STOCKING BANKS

Recklessness of Americans in regard to their money is a favorite subject for editors in all foreign countries. These writers profess the utmost amazement, not only at what they term our "spendthrift" ways, but also at the alspshod methods of so many Americans in keeping money in various hiding places, instead of in banks or government securities.

Judging by the daily stories of men and women losing their savings through trusting them to some "home made bank", it would seem these foreign criticisms possess considerable merit. We read of a laundress who trusted her savings of a lifetime to a stocking, in currency, to have it burned in a fire. The other day a man lost his straw hat and with it, $75 concealed under the sweatband. A Greenwich, Conn., man gave a pair of shoes to a boy to have them shined. He got them back, polished nicely, but minus the $2000 in currency he had stuffed in the toes. Many a package of greenbacks have been burned when the first autumn fire was lighted in an old stove, while all members of the second-story i'k chuckle with glee over the "mattress" and "rug" banks of women.

We must admit that Americans can never hope to be called thrifty as a nation until these unreliable substitutes for banks are all discarded. Savings should be placed in a bank or invested in a government or other time-approved security. There is no reasonable excuse for keeping any sum of money, beyond enough for immediate necessities, in one's room or home. Stockings, mattresses, tin cans, rugs, sugar bowls and all other such unsafe keeping places for money must go if we are to reach a general state of old age independence financially.—Sacramento Union.

Snow Drives Deer From High Levels

Snow was plainly visible on Mt. Stukel this morning on the north and east slopes. The fall was light and of a very wet nature and did not remain long. Travellers report that between Malin and Bonanza, there was a fall of two inches Monday.

Hunters returning from near Crater lake state that the tops of many mountains which they saw were heavily covered and that the deer were beginning to seek the lower regions for feeding purposes. Fred Duke reported on a trip Sunday that he saw many mule tail deer making their way across the flat country near the California border seeking refuge in the lava beds.

Deer Season Will Close Next Monday

Five days remain in the 1921 deer hunting season in which the hunter has an opportunity to bag a buck and the last shot which can be legally fired at any variety of deer can be shot at 11:59 p. m. Monday October 31.

Many hunters who have waited until the close of the season to go deer hunting say that a buck killed now is not likely to spoil very easily. Many deer killed at the outset of the hunting season were made up into "jerky" for future use. If the meat is sliced very thin and then boiled for a few moments to take the saltiness out of it, then add a cream gravy just as it is done with chipped beef, a very delicious dish is obtained. Information obtained at the sporting headquarters about the city is to the effect that many hunters are leaving now for the final try.

Bargain Hunting Crowd Flocks to La Vogue Sale

"Advertising in the daily newspapers pays," remarked a bystander yesterday morning watching the mob of women who were lined up in front of the La Vogue store at Fifth and Main streets at 8:45 o'clock.

By nine o'clock the crowd of feminine bargain hunters were so numerous that people passing by were forced to take to the street. When the doors opened, there was a rush for the articles on sale. The crowd became so great that the doors were locked until the numbers who were inside could be served. For a period of one hour, purchasers were admitted only by groups, and the lines outside remained until all were admitted.

State Press Well Read at U. of O.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 26.—The library of the University of Oregon receives 95 daily and weekly newspapers of the state. These are kept on file in a special room, which is daily crowded with students seeking "home town" news. No works of fiction, no magazines, can compare in popularity with what Oregon editors and reporters write, at the end of each year the papers are bound and kept permanently on file in the library. In many instances scholars engaged in research have found these big gray volumes of great value.

Icebergs off the Atlantic Coast are more numerous than for many years.

Fire Risk Reduced By Building Sale

Dictated by a desire on the part of the former owners to do their part in reducing the city's fire risks, J. T. Ward and John Brett announce the sale of their building on Seventh street, back of the Doughnut Shop, to Lester Kirkpatrick, who will move it to Tenth and Jefferson streets. The building, occupied by the Marquis rooming house, was recently damaged by fire. Situated so close to the business center it constituted a fire hazard and the owners, in a spirit of fairness to their neighbors, decided to sell. They stated that they made a sacrifice price to get rid of it.
