

TAKES TURN AS GLOBE TROTTER AND EDUCATOR

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 4.—Globe trotter in the summer and professor of history at the University of Kansas in the winter is the program followed by Prof. David L. Patterson, who returned the middle of September from a three-months' trip to Alaska. Summer before he circled South America, visiting a score of the cities along the west coast and back the east coast after a trip across the Andes. Two summers before that, in the early days of the World War, he visited the battle fronts of Europe as a war correspondent for an American newspaper.

On all these trips Professor Patterson observed closely the conditions of the countries through which he traveled, and from the South American and the European trips brought back large numbers of representative newspapers for his library. His early newspaper training impelled him, on his Alaskan trip, to note the great forests of spruce, as yet practically untouched.

The greatest of these Alaskan forests, said Professor Patterson, are in the southeastern part. They are controlled through the United States Forest service, and but two permits to paper pulp companies have been issued. These forests are extensive, and need never be exhausted if properly safeguarded, Professor Patterson said, for they form a second growth in thirty years.

Professor Patterson's Alaska trip combined all sorts of transportation, including the Alaskan Railroad, now being constructed by the United States government, river steamer and Pacific liner, as well as plain "mushing" as in the gold-rush days. His trip carried him through the Atlin Lake country of British Columbia, and as far as Dawson, Yukon Territory.

Will Keep Others From Using Same Paint as Firemen

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—After January 1, 1922, private vehicles in Chicago may not be painted with the same shade of red used by the fire department.

The city council passed an ordinance to that effect under the state law, giving it authority to expedite the work of the police and fire departments.

It was explained that traffic policemen have given the right of way to private vehicles under the mistaken belief that they were going to a fire.

No woman who thinks she is homely will consent to have her picture taken in a group.

LONDON HAS BEST TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 4.—London is the best regulated city in Europe from a traffic standpoint and Paris probably is the worst, Edward May, police inspector of Cleveland, reported upon his return from a trip through European cities to inspect traffic conditions. Obedience of the English populace to the police and the traffic rules and lack of obedience or regard by the French populace accounts for the difference, he said.

Inspector May recommends the abolishment of the present yearly automobile license plate and substitution therefore of a perpetual license and urges much more stringent examinations for taxicab drivers. He also advocates raised safety zones in the middle of the streets, such as used in many European cities, to protect the pedestrians from automobiles.

Under the system of abolishing the issuance of new license tags, Inspector May said millions of dollars would be saved yearly. License fees would be collected annually as at present, but the license would be valid as long as the car is used.

An excellent system of licensing taxicab drivers is used in London, he said. Most of the drivers are middle aged. The examinations for licenses are stringent and when a man gets one he is cautious to keep it. Few of the chauffeurs are mixed up in crimes. At one examination at which the inspector attended, he said one man appeared for the forty-ninth time and failed again. Men rarely pass the test the first time, he declared.

Applicants for license in Manchester, Eng., must be almost athletes with a character next to perfect.

Moonshine, it is said, has a marked effect on stammering. People so afflicted stammer most at the full of the moon.

Excellence Need Fear No Rival.

Multitudes of employees constantly live in terror of some one who, they fear, is after their place. They are suspicious of office politics, suspicious that somebody working close behind them is trying to crowd them out. What is the result? This fear and suspicion interferes with their advancement to the place above them. Instead of looking back and thinking of the men after their place they should instead, look about to the man above them, and be prepared for an advance when there is a vacancy. Perfect yourself in your line of work and you need never have any fear of others' rivalry. There is always room at the top for the man or woman who has stamped the trademark of individuality, superiority and distinctiveness upon his or her work. Such a one need have no fear of the usurpation of his rights by others. His position is assured.—Orison Sweet Marden in the New Success.

THE STRAND

Ralph Ince, in presenting his latest Selznick production, "Red Foam," which will be seen at the Strand theater tonight, has brought to light an unusual story of small town life. The basic structure of "Red Foam" is said to be surcharged with vibrant appeal, and the general atmosphere of the plot creates a feeling of expectancy for the tremendous climax which is to come.

It chronicles faithfully the workings of a small town community, and the resultant clash that develops in the unfolding of the plot is declared to reveal Mr. Ince at his best as a director of really human photoplays.

Zena Keefe, who plays the leading feminine role in the picture, is said to have greater opportunities than she has hitherto had for striking characterization. Other members of the cast include Huntley Gordon, Harry Tighe, Freeman Barnes, Peggy Worth, John Butler and Daniel Hays.

The author, William H. Hamby, is known because of his regular and frequent contributions to the leading fiction magazines. Edward Montagne dramatized the story from the original of the same name, which was published in the Saturday Evening Post.
