INTEREST AROUSED IN QUESTION OF WINTER FISHING

The Klamath Sportsmen's association is taking an active interest in the question of winter fishing, also the extension of the fishing season up to February 15, of each year. William McNeally, Secretary of the association, said today while discussing the proposed visit of A. E. Burghdoff, state game warden, who is expected here about December 20. McNeally said that a letter from Game Warden Burghdoff announced that F. M. Brown, chief game warden, might substitute for him in case other business matters interfered, but that Mr. Brown would carry authority to enter into any hunting or fishing proposition which the association might care to advance in the interest of sport.

Much Discussion

There has been much discussion relative to the continuation of the fishing season up to February 15, when the spawners such as trout make for their favorite grounds to spawn. The fish in both upper and lower Klamath lake as well as Lake Ewauna are now just beginning to get the "right fish taste" and most people prefer to eat them after the flesh had hardened, as it does in cold waters.

The present law closes all streams and lakes which do not flow or connect directly through to the tidewater of the Pacific ocean, seriously hindering the fisherman. As the Klamath river is the only stream in this county which is connected directly with the Pacific, fishermen must do their angling in its waters entirely.

Question of Link River

The question of Link river was discussed among sportsmen and while it is officially designated as "Link River," still it is but a connecting link with upper Klamath lake and Lake Ewauna. Lake Ewauna itself is construed to be only an enlargement of "backwater" of the Klamath river. Burghdoff is expected to really define what bodies the two waters belong to, whether they are part of Klamath River or are separate distinct bodies. Should the construction be placed on upper Klamath lake as a distinct body, then Williamson river would be closed to fishermen. If it is part of Klamath river, then the fishermen can angle all winter in this splendid water. Williamson river flows into Upper Klamath Lake near Rocky Point.

Law Is Clear

The law clearly defines tributaries flowing into the above mentioned bodies and forbids fishing in them after the closed season. Only the body of water directly connecting with the tidewater outlet can be fished in and the local game wardens were instructed to pick up violators of the law.

Another matter which will be threshed out is the proposed ruling relative to placing the Indian Reservation under the state game laws, but not so that any Indian who is a ward of the government would be affected by the ruling. The ruling would effect white sportsmen only who fish in reservation waters. An Indian ward can both hunt and fish all the year around according to treaty rights given them by the government. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington D. C. has been requested to make a ruling on the question of including the reservation under Oregon game laws. A reply will soon be coming from the east. Secretary McNeally stated.

Storm Does Damage

Burghdoff advised Secretary McNeally that the recent big rain and snow storms in the north had done much damage to the state hatcheries at various places and he was supervising the repairs.

The sportsmen's association plan to enter into detailed discussion on many hunting and fishing questions relative to the improvement of both propositions. The meeting of the association will be announced later.

JUVENILE COURT

SPANKS SMALL BOY

EUGENE, Or., Dec. 15.—"If parents can't whip their children the county will do it for them," says Colonel J. J. Harbough, Indian war veteran and juvenile officer of Lane county.

The colonel took a 13-year-old Russian boy into the basement of the court house, turned him over a barrel and applied the rod. The lad, who is accused of forging a $3.50 check on a Springfield bank, has promised to be good. He has been ordered to report to the juvenile officer at 10 o'clock every Saturday morning for further treatment.

ON CHRISTMAS DAY

AND THE LONG DAYS AFTER

The long dreary part of Winter seems to come after Santa Claus has visited us. Those snowy, blowy nights and wet sleety days are certainly depressing, but if you have plenty of home music to cheer you up it makes a world of difference.

We have several good pianos at eight dollars a month payments, and Victrolas as low as three.

Why put in a miserable Winter when you can easily make this a Musical Christmas?
