AT THE STRAND

Creighton Hale will be seen at the Strand tonight in "The Black Circle," a play that will hold the audience on the tiptoe of expectancy from start to finish. It has many gripping scenes, not the least thrilling of which is a fight scene that is said to be even more thrilling than the famous battle in Rex Beach's "The Spoilers." In addition to this there will be two comedies.

For Sunday Manager White has secured the modernized version of "East Lynne." The presentation of this picture in Klamath Falls will be the first production in any city in the country under twenty-five thousand population. Those who have seen the old-time play or read Mrs. Henry Wood's famous novel, will miss a rare treat if they fail to see this wonderful picture, built on the story which has held the interest of American readers for sixty years.
