

WANT DALLES TO KLAMATH ROAD DONE BY 1925

With the purpose of rallying support to the program for completing The Dalles to Klamath highway by 1925, a meeting of representatives from interested communities will meet in Bend, September 24. It was originally planned to hold the meeting here but as Bend appears to be a more central place the plan was changed.

Towns along the eastern Oregon highway realize the importance of having the road finished from the Washington to the California line when the work is done in Portland in 1925. If eastern Oregon is going to get its share of the tourist travel that will be drawn to the state by the fair.

Secretary Stanley, of the chamber of commerce, said all who desire to attend the Bend meeting will be eligible to go and asks them to inform him of their intention of attending.

Meeting at The Dalles. Tomorrow, there will be a meeting of Oregon and Washington delegates at The Dalles to consider the location of a bridge across the Columbia river. It is said that there is an attempt to choose a site closer to Portland than was originally planned. The idea is combated by eastern Oregon communities on the ground that it would have a tendency to divert more than a fair share of traffic to the Pacific highway via Portland.

The Klamath chamber of commerce will not have a personal representative at the meeting but will send a wire, said Secretary Stanley, urging fair treatment for the eastern route.

Large Bear Slain In Bly District By Medford Men

Tim Daley and George Clemmons, retired real estate dealers of Medford, yesterday brought into this city a black bear, killed Monday about 20 miles from Bly on Gearhart mountain, said to be the largest specimen slain for a number of years. The hunters were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Jenkins at their home, 919 Lincoln street, where they spent yesterday.

The kill was weighed here and tipped the beam at 750 pounds. The fur was in fine condition and the pelt when placed on the scale weighed 85 pounds. Both hunters divided the honor of the kill and stated that a 25-25 rifle was used in the hunt. A number of pictures were taken of the animal dressed and with the hide on size and weight attracted much attention among the persons who saw it. A tape across the top of the head between the ears measured 12 inches.

TRAFFIC DEPUTY VISITOR HERE

T. A. Raffety, chief field deputy of the Motor Vehicle Division of the state of Oregon, is a visitor here today on business connected with the enforcement of the existing vehicle laws of the state but primarily, he says, more to educate than to enforce. A simple course of education, he says, will do more good in nine cases out of ten than arrest because many motorists are unaware of the infraction of the law until it has taken place unintentionally.

Mr. Raffety states that the rules and regulations imposed upon the motorists are being respected at least 100 per cent better now than they were on his last visit when but comparatively few used either hand signals, lights and other safety devices in connection with their driving. Raffety complimented the citizens of this county on their marked improvement. The sheriff's office was checked up on the number of temporary licenses issued from that place and the number found to be 170. On receipt of the license plate from the secretary of the state, the temporary license plate has been turned back to the sheriff and the $1 deposit returned.

Mr. Raffety stated that he appreciated the educational policy followed out by the Herald in assisting the department to get the best results from the field deputy's work, also on the fact that in this county, the motorists had been informed fully on every regulation save the excess load law for trucks through various articles published from time to time. Mr. Raffety stated that his office was in a portion of the Secretary of State Koser's headquarters at Salem.

"All the beans you can eat for 15 cents."
"All the spaghetti you want for 15 cents."
"All the coffee you can drink for a nickel."
"It's hell to be broke; if you're hungry, come on in anyway."
"People ask how we do it. The answer is: We do."

WHY FREIGHT GOES ASTRAY

J. J. Miller, Southern Pacific agent, today told the assembled guests at the forum of the chamber of commerce that too much damage and loss on freight shipments occurred during shipment because the shipper failed to be careful in marking the destination of the package plainly, also, the bill of lading made out by the shipper did not show clearly where it was to go, consequently many packages suffered delay by arriving at other points on the railroad system than intended.

The three great industries of the country are agriculture, transportation and manufacturing, interdependent upon each other, said the speaker. Let any branch fail in its functions and the people suffer. Particularly is this true in the transportation line and when shipments go astray the equilibrium is disturbed. Mr. Miller said that in five years record of 500000 shipments, due to poor addresses, in 1916 the damage amounted to .575 per cent and the loss reached 2 per cent of the gross receipts in 1920. An explanation of the best way to ship material followed and the three classes of containers were well explained by the agent.

J. J. Parkers, of the American Railway Express company dealt with the express company's losses and described the best means of sending packages. Postmaster Delsell related the grief which was the postal employees when mail and parcel post packages were improperly addressed.

MANSLAUGHTER INDICTMENT IS FOUND BY JURY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—Felix Arbuckle now faces two charges in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, following the return last night by the grand jury of an indictment charging him with manslaughter.

The other charge is murder and was preferred Monday by Mrs. Bambina Maude Delmont, a friend of the dead actress. If Arbuckle is cleared of the murder charge, in the event he is tried upon it, he would still face prosecution on the manslaughter charge.

Arbuckle appeared more dejected today than at any time since he was arrested and his face was more pallid.

THEY'RE SIMPLY UNSQUELCHABLE

An attempt to raise a tempest in a teapot to the proportions of a tornado is under way, the members of the city council from whom the extreme of absurdity can always be expected having, after a period of quiescence, again blown off the lid.

This time it is a letter, purporting to have come from B. M. Hall, manager of the Klamath Steel Works—although Mr. Hall's signature was typewritten—criticizing the way in which Fire Chief Ambrose handled the foundry fire. Because, they say, be letter was not read to them at the council it is an indication "that the mayor had no intention of making an investigation of the charges contained in the letter as written by Mr. Hall."

The fact of the matter is that Mr. Hall, or whoever wrote the letter, specifically asked that it be referred to the fire committee for investigation. Mayor Wiley complied with the request by handing it to Councilman West, chairman of the fire committee. Mr. West is out of town and his statement could not be obtained by the Herald today, but it is assumed that if the matter is of importance enough to warrant investigation it will be investigated and a report made in due form.

At the time of the fire, it appears, the fire chief made it clear to Mr. Hall that the latter's interest in the burning building did not empower him to interfere with the chief in the discharge of his duty by giving instructions as to methods to be employed.

Looks as if the season for mares' nests had reopened and we can all go hunting again.

DON'T HUNT IN CAL. IS ADVICE TO SPORTSMEN

The Klamath Sportsmen's association has taken cognizance of the difficulties which Oregon sportsmen have had in their attempts to bring back birds made in the California forests after paying the $10 license fee to hunt there and announce publicly through Secretary McNeally, the necessity of Oregon hunters refraining from securing California licenses until the present difficulty can be adjusted. An effort is being made now to secure some "middle course" to follow, and during the interim, Oregon sportsmen can save themselves much trouble by refraining from either hunting or procuring the license necessary to hunt.

Oregon is unfortunate in the respect to migratory birds and most of the brant, Canada geese, hankers and the like all pass up Klamath, Jackson, Josephine, Curry, Harney and Malheur counties in their southern migration, settling mostly in their flight on Nevada and California feeding grounds.

In view of the opening of the migratory hunting season tomorrow, many Klamath, Jackson and Josephine county sportsmen plan to seek favorite spots in California but the Klamath Sportsmen's association particularly impress upon its members that even with the California hunting license, no birds can be brought home.

Why hunt there when no game can be brought back? Wait until this matter can be adjusted inside of two weeks at the most," Secretary McNeally urges.
