

The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

Pome

The roads I ride with thee, dear heart, Are but a bunch of bumps to me, I count them over, every jolt apart, Through long eternity.

Each foot a bump, each yard a jerk, I count them over as I must, On every road unto the end to find A spring has bust.

O awful pikes, O worn-out roads, O battered cars that pitch and toss O let us urge the country's three comish To come across, sweetheart, To come across!

My boss has one of those suits made out of airplane cloth, chirps Vera Thompson. Is that the reason he goes up in the air so easy?

Secretive

Lips that touch liquor never tell where they got it.

Russia wants to come to Harding's party. We didn't know she had anything to wear.

Its easy to meet expenses these days. You run onto them every time you turn around.

Those Lively Professors

Deep in a ponderous calculation, the professor leaned over his desk. One hand held his massive brow; the other guided the pencil.

Suddenly the library door was flung open, and a nurse entered, smiling broadly.

"There's a little stranger upstairs, professor," she announced; of course referring to the very latest arrival.

"Eh?" granted the man of learning, frowning deeply over his problem.

"It's a little boy," remarked the nurse, still smiling.

"Little boy," mused the professor.

"Little boy—eh? Well, ask him what he wants!"

Frequently a chorus girl's success depends upon her understanding.

We see by the newspapers that Owen Moore has been married. And we venture the prediction that party soon he'll be owing still more.

And commenting further, death brings its own reward, while taxes bring nothing more than a receipted bill or a law suit.

A Jewish soldier was taken to a hospital. The diagnosis showed him to be suffering from a bad case of influenza.

"Send for the priest," Isidor moaned.

"The priest?" queried the doctor. "You mean the rabbi, don't you?"

"No!" yelled Isidor. "Do you think I should want to give the flu to the rabbi!"

Somebody declares that the young men and boys of America are this country's greatest assets. And we darsay the flappers are our greatest liabilities.

The Crowded Social Hour From the La Salle, Ill., Tribune An ice cream social will be held Thursday night on the lawn of the Oglesby Baptist church.

A Regular Stunt. Ferguson—I've just been reading that the aviators today can do anything a bird can do. Yes, sir, they've got the thing down so fine that there isn't a bird alive that has anything on them.

Fitzgerald—Zatso? Well, when you see an aviator fast asleep hanging onto a branch of a tree with one foot, then I'll come and take a look.—American Legion Weekly.

Outbursts of Everett True By Condon

Pigs Squeal for Squalls. Animals will often tell us all we want to know about the weather.

Watch your dog. If he refuses food in the morning, and is found subsequently chewing grass on the lawn, a downpour may be anticipated. Sheep will scatter far and wide over a hillside during fair and settled weather, but prefer to huddle together under shelter when a storm approaches.

Some people say that the higher the sheep on the hillside, the drier the weather.

If cattle go reluctantly to pasture in the morning, or lie down early in the day, bad weather is imminent, as it is when the morning's milk supply is scanty, or the beasts themselves low and look at the sky.

Pigs, of course, are infallible barometers; they squeal and grunt incessantly when storms approach.
