

The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

Prices are falling in the same way that the mercury is.

Yea, Verily

A dog in the manger may be mean but far meaner is a dog in the road.

Fred English says we're never too old to wish we could go wading in the creek again.

O. D. Burke says a man likes to see a woman well dressed but he never marries one whose mind is occupied with dress unless she slips up on him when he's not looking and marries him before he knows much about her.

Summer began on schedule time, June 21, and the ice man is now very much in season. While ordinarily the ice man is no pugilist, he has nevertheless, acquired a reputation as a lightweight artist of much prowess.

Please, Dear

In the gloaming, oh, my darling.

When the lights are dim and low.

That your face is powder painted.

How am I, sweetheart to know?

Twice this month I've had to bundle

Every coat that I possess

To the cleaners—won't you darling.

Love me more, and powder less?

The beggar wore his most pathetic expression and wept a crocodile tear.

"Please, sir, won't you give me a loaf of bread for my wife and family?"

The kind man patted him on the shoulder. "No, no, my poor fellow,"

he said, sympathetically. "I would not deprive you of your wife and family for anything."

Summer Days

Sing a song of rose, hop's n' every-thing. Summer's here, and whokey, hear the jazz bells ring!

Days have grown much longer and the nights are brief causing sundry lovers quite a grist of grief. Sunshine's getting stronger (like the moonshine brew!) Sunburned? I should warble! Reader, dear, are you?

Schooners on the ocean, (likewise on the land) glimmer in the moonshine (I think you understand!) One piece bathing suits strictly taboo! Bathing, male, are therefore, like the ocean, blue! Air-tight skirts, and stockings twice again as light, guarantee the "Skeeters three square meals a night!"

Garden-plots suburban, trucked for "family needs", promise golden harvests rich in tons of "weeds"! Wedding-bells a-jingle fill the air with glee (you may if you wish to: "No wedding bells for me."

Merry picnic parties dot the country side; watch 'em while they scatter rubbish far and wide! Federal tax on tickets plus a "higher rate" make vacation journeys look as if they ain't!

Now "resorts" are open, take your bloomers pick: "The Stream" sites by the ocean; "The Beach" is near a "crick". "Week-ends" by the seaside send you home well "rolled"; linger in the city, heat-waves knock you cold!

What? You say my song is full of "grief and groan" Huh! If you don't like it, write your bloomers' own!

RECALLS OLD INDIAN WARS

(Portland Oregonian)

Chief of scouts in the Modoc war in 1873, Captain O. C. Applegate, of Klamath Falls, is in Portland to see his grand-daughter, Peggy Halferty, age 3 weeks. The captain is a member of the pioneer Applegate family. His father was the first agent at the Klamath agency, and he went with his father as chief clerk. When Captain Modoc broke out, killing a settler near Tule lake, not far from where the town of Merrill is now, Captain Applegate rode from Linkville (now Klamath Falls) to Tule lake in one day, and then that night he rode back to Yainax, the sub-agency, to prevent the Klamaths from going on the warpath with Captain Jack.

Captain Applegate saw Chief Schonechin and a pow-wow was called for sunup. Chief Schonechin told his braves that Captain Jack was a bad Indian, as he had broken his treaty with the whites. Then Captain Applegate said: "Boys, there's a lot of work to do," so he led them to the forest to chop wood for the winter. This gave the Klamaths something to think of besides warfare. Having taken care of the Klamaths, the captain returned to Linkville and was placed in command of scouts, while Captain Jack and his men retreated to the lava beds, where for a time they defied the entire United States army. It was against the advice of Captain Applegate and other experienced men that the peace commissioners met under a flag of truce with the hostiles. The Modocs murdered the peace commissioners, with one exception.

The ride from Linkville to Tule Lake and then to Yainax was a hard ride in those times, and Applegate had to cross two mountain ranges. His brother, Ivan D. Applegate, rode part of the way, but left to warn the settlers in Swan Lake valley, where the Applegate family had large stock interests. Peggy Halferty's mother, Mrs. Z. T. Halferty, is a resident of Kodiak, Alaska. Peggy was the magnet which drew the old Indian fighter to Portland for a few days.

Effective

The charm of this gown of black crepe metour, which Madge Kennedy wears, is in its simplicity. The slightly full overskirt and the puffing at the hips are becoming to the slender figure. Lace cuffs and a matching bib are effective touches.

MAKE THAT IDLE DOLLAR WORK.

An Evening Coiffeur

Simplicity which is not so simple is shown in the evening coiffeur designed by Sidney Brooks. The hair, lightly waved, forms a low pompadour which is pulled into four dips, two over the temples and two over the ears. A cluster of broken curls around the chignon and a huge comb thrust in at the side give distinction to this headdress.

THE BRIGHTEST GIRL FOUND

BOSTON, July 27.—Miss Constance Bouck of Leadville, Colo., a freshman at Simmons college, is announced as head of her class in general intelligence. The decision was reached through the application of mentality tests originated by Dr. A. A. Roback, instructor in psychology at Harvard university and at Simmons.

"The 12 parts of the Roback tests with the exception of the analogy, hard opposites and direct tests, which were based on familiar principles, were devised by Dr. Roback with the college student in mind." It was explained in announcing the award.

"One of the most interesting of the test questions is the problems test, designed to gauge capacity to grapple with a practical situation. One of the problems, for example, asks 'If you were on the seventh floor of a department store in a hurry to get to the ground floor and two elevators came at the same time, one attracting a large crowd and the other only two passengers, which would you take and why?' The person of under-average and some of average intelligence answer at once. The elevator with two passengers, because it is easier to get in and out of. It takes the superior intelligence to reason that the full car will in all probability express to the ground floor, whereas the almost empty one would stop on the way down at each floor to take on more passengers.

"The relations test was another poser: 'If two first cousins were to marry, what would be the former and the new relationship of Miss A's sister's husband to Mr. X's? Answer, former relation, first cousin by marriage; new relation, brother-in-law. Of Mr. X to Miss A's mother? Answer, old relation, nephew; new, son-in-law. Of Miss A's brother to Mr. X's sister? Answer, first cousin and brother's brother-in-law. Of Mr. X's father to Miss A's brother? Answer, uncle and sister's father-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. X's child to Mr. X's brother's child? Answer, second cousin, first cousin.

"There were ten others besides the Relations and the Problems Tests to be answered inside of three hours.

Character

There's so much character in the face of Mrs. Emma V. Doyle, of Washington, that she is one of the most popular models at the art class of the Corcoran Art Gallery, she is 62.
