BORAH CLASHES WITH LODGE ON 4-POWER PACT

Raises Point of U. S. Obligation to Enforce Treaty Terms

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 11.—The consideration of the four-power Pacific treaty, one of the seven laid before the senate yesterday by the president, was begun today by the senate foreign relations committee, which after a lengthy discussion, adjourned to Tuesday.

Senator Lodge, after the session, said it was possible the committee would not consider the seven treaties at one time, but would report one at a time.

Borah and Brandegee, who has been inclined to oppose the four-power treaty, raised points as to the moral obligation of the United States to use force in its observance of the treaty terms. "Judge vigorously reiterated his contention that there is no obligation to use force, and only an obligation for a discussion in event any question should arise challenging the four powers' insular rights in the Pacific."

Considerable democratic support for the four-power treaty was reported.

"The president, having transmitted the arms conference treaties to the senate, plans to turn his attention toward quick action on relief legislation for the mercantile marine," said Chairman Lasker of the United States shipping board, after a conference with the president. "The chief executive is extremely interested in the marine situation," said Lasker, "and expects to submit his recommendations to congress within two weeks."

LANDS NOT TO OPEN

Director Davis Says Law Does Not Permit Tule Lake Homesteads

Tule Lake lands will not be thrown open to homesteads, as requested by the Chamber of Commerce in a joint telegram to the secretary of the interior, until the program for diking and drainage has been carried out, according to a letter received by the Chamber of Commerce from Congressman C. N. McArthur, which contains a letter to him from A. P. Davis, director of reclamation.

Davis points out the opening of the lands would not be in accord with the law, which provides, "that no entry shall be hereafter made and no entryman shall be permitted to go upon land, reserved for irrigation purposes until the secretary of the interior shall have established the unit of acreage and fixed the water charges and the date when the water can be supplied and made public announcement of the same."

"Consideration must also be given to a comprehensive plan for necessary diking and drainage of these lands to safeguard the lower elevation lands, which work will require approximately $300,000 before they will be in condition to be opened for homestead entry," Davis' letter states.

"Relative to your suggestion that the lands be opened to entry rather than leased," Davis points out, "we may add that by leasing them the lands will be improved for agricultural purposes and be more valuable for the settler, and also that some revenue will be produced for the project. These leases, of course, are temporary in nature, and subject to cancellation as soon as the land is in condition for opening to homestead entry."

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of John Farnell on a complaint filed by Wm. Gilmore which charges the larceny of between 500 and 600 poker chips, 15 decks of cards, and a 38 caliber revolver during the raid led by Farnell on a rooming house at 1021 Main street last Sunday morning. The warrant is in the hands of the sheriff who is awaiting Farnell's return from the reservation, where he is said to have gone on business.

The poker chips are valued by the plaintiff at 20 cents each and the total value of the property is placed at $20. Wm. Marx, attorney for Gilmore, stated that the actual value of the property is $195. He said the warrant called for the seizure of H. G. Gilmore only, and that no mention was made of the other property in the return of the warrant.

Gilmore will be given a hearing in the justice court at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon on charges of maintaining a nuisance. He was arrested on a second warrant after the original warrant was contested by Gilmore and Bert C. McDonald, who also was named, but who was not arrested.

BANKS CLOSED MONDAY

Banks will close Monday in observance of Lincoln's birth day. The actual date this year falls on Sunday, but the law provides for the observance of the day following as a holiday.

Public offices will also close. C. I. Roberts, chairman of the Merchant's Bureau said that business houses had taken no steps toward closing, as the day is not usually observed as a business holiday.

The state school law does not make the day a holiday, but provides that a portion of the school session shall be devoted to appropriate exercises commemorating the memory of Lincoln, and these provisions will be followed by local schools, said J. P. Wells, city superintendent.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN 1809-1865

ABRAHAM LINCOLN BORN OF PIONEER ENGLISH QUAKERS

"You can fool all of the people some of the time, and some of the people all of the time; but you can not fool all of the people all of the time."—Lincoln.

Abraham Lincoln, 16th president of the United States, was born in Hardin county, Kentucky, February 12, 1809. He died in Washington, D. C., April 15, 1865, of wounds received at the hands of John Wilkes Booth, who shot Lincoln as he sat in a box at Ford's theatre on the evening of April 14.

Lincoln's ancestors were English Quakers, who settled in America in the 17th century. His grandfather, Abraham Lincoln, a man of property, removed from Virginia to Kentucky about 1780 with three sons, Thomas, the youngest, learned the carpenter's trade, and married on June 12, 1805, Nancy Hanks, a handsome young woman of lowly condition but possessing qualities of intellect and character above the average.

