

VEXING SHEEP DIP QUESTION YET UNSETTLED

Dr. J. C. Exeline, chief inspector of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, for the Northwest, finished his conference with J. H. Carnahan, secretary of the Klamath Wool Growers association, last night, regarding the order issued by the California authorities demanding that all sheep which will range this winter on California land be dipped before a bill of health can be issued. This order vitally affects the Oregon bands which are annually taken to the winter range in the southern state.

Dr. Exeline stated that a conference was held about November 1 with Dr. J. P. Iverson, chief inspector for the United States Animal Bureau in California, with Dr. MacKellar, chief of the state veterinarians for California and Dr. W. H. Lytle, Oregon chief veterinarian, at Sacramento relative to the lifting of the dipping order as the Oregon bands were free from scab after a most careful recent examination, but the state veterinarian of California was firm in his order on dipping all bands, whether California or Oregon sheep, in fact any bands which would winter in that state from any place in the west.

J. H. Carnahan stated this afternoon that he had just received a telegram from United States Senator Robert N. Stanford at Washington, D. C., where the matter was taken up with the chief inspector of the animal bureau. The telegram read that a conference was being arranged between the two state veterinarian associations and the federal inspection department and that an effort to compromise the matter would be made. Bills of health were ready to be issued at any time, the telegram read.

Secretary Carnahan stated that he felt much encouraged over the outlook and that he still believed a waiver of the rule might be made. The dipping order if enforced would be a matter of great expense as well as dangerous at this season of the year, Carnahan said.

MOONSHINERS WANT QUICK ACTION; PLEAD GUILTY

Ed McGee and Clarence Morton, arrested Sunday morning by Sheriff Low on the charge of transporting intoxicating liquor in violation of the federal statutes, when arraigned yesterday afternoon before United States Commissioner Bert Thomas, stated they would waive formal hearing and when taken to Portland would plead guilty to the charges preferred against them. "What's the use of fighting when the sheriff caught us with the goods—we're guilty and we might as well face the music and get it over with," McGee told the commissioner.

MEXICAN TO BE TRIED FOR BOOTLEGGING AMONG INDIANS

Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in United States Commissioner Bert Thomas' office, Joseph Garcia, a Mexican who resides in the old jail at the Agency, will be tried for having intoxicating liquor in his possession also with the introduction and sale of liquor on Indian territory following his wild escapade October 28.

Garcia and three friends took a Ford car and pulled off pranks in the streets of Chilquin, finally ending up in a ditch near there, injuring Billy Huff, the prize fighter who was scheduled to meet Bob Ross here November 12.

"SPIRIT"-GUIDED CHAUFFEURS LAND IN DURANCE VILE

Barney Rice and George Folsom decided to change residences yesterday so they packed all their belongings into a "Restwell trunk" and loaded it onto an automobile. Before time came for them to move into the new quarters they invoked the aid of "spirits" to give them pep in moving. Too many drinks were taken, the police say, and when the two men started on their journey, the machine under their guidance and impelled by the "spirits" attempted to make delivery on top of a wood delivery wagon near Ninth street. Chief Wilson and McLaughlin stopped further proceedings and took the "spirit"-guided chauffeurs to jail. Yesterday Judge Leavitt imposed a fine of $12 or the alternative of twelve days in jail on Folsom and his companion was called upon to part with $7.50 or spend three days behind the bars.

Dr. Edward Allen Pierce, of Portland, will deliver a lay address in the chamber of commerce rooms at 4 p. m. tomorrow. He is a tuberculosis specialist and has just held a tuberculin clinic at Klamath Agency.
