YOUNG HERO SAVES BABY FROM FLAMES

THE DALLES, Ore., Nov. 30. — Ten-year-old Harold Schaffer, by his heroism, saved the life of his 6-month-old nephew when the home of his sister, Mrs. F. C. Haysom, in this city, was burning to the ground.

The baby was asleep in the bedroom of the house, his mother having gone to a neighbor's house for a short time. Harold, who was in the yard, managed to reach the baby as the fire became general throughout the house, and brought it to safety. The infant was burned about the head, arms and hands, but the burns are not considered serious. The boy was unharmed. The fire started when an airtight stove exploded. The house, a small one, and its contents were entirely destroyed.

VAUDEVILLE HITS AT THE STRAND TONIGHT

At the Strand tonight there will be an unusually attractive program. Two big vaudeville acts are scheduled in addition to the presentation of J. Warren Kerrigan in "No 99". In this production, one of the best in which this star has ever appeared, he makes a transition from an escaped convict to a drawing room guest appraised in the height of fashion sets the ball of action rolling in "No 99." And, by the way, the prison garb worn by the star is the identical outfit left by Carlisle, the notorious bandit, in his dash for freedom.

The vaudeville bill is a strong one, presenting Haley and Trebor in their clever skit "Work" in which there is plenty of snappy patter all through the number. Some exceptionally catchy songs and their efforts along various lines are worth while.

The other attraction, Jack Polk, is an eccentric comedian of winning personality who is still "polking" along, furnishing a cyclone of laughter wherever he halts.

COLUMBIA HIGHWAY ICE BOUND AND BEND STILL ISOLATED

Stage From Klamath Falls Warmly Welcomed When Newspapers and Telegrams Are Delivered

Klamath Falls has suffered less perhaps, than any other city in Oregon from the effects of the recent storm. In fact, beyond the usual rains and the sliding seals which the thermometer usually maintains at this season of the year, the weather conditions can be accurately termed, normal. Other cities have been less fortunate.

For the first time since a week ago Saturday night, when wires went down in Deschutes canyon and mail service was suspended with the stalling of the Oregon Trunk train at Frieda, says the Oregonian, Bend heard directly from the outside world last night. A wireless station installed by C. G. Seward and Carl Austin, radio operator, for the Bulletin, a local daily, picks up messages sent out from North Head, Marshfield and other coast points relative to storm conditions. Attempts to send to Portland were unsuccessful, but will be resumed tonight.

Although 70 miles of drifts covering railroad lines in the Deschutes canyon remained to be pierced before traffic can be resumed, railroad men are predicting that the regular schedule can be resumed early next week. Engines are being used in ridding the drifts from the south and are within a half mile of the train stalled at Frieda. Newspapers which were brought in by the same stage, Klamath Falls were eagerly bought up, the demand exceeding the supply. One hundred and fifty telegrams were brought in by the same stage, having been detoured to Klamath Falls by the Western Union, as the only means of reaching Bend.

Autos, $200,000 Worth

Opening of the Columbia river highway, now icebound between Bridal Veil and Hood River, and the rescue of more than $200,000 worth of automobiles caught in the storm of a week ago and abandoned by drivers depends largely upon weather conditions during the next couple of weeks. Warm weather, accompanied by rains and warm winds in the gorge, will cut down the huge ice piles over the highway to a point where they can be combated by steam shovels, trucks and crews of men. If the weather is freezing, however, or if more snow should fall, the gorge will be icebound tighter than ever, and automobile owners may as well get comfortable before their hearths at home and wait for next spring's thaw.

Half of Portland Phones

Normal conditions in rail and utility service, with exception of telephones, ruled normal in Portland yesterday for the first time since November 19, when the silver thaw began. Telephone service was mending rapidly. According to C. E. Hickman, commercial superintendent of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company, half of the 7,000 telephones which remained out of order Saturday night had been placed in order by last night. By the last of this week it was expected that telephone service would be normal within and without the city.

The Western Union is operating normally north, south and west. With the exception of a short space in the Columbia Gorge there was wire communication to the east. All points in eastern Oregon could be reached.

Railroads Recovering Quickly

The Southern Pacific operated normally yesterday on its main line section and small branches.

All railroads out of Portland were operating normally yesterday. The Union Pacific, whose main line through the Columbia river gorge was cleared Saturday night, was running both passenger and freight trains through yesterday. The Bend branch still was snowbound. A rotary snowplow was working yesterday to clear this line at the earliest opportunity.

The Spokane, Portland & Seattle line continued full service on the main line and all branches with the exception of the Oregon Trunk Goldendale branch and electric cars across the Santiam river. The prediction was made that the Oregon Trunk track would be cleared today.

OREGON COUPLE MUCH PLEASED

PORTLAND MAN AND WIFE SAY THEY ARE DELIGHTED WITH RESULTS FROM TAKING TANLAC.

"I started taking Tanlac when I saw the good it was doing my wife, and now both of us are enjoying a good health as we ever did," said C. Ingraham, Box 172, R. F. D. No. 1, Linton, Oregon, a valued employee of the Standard Oil Company in Portland.

"Rheumatism and stomach trouble had the best of me and it was beginning to look like nothing would reach my case. I had the keenest kind of pains in my shoulders and arms and at times it seemed like every joint in my body was aching. I could hardly work. In fact lots of mornings I didn't feel like leaving the house at all. My appetite was gone and what little I ate did me no good. I gradually lost weight and hardly had any strength or energy at all.

"My wife, who had been in bad health a long time, started getting fine results from Tanlac, so I commenced taking it myself and I'm now feeling as fine as a fiddle. The rheumatic pains have left me and when I get up of mornings now I'm ready for a big day's work. My appetite is a corker and everything I eat agrees with me. I have picked up ten pounds in weight and feel strong and healthy once more. My wife and I are both well pleased with Tanlac and are all the time recommending it to some of our friends."

Tanlac and Tanlac Vegetable Pills are sold by druggists everywhere.
