Klamath Country Is Wonderland for the Lovers of the Big Outdoors

MANY LURES FOR VACATIONIST IN KLAMATH'S COUNTY'S 9,100 SQUARE MILES OF OUTDOORS

Within the last two weeks vacation trips have been taken by many prominent people of this city and a majority have sought the wooded sections within the 9,100 square miles embraced in Klamath county.

One can travel in many states and fail to discover a single county having such a great blessing in the way of woods and fishing waters as Klamath county.

Right here in our midst is found the finest of fishing and within the last few weeks, two prize rainbow trout have been captured and sent away for mounting, in order that their greatness may be kept fresh in the memory of all fishermen.

There are many other lakes that are famous in this district besides Upper Klamath, Medicine, Diamond, Lake o' the Woods, Crescent, Waldo, Crater and many others are all within reach of this city. Approach to some of them is difficult, but this feature is one that but adds to the charm of the vacation trip. Many people don their outing clothes, drive as near to the objective point as possible, and then "hike" over rocks and through brush until their quest is found. Camp is struck at once and before long, some one of the party is industriously casting a fly or spoon for the almost sure catch—which means fresh trout for supper.

Many people who are fond of a sand beach, where no mosquitos are supposed to be found and where approach is possible over fairly good roads, have taken trips to Medicine lake, located from here about 45 miles south and a little beyond Malin. Within the last week, many Klamath families have motored there for week-end outings.

Diamond lake has had the roads reported leading to it as being in fair condition and a number of both camping and hiking parties have set out for a short visit near this pretty resort. Diamond lake received quite a boost when the state game commissioners were here on an inspection trip. Both fishing and mountain climbing is indulged there, as Mt. Thielsen is one peak that is not an easy climb.

Spring creek still retains its old time popularity and many parties have made this place their headquarters for a brief visit

WHY NOT SPEND YOUR VACATION IN YOUR OWN LAND

CAMPING IN THE BLUE SKY LANDS

HERE'S YOUR SUPPER! HOW'S YOUR APPETITE?

FISH ABOUND IN KLAMATH LAKES, RIVERS

WHEN that feeling which leaves you drowsy, indolent and unambitious, and the sight of a moving picture sign makes you wild and weary of the world, there is but one recourse left and that is to hike into the cool woods near some of the famous lakes of this county and camp. Next sit yourself down either in a row-boat or a "kicker boat" and let about 50 yards of line trail out behind with a bright copper number four spoon attached at the end. That panacea is the only known remedy to the learned dealer in medicine or advice—you need a fishing trip to put spice back into life.

The average Klamath Fallite does not find it necessary to pack up all the fancy frills and togs, interview a railroad agent about trains. Stages or anything else, worry the life out of the family asking about "my line, that gray hackle or the oil of pennyroyal." All that is to be done is to put on the old togs, grab a pole and light out in either your own car or with the neighbor to Eagle Ridge tavern the placid, crystal waters of Wood river, the scenically beautiful Williamson river, the turquoise