From this union came Abraham Lincoln, an outstanding figure in the world's history, a man whose remarkable character has been an example to all succeeding generations.

Lincoln's father could not read or write, his mother could read but not write; yet from these pioneers the boy inherited the qualities that were to make him beloved by all who knew him and respected even by his enemies.

At the age of 20, Abe Lincoln, as he was called, had grown to extraordinary stature, nearly six feet 4 inches, and his great muscular strength was the talk of the neighborhood. He had developed his native vein of humor, which afterward made him famous. From the life of a woodman he turned to flatboating, making a voyage down the Mississippi to New Orleans and back with one companion.

Entering into the practice of law, Lincoln soon came interested in politics. The Lincoln-Douglas joint debate of 1858 has become historic. Lincoln had become a candidate for a seat in the United States Senate, but this debate was more than a contest between two rivals for that position. The discussion was one in which the whole nation was deeply concerned. It was a critical moment in the long-drawn struggle between North and South over slavery, and public feeling ran high. Lincoln was the strongest man in the Republican party, and Douglas was the recognized leader of the Democratic party. Lincoln threw down the gauntlet in a letter asking Douglas to divide time with him and address the same audiences in the coming canvass.

In the debate that followed Douglas carried the crowd and won much applause, while Lincoln left the deeper impression. Douglas indulged in personalities while Lincoln held to a high moral ground, and appealed to reason and conscience.

The immediate result of these debates was Douglas' election as senator. The far-sighted Lincoln looked ahead to the contest for the presidency, assured that Douglas could not win in 1860.

Lincoln was made the nominee of the party of freedom, when the Republican national convention met in Chicago on May 16, 1860. He was elected president at the polls by a wide majority, the electoral college vote standing 180 for Lincoln, 72 for Breckenridge, 39 for Bell and 12 for Douglas.

With his inauguration the following March, succeeding events made Lincoln the world's outstanding figure. Bitterly criticized by his opponents, he remained steadfast in his purpose to end slavery. He was nominated for a second term and elected by an overwhelming majority, a tribute from the people indicating that they were with him conclusively. His second inaugural was on March 4, 1865.

The Civil War was drawing to a close at this time, and Lee's surrender came at Appomattox on April 9, 1865. With the work of reconstruction just starting, Lincoln's remarkable career was ended by the fanatic, Booth. His tragic end as well as his public services had gained him a place in the hearts of his countrymen not second to that of Washington, and in the estimation of many he was regarded as the greatest of Americans.

HOOVER IN ROW WITH RUSSIAN FAMINE RELIEF

Committee Would Refute Charges 200 Organizations Operating Here

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—Executives of the American Committee for Russian Famine Relief today wired President Harding a request for an opportunity to "meet and refute" the charges made by Secretary Hoover that over 200 such organizations operating in this country were "frankly communistic."

The telegram declared that millions of children in Russia will die unless every available legitimate relief agency is utilized, and "that we think it a crime against humanity to halt our wide-spread machinery halted because of a merely unfounded suspicion."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 11.—

A full report of the progress being made all over the world in the relief of famine in Soviet Russia has been prepared for President Harding by Secretary Hoover. The report, Secretary Hoover said today, included work being done in Russia by foreign organizations as well as associations in this country.

In its discussion of the relief organizations in this country, the secretary declared, the report covered certain associations which have been raising money ostensibly for possible connection with the Soviet government. According to Director Burns of the bureau of investigation of the justice department, a searching investigation of the activities of some organizations is being made.

President Harding is expected to make public Hoover's report soon. It is understood, however, that both Secretary Hoover and Burns have for some time been delving into the activities of organizations collecting funds in behalf of famine-stricken Russia. Many inquiries have come to the justice department and one angle said to be causing concern is the use of names of prominent persons by these organizations in their campaign for funds.

Possible connection of some of these organizations with the Soviet authorities is said to have given rise to the belief in some quarters that a chain of communistic societies, closely allied to the bolsheviks, was being established under the guise of famine relief machinery.

DEPOSITORS ORGANIZE

Committee Appointed to Serve During First State Liquidation

W. H. Klingenberg, George Ulrich and J. C. Breckenbrough were appointed last night at the meeting of depositors of the First State and Savings bank as a committee to represent the depositors during the bank's liquidation.

This committee will co-operate with the committee, consisting of L. L. Cagham, R. C. Bunnell and J. H. Hrivl, recently appointed by the stockholders, and the state banking department during the winding up process.

It was the sense of the depositors' meeting that their interests demanded that due care be taken to safeguard the community interest and therefore no steps would be taken to hasten collections where borrowers showed an honest disposition to repay the loans. It was the consensus of opinion that every facility should be afforded the bank's debtors to make good and not to seek to distress them with impossible conditions.
