MIDLAND ITEMS

Nearly all the inhabitants of Midland turned out to the circus Monday. They gave the verdict that the trapeze performances were the best they ever saw, and in general pronounced the show fine. Those from Miller Island who attended were: George Furber and family, Miss Ila Hooper and John and Orr Hooper.

Among those who attended near Midland are the following: Mr. and Mrs. John Depuy and son, Ora Melvin, Mr. and Mrs. Del Fattl and family, Miss Emma Robustellini, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Depuy, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler and son Kenneth, and Dominico Ferarrese.

Sixteen carloads of sheep and cattle were shipped to Allen and Pyle of San Francisco Tuesday.

Mrs. J. W. Jory was agreeably surprised when her brother, Charles Riley, who lives near Ft. Scott, Kansas, appeared at her home Monday. Mrs. Jory had not seen him since her visit east two years ago. Mr. Riley plans on making an extended visit with his sister before going south to visit his mother and sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Harris, who lives in Oakland, California. Mr. Riley came West over the northern route, coming through Portland then here.

J. W. Straw, county brand inspector, was a Midland visitor Tuesday.

Mr. Yameaguchi, son of the Japanese, who owns an 800 acre Tule ranch in this vicinity says that the crops on the drained area harvested 50 bushels of rye to the acre. He says the manager here expects a much better crop next year when the land will have proper drainage.

The Midland Threshing company, is at present threshing on Sien Key's Tule ranch.

H. E. Hopkins of this vicinity is at present threshing. He expects 3000 bushels of wheat and 6000 bushels of rye from his ranch. He has an average good crop this year. Two trucks are hauling the grain to Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Robustellini and daughter, Emma, were Midland school visitors Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sargent of Miller Island left this place by automobile for an extended visit to California. Mrs. Sargent expects to visit her mother who lives there.

Gudie Robustellini and Miss Mary Schulmire, pupils from Miller Hill district, who attended the state fair, are expected home Saturday.

Alfred Depuy was a Klamath Falls visitor Monday.

Letters From The People

LEGION PUBLICIST

Dear Editor—When the committee was around trying to get a little easy money for the American Cities Bureau they sent an S. O. S. to headquarters: "Send shock troops to the Loomis building." but headquarters was too shrewd. They knew that no amount of "poison gas" would overcome this plain ultimatum, i. e., "So long as Klamath Falls Chamber of Commerce is run by men who work and use every influence against the best interests of the community and the ex-service men, and who never did anything for the benefit of the community, they will not get a cent of my money." Shortly after the armistice I gave a note for a tentative membership to the Chamber of Commerce. When they had elected their president I made them give it back, because I knew that any organization led by him would never do anything for either the community or the world war veterans. This is said to show that I had nothing against the Chamber of Commerce, but saw plainly how it would be run, and now see plainly how it is being used. Sad to say, there are some World War and Spanish War veterans who are still lending their influence that way.

When the Legion tried to get the government to make home for about 1,000 ex-service men the Chamber of Commerce tried to obstruct in every possible way, and is still doing so. They did the same for a building to honor Klamath patriotism. When the American Legion, departments of Oregon and Washington, tried to keep the peace by fostering legislation excluding non-american races, the Chambers of Commerce did their utmost to defeat the bills, and through their influence in Washington, D. C., succeeded in doing so in Oregon.

We thought these purely local affairs, but National Headquarters of the American Legion has at last awakened to the fact that the National Chamber of Commerce was the worst foe we had to the national bonus bill, and the American Legion Weekly, September 23rd, has an editorial under the caption, "Dissection Among the Ranks," which every veteran, every friend of ex-service men, every American who believes in justice, decency and fair play, should read. I find that a good many Legionnaires do not read the editorials. That is about the first thing I do read, not only in the Legion Weekly, but in the papers. After glancing at the headlines of the latest scandal one should turn to the editorial page, because the "editorial is the heart of a paper." It should be a very "appetizing" to the members of the Chamber of Commerce among our ex-service men, their wives, sweethearts, and to the friends of ex-service men to know that the Chamber of Commerce is fighting them with their own money. We warned our buddies and friends in season and out about this condition locally, but there are always some who want to "stand in." They tried to scatter dissection in the local Post; to discredit the leaders in this fight and injure them in a business way whenever possible. So far it has availed naught. Now the national organization finds that it is up against the same foe. The question is, buddies, will you continue to furnish money and influence to an organization that does nothing for the benefit of the community and is always working against the things that the Legion stands for? Read the editorial in the American Legion Weekly, and think it over.

I do not believe in dollar patriotism, but I also have no use for "dollar slackertism." When the patriot left home to give up much or all, if need be, that the slacker might stay at home and make much or millions, I think the patriot should receive at least a decent compensation, and I don't think he ought to have to beat them over the head with a club to get it. What do you think about it? What are you doing about it? If anyone in or outside of the Chamber of Commerce takes exceptions to this, let them challenge us to a debate. Although not an orator, we are willing to take a turn against any native or imported hired spellbinder and bunco steerer, and think there are others. There are undoubtedly many good and patriotic men in the Chamber of Commerce, but they do not see what the chamber really stands for. Since the "Leopard cannot change his spots," they should break away from him. They should break up the chamber, or else put someone at its head who will occasionally do something for the country, and not be forever working against its defenders. F. WESTERFELD, Member Committee on Publicity, Klamath Post No. 3, the American Legion.

STRAND THEATRE NOW LEADS IN PROJECTION OF PICTURES

Have you seen the pictures at the Strand as they look under the powerful illumination of the quicksilver red reflector? All that is possible in first class projection has been applied, and no expense has been spared to place the Strand in the lead.

An operator of 31 years' experience and of the best ability possible, has been placed in charge of the projection room. There is no eye-strain or headache after an evening's entertainment and should any patron find any fault the money will be cheerfully refunded.

The most powerful rays that are possible have brought out the finest details of the film upon the screen, and the management is sure that the public will agree that the Strand is now superior to any theatre in the city in screen projection.

TAKE CENSUS OF CELLS

HERDS FROM AIRPLANE VISALLIA, Cal., Oct.—Aviators flying from the government base here recently conducted a survey of the Buttonwillow district to determine the number of native California elk roaming the hills, and plains. They counted 400 elk but believe there are many more in the section. In 1870 there were but two elk in the section.

M'NARY LEADING TARIFF FIGHT

Herald Washington Bureau WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Senator McNary will head a committee of five senators to confer within a day or two with Chairman Fordney of the house ways and means committee to extend the life of the emergency tariff bill until January 1, or the date on which the permanent tariff becomes effective.

The emergency tariff expires on November 27 of this year, and unless steps are taken promptly to extend its life agricultural products throughout the country will be at the mercy of foreign competition.

The prospects are now that the permanent tariff will not be in effect until some time after the first of the year, and the senators representing agricultural districts have been urged to secure the extension of the emergency tariff, as one of the first important measures of the session.
