To the "Ad" Killer
The man who stops his little "ad" is but a blooming fool, begad. Because his advertisements tell the public what he has to sell, and if his "ad" is not on deck, the people pass him up, by heck. For none of them will hesitate to trade with people up-to-date. To stop your "ad" we would remark, is just like winking in the dark—you may know what you mean but, gee! nobody else can ever see; So do not for a moment think that when you cut the printer's ink, you're saving money on the side; 'tis only business suicide.—Exch.

The Careless Proof-Header

The ending of my story has been completely spoiled by careless proof-reading, complained an angry author. "Here at the conclusion, where the judge looks down at the detective and asks, 'Are you Pendleton King?' what does the printer make him say? Listen! 'The great detective, snatching off his false beard, replied, 'I a. m.'"

It isn't what you say you are going to do that counts—it's what you actually do that turns the trick.

"You may have heard of me—I am Dr. Kill'em," the pompous gentleman announced in the smoking compartment.

"Ah, then I have the opportunity to thank you, for what you did for me," the quiet fellow responded. "I have been benefited greatly by your treatment."

"Why—were you a patient of mine? Though of course, I couldn't possibly remember all—"

"Oh no; not I. But my uncle was, and I was his heir."

BERKELEY—A bounty of 10 cents a head for freshmen students to be used for hazing purposes was announced by sophomore students at the University of California here. The announcement did not state whether the freshmen should be delivered dead or alive. Small boys are waxing rich on the rewards. They watch the homes of new students, track them to the campus, point them out to their deadly rivals, the sophs, collect the 10 cents, and then watch the fun.

SACRAMENTO—Superior Judge Malcolm G. Glenn instructed the sheriff's office to move over a wider field in the selection of persons to serve on special venires of jurors instead of returning virtually the same list of persons on all special venires.
