the eyes of the world will be turned upon Washington during the days of the conference as they never have been turned before and if the conference should prove barren of results the nations of the world will relapse again into sullenness bordering on despair.

"I feel that there is no question of world importance comparable to the one that will be discussed during these fatal days. In our own country 92 cents of every dollar is spent to discharge the obligations created by wars, past, present and future. Such a monstrous condition cannot long continue and what is true of America is accentuated to a greater degree in other nations.

"All agree that something should be done with regard to the slowing up and reduction in the matter of armament, but how this great thing should be done has long puzzled the master minds of the world.

Create Opportunity.

"President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes have created the opportunity, and only one thing can intervene to bring about a failure, and that is the projection of collateral issues that will muddy the waters and engender ill feelings and antagonisms and prejudices. Half in prophecy and half in belief, I will expect to see France agree upon the general principle of naval disarmament, curtailment of the construction of huge battleships and other naval flotilla, but hesitate to enter into such a contract unless the powerful nations of the earth agree to enter into a covenant with her that they will protect her in defense of another attempted invasion from a hostile country.

"Should this situation occur, many new issues will arise, the solution or attempted solution of which might embarrass the conference beyond its ability to accomplish that which is so much hoped it will accomplish.

May Divert Issues

"Those of our countrymen who believe in avoiding foreign entanglements will naturally oppose the commitment of our country to a policy to protect any other nation from invasion. Again, therefore, we will have reverberations of the battle over the League of Nations. Whether Japan shall stay indefinitely in the province of Shantung, and under what conditions, is a matter that may interject itself so stoutly that the conference will yield to a spirit of disagreement, but this one simple truth, is apparent.

"President Harding and the commission will endeavor to divert the issues that may tend to becloud the purpose of the movement and strive diligently to relieve the world from the extravagance and wastage of the present tendency toward excessive armaments."

PACKERS TO BE UNDER CONTROL AT ALL TIMES

SALEM, Or., Sept. 21.—(Special) Constructive legislation of the present congress designed to aid the farmer and producer is the so-called packer bill and the bill regulating the abuses of the grain exchanges, according to United States Senator Charles L. McNary, who is spending his vacation here.

In an interview Senator McNary chatted of the work of the present session and told of the aims of the congress and the president to relieve the burdens of the farmers.

"Congress has been on the alert in behalf of those who produce, more so than in any other legislation with which I am familiar," said the senator.

Bill Regulates Packers

"Congress passed the so-called 'packer' bill which, it is thought, will be of benefit to the producer and consumer alike, of livestock.

"The administration of the law is placed in the hands of the secretary of agriculture and the inquisitorial machinery of the government is at his disposal.

"The bill covers the buying of livestock in interstate or foreign commerce for slaughter of such livestock for sale or shipment.

"Packers are prohibited from unfair, unjustly discriminatory or deceptive practices, or from fixing undue preference or advantage to any person or locality, or from creating monopolies or manipulating or controlling prices. The bill is not drastic or radical legislation but is constructive and calculated to produce good results throughout the country.

Grain Sales Guarded

"Complaints against the grain exchanges caused the last congress to pass legislation corrective of what was thought to be elements of evil in grain transactions on exchanges. "The new law is intended to eliminate manipulation of the market by speculators but does not interfere with legitimate trading.

"The interest of the farmers is taken out of the control of speculators and farmers' co-operative grain companies may now acquire membership on grain exchanges and thus play an important part in the grain trade.

Prohibits Hedging

"The bill prohibits hedging in futures and is so regulated as not to create a monopoly or injury affecting the price of grain in the hands of the producers. Execution of this bill is also placed in the hands of the secretary of agriculture.

Farm Needs Studied

"In order to determine a practicable course for legislation the congress passed a resolution providing for a joint agricultural committee to study farm conditions, locate things intended to be corrected and suggest remedies.

"The commission has been holding hearings for several weeks and will continue throughout the fall and winter. As a member of that committee I believe good results will follow and that the report will be a matter of assistance to the congress and to the country generally."

PEACE MEETING IN WASHINGTON HOPE OF WORLD

SALEM, Or., Sept. 21.—As the place whence shall come the happiness of the world and a high-hearted outlook on the future for its nations, or the place whence shall creep upon the world a sullenness that is well-nigh despair—that is the way United States Senator McNary thinks of Washington when the disarmament conference meets in the American capital next armistice day.

The senator declares he has heard of no problem that is giving the people of the earth so much concern as that of land and naval armaments, and he avers that there is no question of world importance comparable to the one that will be discussed by the big men of the nations. There is only one thing that might cause failure, Senator McNary believes, and that is the introduction of collateral issues that can serve only to muddy the waters and engender discord and antagonism.

Compliments Harding

The Oregon senator compliments President Harding highly on his selection of the men who will represent the United States in the conference. Particularly he believes the selection of Senator Underwood a happy one, for the reason that it will remove from the partisan mind any thought that the president is playing politics.

"It is my humble opinion that President Harding exercised rare judgment in the selection of the commission to represent America in the limitation of armament conference," said Senator McNary. "In the whole field of public life, I know of no four men better suited to deal with the many problems that will come before the commission than the ones appointed by the president. By training and habit of thought, these men will represent and advocate the ideals and aspirations of the American people.

Men Experienced

"The selection of Senator Underwood is particularly happy, as it removed from the partisan mind any notion that the president desired to make politics out of this movement. Each member of the commission has had varied experience in public and foreign matters and has demonstrated in every test his ability to reflect and understand public opinion. Congress and the country generally, in my opinion, are delighted with the personnel of the commission and have confidence that the services to be rendered will equal the hopes and expectations of the country.

"The second step taken by the president is as wise as his first one, when he selected armistice day for the opening of the session and succeeded in getting every nation to accept with apparent enthusiasm.

One Big Problem

"I know of no greater problem that is giving the people of the world as much concern as the costs of armaments on land and on sea. Literally,
