Outbursts of Everett True By Condon

In one state college three of 28 juniors did not identify a cartoon of Uncle Sam.

Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L., is given as head of the shipbuilding trade, a post, labor's representative in congress, secretary of labor, head of the strikers, the civil service commission and all unions of the world, and minister to France, England and Japan.

Lloyd George, Britain's prime minister, is given as king of Ireland, king of England, prominent in England, ambassador to United and English diplomat.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is given as ex-senator, secretary of war, writer on psychic research, ambassador to England, believes in conversations with the dead, member of Harding's cabinet, president of the senate, English speech maker, advocate of spiritualism, known to but seven of 21 high school seniors in a New England city.

Charles E. Hughes was President Wilson's private secretary and now wants to conquer Russia. Budget Director Dawes is secretary of the navy. Senator William E. Borah, fighter for disarmament, is widely unknown, marked as Uncle Sam, and dubbed a socialist leader.

"Movements, places and problems were likewise either unheard of or seen through a glass darkly: Budget is a bill of particulars, a booklet for keeping expenses, the amount of money spent in one year, news or announcements, financial statements, an estimate of revenue in the British house of commons.

Sinn Fein is a gang of mysterious men, a lawless mob in Russia, a party of people in Russia trying to gain power, or the socialists of Ireland.

Our last two constitutional amendments brought us railroads, steamships, paved streets and restricted immigration.

The Knox peace resolution called for indemnity from Germany, abstinence from foreign affairs, reduced navy and international disarmament.

Peonage is the murder of employees, the state of a day laborer, a law regarding punishment of negroes."

Five lessons for the new school year and for patriotic handling of labor problems were drawn from these facts by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Institute for Public Service:

"These returns are not from our country's least favored young people or from mental defectives. On the contrary, they are from the most favored young men and young women in high schools and colleges, for whose education labor and capital alike are being taxed from $150 to $200 a year per student, besides the cost of their support and the worth of their time while studying.

Five conclusions seem to lie near the surface:

"1—Unless schools teach current events, young people while getting an education in school and college will put off learning how to study them until after their school days.

"2—Instantaneous exposure or long time exposure to current lack trafficking in an analysis of the moving picture of current events

"5—No democracy can expect straight thinking at election times and in industrial and political crises from a public that is not trained while at school to read regularly, to enjoy and to think straight about current events."

L. A. Must Have Better Harbor for Fleet, Says Admiral

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 5.—Los Angeles must improve her harbor to keep the Pacific fleet, Admiral E. W. Eberle, commander-in-chief, told the members of the Chamber of Commerce recently.

"You must have ample harbor facilities," he said. "The fleet came here two years ago and has since used the local harbor as an operating and exercise base, but the berthage has never been adequate and now we have been asked by your harbor authorities to give up part of the anchorage we have been using. If you expect us to base here, you must allow us sheltered and proper anchorage. If we vacate any more we might as well go into the open sea."

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of combustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.
If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.
Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, leaves behind a certain amount of indigestible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.
A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanse, purify and freshen the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.
Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should try this for a week and notice results.

INDICTMENT OF SCHOOL SYSTEM IN REPORT OF INVESTIGATION

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—What are college juniors observing in chemistry experiments who are unable to identify a cartoon of Uncle Sam?

What are high school graduates thinking about the French revolution who believe that Lloyd George is king of Ireland, Samuel Gompers a noted American poet, Henry Cabot Lodge a promoter of spiritualism, or Sinn Fein a lawless mob in Russia?

Are students training for efficiency in industry who have no idea what "collective bargaining," "budget" and "sales tax" mean?

How are school and college students preparing for citizenship who think the Knox Peace resolution called for indemnity from Germany, that peonage means the murder of employees, or that the last two constitutional amendments to our federal constitution brought us railroads, steamships, paved streets and less immigration?

The foregoing questions are asked by the Institute for Public Service, of which Julius H. Barnes is chairman, in a report issued today on how 17,500 school and college students averaged only 44 per cent in answering questions about frequently mentioned persons, places and problems of national concern.

The test was taken by 200,000 students in all parts of the country and was issued by the Review of Reviews. The returns from 17,500 were given to the Institute for Public Service for study. Its report gives the average earned by different classes, as follows: College juniors and seniors, 60 per cent, college freshmen 51 per cent, high school third year 50 per cent, high school second year 42 per cent, high school first year 35 per cent, grammar school seniors 42 per cent, and grammar school seventh grade 29 per cent. Of 17,500, only 332 earned over 90 per cent, 1,835 earned over 80 per cent, and 2,702, or one in seven, earned over 70 per cent. Referring to the recent claim of the American Federation of Labor that school textbooks omit or misrepresent labor's point of view, the institute's report asks if there is less danger to society from textbooks which omit or misrepresent anybody's point of view than from schools which fail to teach current events.

The practical question is said to be not whether students should stop reading and talking about, but whether they should be taught to study current events purposefully. It is suggested that if current problems are to be used at all, schools should not trust to information sticking to students, but should carefully test students on the way they read and on what they understand and digest.

The Institute's summary is in part as follows:

"The current events questions were not catch questions calling for freak memories. Instead they called for knowledge and understanding of frequently mentioned men, places and issues affecting our national life, like Uncle Sam, Samuel Gompers, Budget Director Dawes, Lloyd George, Senators Lodge and Borah, home-state governors and school heads; Coblenz, Hayti, Costa Rica, Moscow; budget, collective bargaining, buyers' strike, peonage, sales tax, sovietism and Sinn Fein. They dwelt with no problems beyond the comprehension of grammar school graduates, but they did call for right study of current events. Yet mixing up in one average the lowest marks, like 8 per cent and 17 per cent, with the highest marks, like 88 per cent and 92 per cent, the country-wide average for 17,500 students was 44 per cent.

"College juniors and seniors did the best, but they averaged only 60 per cent, while 400 college freshmen averaged 53 per cent, the same as 3,000 students in high-school graduating classes. Of 10,000 high school students, 1,500 in the second term of the third year did the best, earning 55 per cent, while 2,900 school freshmen averaged only 35 per cent. For 2,350 grammar school seniors the average was 42 per cent, while 1,500 seventh grade pupils earned 30 per cent.

"Typical of ignorance or misunderstanding with respect to current problems, the following answers are cited from high school and college students:
