

The Lumber Industry

NEWS OF INTEREST TO KLAMATH LUMBERMEN

IN 1925

(By Anthony Fawer in the Oregon Journal)

Dear Sam—throughout all Christendom There's not a soul alive Who can afford to miss the show In 1925—

The most gigantically conceived, Superlatively grand And super-ultra scheme supreme That mortal ever planned.

There's one unusual feature that The visitor will see— A serum made to force the growth Of the Sequoia tree; By rubbing it upon the seed, In twelve months there appears A full-sized tree that used to take About four thousand years.

Now picture there upon the top, A Titan telescope, Surpassing all that heretofore Made up man's fondest hope, Which riveted upon the moon, Must straightway tear the veil From all its hidden mysteries Unto the last detail.

Not satisfied with this, they've hitched A cinema machine To cast these close-ups marvelous Right bang upon the screen— Upon the life of Noonties Such radiance will be shed That none will ever claim henceforth Our satellite is dead.

The telescope's already made— One night a peep I had, I saw some sawed-off looking folk In native costume clad, The Sheik O-Jib of Loony-gool Rode down a rocky trail On what looked like his faithful mule— (I couldn't see his tail).

The great Sequoia serum and The lunar movies, too, Are merely trifles 'mongst the host Of things they're going to do. In fact, dear Sam, the schemes now planned

Are really so immense, They'd make the things I've here described Appear like thirty cents!

Eastern Lumbermen on Their Way South

PORTLAND, March 1.—A special train carrying 100 retail lumbermen and members of their families from Iowa, Minnesota and other North Central states arrived Sunday morning and the party spent the day on a trip over the Columbia river highway. Monday the visitors inspected the lumber mills of the lower Willamette river and witnessed loading of export cargoes.

The lumbermen came here from Aberdeen, after inspecting logging and lumbering operations in Western Washington, and left early Tuesday for the South, making stops at Silverton, Springfield and other points in Oregon. The trip of the retail lumbermen is an annual event, similar to that of the New York and Massachusetts dealers who visited Portland last week. The excursions are organized by Eastern lumbermen's associations for the purpose of studying lumbering methods in the Northwest.

The markets of the middle western states show promise of improvement during 1922-23, according to E. C. English of Minneapolis. The purchasing power of the farming communities was seriously handicapped last year by the low price of farm product, English stated. This view of the situation also was held by Chas. R. King of Grand Rapids, Mich. A steady revival of the major manufacturing industries in the middle western states also would tend to strengthen the lumber market, according to King.

Many Perish in this Mass of Tangled Steel

Derricks were requisitioned by army rescue parties to lift the forward end of the giant airship, Roma, so the search for bodies would be unhampered. The huge steel framework was smashed and bent by the explosion, imprisoning many victims in that part of the wreck pictured here.

principal of the grades of Malin were also present. Miss Hanton, who is a fine musician rendered several vocal and instrumental pieces, Mrs. J. W. L. Smith sang two solos and with the instrumental music by one of our local girls, Miss Beth Kirkpatrick and singing by the Shasta View school, plenty of music was furnished for the evening. A spelling match between the grade pupils and married people in which nearly all participated afforded much pleasure. Mr. Smith and Mr. Hannon were called on for an impromptu debate on the subject of a county unit plan of school administration. Smith took the affirmative and Hannon the negative. Mr. Smith called on Miss Hazel Hunt, a student of the high school, for some points which she gave on the negative. Each one gave very good points and showed that it is a subject well worth giving some attention. Games were played by the children and light refreshments served which completed a very enjoyable evening for all.

The patrons of school district No. 22 met at Malin Friday to talk over the most feasible plan to pursue regarding more room for the grade school. First plan, a two room building on the cottage plan; second, completion of two rooms of the high school building to use next year, and third to build a six or eight room frame building, the latter most favorably accepted. A definite decision will be made as soon as possible.
