In Virginia two men are imprisoned in a mine, according to the public prints. They are, reports say, in a vaulted chamber, the natural temperature of which is 70 degrees. A two inch pipe has been driven through the rock to this chamber. through which food and drink are passed. Electric wires and a small electric light bulb have also been passed through the pipe. The men have plenty of fresh air, plenty of food and drink, tobacco and matches, and a light.

It may be several weeks before rescuers reach them. In the meantime the prisoners say that they are all right, and not worrying. Why should they worry? No cold weather. no taxes, no high cost of living, no dodging automobiles, or trying to start'em on cold mornings, no telephone falls in the chilly midnight, no fuss, no bother. Grub handed them daily, without having to work. It would be a little difficult for us to go down a two inch pipe, but any time the two fellers want a companion we will volunteer.
