Small Spuds Poor Seed The practice of planting whole small potatoes is a bad one when they are simply culls from the ordinary field. Why are they little? Often it is because they are diseased. Such seed will not produce many good spuds .--- O. A. C. Experiment station.

New Potato Bulletin Out

"Potato diseases in Oregon and Their Control" is the name of a 52 page bulletin just off the press and ready for free distribution. This bulletin by M. B. McKay, associate plant pathologist at the Oregon Experiment station, gives general control meas ures for all potato diseases common to Oregon with a discussion of each separate disease. This is a popular bulletin written in plain language. It will make a valuable addition to any farmer's library,-O. A. C. Experiment station.
