the United States government of the seriousness of the pine beetle infestation of the forests within the Oregon-California section, to which A. J. Jaenicke, entomologist, has been assigned in control work, carries a far reaching effect which will be manifested in the years to come. The results will not be felt until next spring when all the energies of the entomological bureau are turned loose in a systematic manner for the checking of the active pine beetle in his 1922 devastation campaign.

Within a week, Mr. Jaenicke will don his wood togs and start cruising over this 600,000 acres, which is under suspicion, and as he progresses through the woods, he will plot on a map that he carries with him, the definite location of an infested area.

In a suspected area, when a tree is spotted which shows all the outward evidences of infestation, the mark will be penetrated and the colony sized up; the probable number in that vicinity and what damage this group would do if allowed to thrive. On that little tall tale map, this plot is marked for destruction next spring when the bark from this tree, as well as other suspected trees, can be peeled and burned completely to an ash.

Until snow flies, Mr. Jaenicke has much territory to cover in his survey but he feels confident that the work between now and snow time can give him an accurate idea and location of the strongest colonies and how the districts can be best grouped for systematic destruction.

One of the greatest benefits which will be accomplished by the advent of the entomological bureau in Oregon will be the course of training that Klamath, Lake, Deschutes, Douglas and Jackson county woodsmen will receive in checking ravages by beetles which infest the forests in those counties. The California counties bordering on the Oregon life will also have training as well, and it is planned to teach protective measures as well as "bugology" to the men who remain in these communities all the year around. The entomological department hope in this manner to make the districts independent of federal help by supplying the training necessary to local men to give the private owners protection when needed, at the crucial time and long before a federal agent could reach the scene of disaster.

Mr. Jaenicke does not mean that a regular course along college lines will be given the men who are (Continued to Page 5)

Christian Church to Be Used in Partial Stage of Completion

The Christian church at Ninth and Pine streets which has had the foundation laid for some time will be pressed into service in an uncompleted state and workmen are to soon lay the flooring in the basement and raise a temporary roof over the foundation, sufficiently strong to withstand snow this winter.

Work upon this structure, including stone and concrete repairs and construction of the frames for the doors and windows, was done this week. While the structure is incomplete and will be only partially furnished, still the members of the church say that they prefer to worship in their own place despite the inconveniences.
