A GOOD THING

THE Klamath Amateur Athletic association is off to a flying start and the best wishes of the Herald are with it. It fills a need in the community that has long existed. Several unsuccessful attempts have been made in the past to organize an association for the development of amateur athletes and to provide equipment for a gymnasium in which the "tired business man" could find simultaneous relaxation for muscles and mind, but they died a-borning. But this is a lusty child and with a little careful attention in the critical period of infancy will grow to great things.

A course in clear sportsmanship in youth is invaluable training for a successful career later on. The youngster who learns in the boxing arena, on the wrestling mat, in the basketball court, or on the baseball diamond, to carry the struggle to the utmost limits of endurance with the odds against him, to use his brain as well as muscle but to scorn the cunning trick, and to accept defeat gracefully, will be better fitted to assume the responsibilities that a few more years will place upon him.

He will be a better craftsman if he works for others. The agitator and bolshevik will find him poor material for proselytism.

If, on the other hand, he is an employer of others, he will be fair in his treatment, and his plant is not likely to suffer loss of efficiency from constant labor turnover and labor unrest.

As a business man he will be a clean and honest competitor; the type that does not seek by trickery to take another's business but is constantly striving to develop new business of his own, continually constructing and never destroying.

In public life he seems to be a politician and will be satisfied with nothing short of statesmanship. He will be an unshakable pillar in the tower of national safety.

To professional life he will bring a cleaner code of ethics, and the pulpit will not suffer, in our individual opinion, if he should be ordained.

Love England or hate her, but admit that the lessons taught on British cricket downs have turned the tide in many a losing fight, when British arms strove for the expansion of Britain's dominion.

And when an Englishman sets his stamp of disapproval upon any action that may involve the slightest taint of dishonor, the most trifling taking of unfair advantage, in the brief phrase: "It isn't cricket."

German trenches became untenable under the showers of grenades hurled by Yankee arms trained in sandlot baseball, and the world breathes free today because American boys, trained in clean sport from their beginnings, held life and limb and worldly advancement lightly because of the ideals gained in that training.

Klamath needs citizens who have been taught to be sparing of words, men who will let their deeds speak for them, it needs men who keep cool heads when the battle is hottest, and emerge from every contest, win, lose or draw, with temper unruffled, neither puffed up by victory nor cast down by defeat.

The organization that has started with such fair prospects of success deserves general support, and if it develops along the clean lines on which it has started the Herald predicts it will go far and be a big factor in future development.

ARBUCKLE CASE

ARBUCKLE, as far as the law is concerned, is probably a free man. If the state of California so elects, he may be tried until an agreement is reached by some future jury, but the state has failed twice to convict, and both interest and evidence was noticeably weaker at the second trial than at the first.

Morbidly feeds upon fresh scandal, and time has taken the edge from interest in the obese actor's plight. He has ceased to be first page material. It is but a step to oblivion.

For a time Arbuckle may live on the fruits of his notoriety. There is a certain class of people who will flock to see the comedian, turned tragedian by trick of fate, in person or pictures, drawn by morbid curiosity.

But their interest will quickly wane. The audiences will dwindle, for the simple reason that life is maintained by cleanliness, and the ascendancy of the unclean brings decadence and death.

In brief time the curtain will ring down on Arbuckle for the last time. What might have been a great career will have become fetid carrion, which life hurries from sight with as little ostentation as possible.

The ability of two juries to agree matters little. The high court of public opinion will write the final judgment.

"U. P. TRAIL" TONIGHT AT THE STRAND THEATRE

last night, and which drew a large audience, will be repeated tonight. It deals with one of the most fascinating episodes in the history of the West, the opening of the first transcontinental line of railroad, linking the East and the West. The scenes in the construction camps are intensely interesting, depicting the life of denizens of the half-world who followed the blazing of the trail to the West, and made of these construction camps, veritable hells on earth. A type of gambler, not often seen in screen portrayals, is depicted in Place Hough, who, notwithstanding his questionable calling, still clings to his early principles of honor, making of him a fascinating, if not altogether lovable character.

Two new comedies are also shown, making a decidedly interesting program.

MOUNT LAKE

On Wednesday, January 25, the Ladies' Aid gave Mrs. Charley Latta a surprise dinner. About 35 ladies and 12 children were present. Mrs. Latta expects to move soon to a place they have purchased about four miles from here, near the Lost River dam. The Ladies' Aid will hold its next meeting at Mrs. H. D. Morrison's, and all are asked to wear their aprons, for there is work to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Griffith entertained Mr. and Mrs. Will Cheyne and family at 6 o'clock dinner on Wednesday evening of last week. Miss Fricke gave her lesson to the Hygiene club at Mrs. H. D. Morrison's Thursday afternoon. Two more lessons will finish up this course. The ladies feel they are being well benefitted by attending these meetings.

were well attended. Mrs. John Hunneutt served dinner to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Griffith and Gerald West on Sunday. In honor of their fifth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Will Cheyne served six o'clock dinner to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kaylor, Miss Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Griffith and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Johnson and family. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Booth spent Sunday at Ira Orens. Mr. and Mrs. Marion Green and small son were visitors at Stephen Griffith's Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde moved to their home near Lost River dam Wednesday. Tom Watters delivered thirteen hundred fat lambs to Midland on Friday.

PRESIDENT APPROVES BILL ON DESCHUTES

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4.—The president has approved the Snodgrass bill for the exchange of land within the Deschutes national forest or within six miles, which consummates a long battle to adjust unsatisfactory boundaries.

Freedom of Knees

School officials at Newark, N. J., in righteous wrath have ordered high school girls not to wear their own. They said freedom of the knees was upsetting discipline. So now the girls don't—in school. But outside—well, these Newark high school girls posed this picture to show what the school officials objected to.
