NEW YORK HAS FIRST NEGRO ALDERMAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—From catboy to colon and newspaper publisher—traveling altogether "on his own"—this epitomizes the career of John W. Harris, the only negro member-elect of the New York Board of Aldermen, which will be seated January 1.

Born in Topeka, Kansas, and reared in the saddle on a large cattle ranch, Harris easily felt the urge for higher things. The little circumstance of being broke did not prevent him from coming east. He worked his way. Upon his arrival, he also found ways and means of working his way through Harvard University, being graduated in 1907 and attending Harvard Law School for two years.

Encouraged by the managing editor of a Boston newspaper for which he had written special articles, Harris determined to abandon the law for journalism, and at the instigation of Booker T. Washington, came to New York to start a newspaper for his own race. He founded and now is editor and owner of the New York News, a paper confined largely to colored people, but covering the local field.

Two years ago he determined to seek office as alderman from the Harlem "black belt." He was elected and his work for the interests of his community earned him reelection at the recent municipal election.
