Here lies the body of Bill McPhieffe. He tried to drive and kiss his sweetie.

Stephen Jones died Easter morn. He drove his car while full of corn.

Here lies a man who worked and toiled. Then drove to town and came back booted.

Remember that old parlor out home, with the blinds drawn, hair-cloth furniture, old easel sittin' in the corner with grandpa's picture on it, and the way you felt when Ma sent you in there to get something after night had fallen?

FLAPPER SECTION OF AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE A-FLUTTER

(By The Associated Press). FARMINGDALE, N. Y., Feb. 17.—The exclusive young flapper section at the State Institute of Applied Agriculture was all aflutter with excitement today. There was much artful cocking of heads and preening of fine feathers. For in some way the news had gotten about that before night-fall all the good flappers, just budding into henhood, were to get beautiful young husbands, with delightful backgrounds of wealth and social position.

The fact, savoring of Asia, that the brides-to-be had never seen their future husbands didn't seem to bother the flappers. Nor did the fact that each was to share her husband with 19 others. Monogamy still is unknown in the world of White Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds and Plymouth Rocks.

Today's weddings mark the second stage of a three-year-egg laying and poultry breeding contest being conducted by B. A. Ahrens, head of the institute's poultry department.

During the last year, 999 pullets from all parts of the east have been devoting their energies solely to egg laying, and have established enviable records for themselves. The contestants entered by poultry raisers for the experiment-contest, laid 139,477 eggs in the year, or an average of 152 1/2 per pullet.

A single comb White Leghorn owned by F. J. Loveland, of New York carried off first prize with 262 eggs. Mr. Loveland's white Leghorn pen also carried off the pen prize with a total of 3,739 eggs. There were 107 pullets out of the 999 entered, that produced 200 or more eggs.

The second, or breeding phase of the contest, which starts with today's matings, will continue through March, April and May, each bride being allotted a setting of 10 eggs. The hens will not be permitted to hatch their own families, however, this detail being attended to in incubators.

Next fall, 20 pullets from each pen—one from each hen's brood as far as possible—will be selected and placed in the pens their parents occupied.

Tests as to their skill as layers and parents, conducted during the following season, will conclude the contest. The objects of the contest, which is supported by a $15,000 appropriation of the legislature and by fees from entrants are:

To encourage selection of stock and a closer study of the physical characteristics which determine a bird's producing and breeding ability.

To furnish each poultry raiser with an accurate record of eggs produced and the breeding ability of each hen entered.

To return to the farm at the end of each year some registered birds with their records of performance which may be used in establishing a definite and successful method of breeding.

And to demonstrate to poultry raisers the methods and practices in breeding and management that will lead to higher production and greater profits.

MRS. ANNA E. HUGHES

Mrs. Anna E. Hughes, 22 West Elm St., Chicago, an artist who enjoys a wide and enviable reputation for skill in china painting, in relating the facts of her remarkable experience with Tanlac, says:

"I haven't enjoyed such good health or felt so well in every way in years as I do now. Before I took Tanlac I was so run down that half an hour at my work would tire me completely out and I was actually so nervous and weak that at times the brush would fall from my hands and I would have to quit work for the rest of the day. Every night I would lie awake for hours, miserable and nervous.

"My improvement after the first few doses of Tanlac was rapid and constant. I'm happy to say I'm well and strong now and feel better than in twenty years. Tanlac deserves every word of praise I can give it."

Tanlac and Tanlac Vegetable Pills are sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

SOVIET NURSE PAY EQUAL TO LESS THAN COST OF CAKE OF SOAP

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The monthly salary of a nurse in the municipal hospital in Moscow is less than the cost of a cake of soap in that city. This striking example of the disproportion between wages and the cost of living in the Russian capital is disclosed in a report just made by a special commission sent to Russia by the Health Committee of the League of Nations.

The Commission says that a cake of soap in Moscow cost 8,500 rubles, while nurses in the city hospital were paid only 5,000 rubles a month and that they had to be content with very scanty food.

The poverty and misery that prevailed in Russia as seen in the hospitals which the commission visited made a deep impression upon the members. Nevertheless, Commission stated, there is a high state of efficiency in the municipal hospital and the commission emphasized the spirit of sacrifice displayed by those entrusted with ministering to the health of the Russian people, especially of the children.
