THE ROAD BONDS

DIRECTORS of the Chamber of Commerce, upon assurance that the expenditure of the proceeds from Klamath County's $800,000 road bond issue, if the voters sanction the bonds, will be protected by certain definite provisions to assure economy, have endorsed the road bonds, and their lead appears a safe one for every citizen to follow.

The Herald has always maintained that transportation is the cornerstone of the foundation for Klamath's future prosperity, and the public may count upon The Herald's support for the road bond issue, if the conditions laid down in the statement published elsewhere in this issue, are followed.

We believe that good roads are worth all they cost, providing that good business judgment is shown in construction, and that as an investment of public money they yield immediate and large returns.

The strict pursuance of the policy outlined in the chamber of commerce statement assures the people of Klamath county a sound administration and application of the bond fund.

As it points out the $90,000 now annually spent on repair and extension of dirt roads will retire the bond issue, and there is no reason that taxes should be a penny higher on account of the road bonds.

No dollar of the county's money is to be spent until a state dollar matches it, and no bonds are to be sold beyond the state's ability to meet the county fund on an even basis.

Wherever the highway system serves national forests or parks the federal government doubles the combined state and county fund. In Klamath county this means that much of the road system planned under the bond issue will cost the county only twenty-five cents for every dollar expended. Where the road benefits do not extend to the federal reserves, the state and county share on a fifty-fifty basis.

There can be no argument against Klamath county's need for better highway connections with its neighbors and better highways to serve its own rural population in transporting their products from farm to railway.

The saving in time and cost of hauling alone will return to farmers a large portion of their share in the road's costs.

The increase in tourist travel that will follow the building of a good highway system will be of general benefit. It will put more cash into the merchant's till and some of the travelers will pause to become developers of our agricultural resources and investors in manufacturing and business enterprises.

At this particular time the road construction that would follow the bond issue would provide work for many who need work. On this point the argument is on all fours with the general necessity foreseen by public officials everywhere to do all public construction possible during the restoration of conditions to a pre-war basis.

From the chamber of commerce statement it appears that Klamath County can vote road building bonds as early and economically now as at any foreseeable time in the future, the roads are needed now.

The Herald, under the definite conditions laid down, favors the bond issue.

DRESS UNIFORMITY

KLAMATH COUNTY high school girls seem to have started something in their recent movement for dress reform. The first outside comment to come to the Herald's attention is an editorial in the Sacramento Union as follows:

Dress reform, such as the girls of the Klamath Falls, Oregon, high school have put into effect, is always sure to attract much attention at the time, but no one seems to take the trouble to make a check a few months afterwards to see how enduring the downward revision in style has been.

Any efforts to stamp out extravagance in dress and extravagance in bodily embellishments are to be commended, especially when they appear to arise from the voluntary action of the students themselves as was the case in Oregon.

It is a pity that uniformity in dress must be resorted to. So many pleasing styles, well within the limits of good taste and economy, are to be found through which the buoyant youth of high school age can find expression that only milds and skirts seem somewhat severe. It is no doubt resorted to as an alternative to an unwelcome censorship of individual dresses.

The last of the experiment will come in the length of time for which this new departure will be observed. If within a short while there is a slipping back to a few variations from the established mode, much good will have resulted. Temperance, rather than uniformity, is what the students are really endeavoring to attain.

In the meantime, no harm will come if high school student bodies in California look themselves over to see if there is need for similar action in this state.

MISS NELLIE COLLINS

I have been thankful a thousand times that I took Tanlac when I did. It is simply wonderful the way it has benefited me," said Miss Nellie Collins, 1339 Connecticut Ave., Bridgeport, Conn.

"About eighteen months ago my appetite began to fail and I seemed to be going into a decline. Nothing agreed with me and my nerves were keyed up to such a high pitch I was actually afraid they would snap in two."

"But Tanlac has brought about a wonderful change in my condition. My appetite is almost ravenous, my digestion is perfect and I feel as well and strong as I ever did in my life. I never dreamed there was as grand a medicine as Tanlac in the world."

NOTE—The International Proprietors' Co., distributors of Tanlac, have on file in their offices at Atlanta, Georgia, over fifty thousand signed statements from representative men and women from every State in the Union and every Province in Canada. Many of these are from prominent people in this city and section and have been previously published in this paper.
