WOMEN MAKE GOOD RULING JACKSON HOLE

JACKSON, Wyo., Aug. 12—Jackson, after a year's trial of petticoat government, has found it good. Half a century ago the first jury of women to be impaneled in the United States was drawn in Wyoming and twenty years later Wyoming insisted, and won its point, that it be admitted to the Union without one single change in its constitutional provision giving women equal suffrage rights with men. Since then the feminist movement has developed astoundingly.

Just a year ago this picturesque little western town, with a population of 526 by the latest census, nestling beneath the beetling peaks of the Giant Teton in the heart of the famed Jackson's Hole country, started the nation by turning out its man-made administration and installing a town government made up entirely of women. The victory was all the more notable because of the fact that Mrs. Rose Crabtree was elected to the town council over her own husband. Evidently the women of Jackson had decided to spoil the town's glamorous reputation as the rendezvous for bad, bold, two-gun desperadoes.

The exact issue in the campaign a year ago is a matter for argument but whatever it was the women won decisively. This year it was the same thing over, a three to one landslide.

During their year's tenure, the five women of the town's administration managed to keep Jackson clean, morally and physically and in addition they brought about a number of municipal improvements. They transformed what used to be country lanes into city streets; they acquired a site for a cemetery to take the place of the old, familiar burying ground; and they are now working on a plan for a modern, adequate water system to replace the present system of irrigation ditches fed by nearby Cache Creek.

Two of the councilwomen are holding overs this year. The other two, along with the mayor, stood pat on their records. The mayor, Mrs. Miller, is the wife of a wealthy, retired stockman and rancher who is supervisor of the Teton National Forest reserve. Of the council women, Mrs. Crabtree, runs a hotel. Her husband is a building contractor. Mrs. VanVleck is the wife of a hardware merchant. Mrs. Haight is a school teacher and a homesteader, and Mrs. W. C. De Loney's husband is a member of the Wyoming state legislature.

A few days after the election, Miss Pearl Williams, the town's 22 year old marshal, announced that she would not seek reappointment of the new administration. When asked why not, she replied: "I've had plenty, besides, Jackson has become so quiet and orderly that the town doesn't need a marshal any more."
