WHAT'S BETTER?

IN ANOTHER column The Herald publishes a letter from a correspondent, criticizing the republican party, in which he lays blame for most of the ill conditions that our political flesh is heir to on the present leaders of the party.

While he does not see it, we believe that he puts up a strong argument for the very thing that we advocate. He is blaming, not the party, or the principles of the party, but politicians, who through circumstances control the party.

We will not go to the length he does and condemn all except a select few as utterly bad; but we hold that when the people neglect their interests in government, that government naturally degenerates into the hands of politicians, instead of being under control of men carefully selected for statesmanship.

If the men who direct the party today—and this applies to any party—misrepresent the sentiment, and betray the wishes of the people, the remedy is to get other men, and to profit by experience and get better men.

If there is a better way to administer the government of this country than by party division, of course we are for it. But to say, as does a writer in the current issue of a magazine of large circulation that both leading parties have outlived their usefulness and should be scrapped—which, we take it is what our correspondent advocates in the case of the republican party—merely points out a condition. It does not advance a remedy.

There are issues as vital today as ever, was the tariff question. We, as a party, cannot expect to stand still in the midst of an ever-advancing civilization. We doubtless need modernizing. We are living in the past, content to rely too much on past glory.

Not that we should lose our reverence for the glories of the party past, our high regard for the men who have created our party heritage.

But it is a fact that we cannot live on the vicarious virtue of the past. If the republican party, or any other organization, is to survive it must prove its right to survival.

In the case of the republican party, the burden of proof rests heavily, because it is the controlling party.

We have no hesitancy in repeating our belief in the grand old party. It has stood the test of many emergencies, and will be equal to any test that may arise, or any issue, if its rank and file will rouse themselves to their individual responsibility for its organized action.

We repeat again that we deplore the present tendency to shirk individual responsibility, and to attempt the impossible task of delegating to any cult, group, or coterie, political, social, industrial, religious, or what-not, the responsibility for development of the individual conscience.

It is unfortunate that this tendency in the past has mislead us, until today our government is largely in the hands of blocs, bureaus and cliques. We present today the paradoxical spectacle of a government of the people in theory, but from a practical viewpoint a government more bureaucratic than any existing monarchy.

But there is no time for reform that is better than the present.

And, as a member of the republican party, we believe that this party can, guided by the united intelligence of its members, do better service than any new agency that theorists may conceive or experimentalists create.

It must take the highest degree of courage to confront the evils that have too long taken advantage of our negligence and are firmly entrenched in places of high political power.

It must take the highest degree of intelligence to loose them from their strategical vantage.

But it can be done, and it can best be done through the organized instrumentality of the party in power. If the party in power succeeds it justifies its continued control; if it fails, it goes down to deserved defeat. There is no way out but upward. We must abide the test, and the test should find every one of us doing our utmost to meet it successfully.

2100 VETS WANT JOBS

Portland Legion Employment Bureau Discloses Many in Need

PORTLAND, Ore., March 29.—A report on unemployment conditions in Oregon sent to Lemuel Boffes, national adjutant of the American Legion by Harry N. Nelson, adjutant of the Oregon department, disclosed the fact that there are 2100 men registered with the legion employment bureau in Portland, 900 of them badly in need of work and practically half of those registered either married or have dependents. It is a crying need, reads Adjutant Nelson's report, that some two thousand veterans of the world war are out of employment in the city of Portland alone.

Herculean efforts are being made by the American Legion with the opening of its nation-wide drive to provide "short time" and permanent jobs for its buddies. Local posts all over Oregon are co-operating with civic and fraternal organizations, business men and others to provide employment for the world war veterans. Local posts learning of positions open in the communities are urgently asked to communicate with state headquarters of the leg's n. in order that many men registered with the legion employment bureau can be sent out of town on positions.

Posts have been asked to make a survey of the unemployed in their district; cooperate with the local civic organizations; devise ways and means for finding employment for those who have no trade; get the cooperation of the labor unions; county officials and other public officials and bend every ounce of energy to help their more unfortunate comrades.

Appeals have been sent to employers throughout the state to take on additional help, and cities have been asked to inaugurate clean-up and paint up campaigns.

BARBED WIRE IN ROMANCE

SEEN AT STRAND TONIGHT

A beautiful flower grew on the other side of the fence. Robert Carr, chivalrous southern gentleman, wished to get it for his charming fiancée and crawled under the fence. It was of the barbed wire variety. He got caught and tore a long hole in his riding breeches. This disaster so embarrassed the young man that he hesitated to go to the rescue of a young woman whose horse was running away. The opportunity was seized by another and the hero, too shy to explain, is branded a coward, and later a traitor, by his sweetheart.

The novel and thrilling manner in which the young man redeemed himself makes "Fighting Through", showing for the first time in this city tonight at the Strand tonight at the Strand Theatre, a swiftly moving tale of romance and adventure, and offers E. K. Lincoln one of the best roles of his career. The story was not only written by W. Christy Cabanne, but also directed and produced by him.

NEW SPECIES OF MAN

Divorce Court Lizard Is Name Given by California Judge

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 29.—A new species has been officially catalogued and a quarantine declared against it in courtrooms by announcement here of Superior Judge J. M. Summerfield that the "divorce court lizard" must go. He said he found many persons visiting the court daily with no interest save vulgar curiosity. The court bailiff has been directed to keep a careful tab on those who come only to hear salacious tales and to invite them to leave the courtroom.

DENTISTS TO CONVEGE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 29.—Dentists to the number of ten thousand are expected to gather here next July for the annual meeting of the National Dental association. This announcement was made here recently by Dr. John P. Buckley, of Los Angeles president-elect of the association.

Letters from the People

BLAMES G. O. P. POLICY FOR DEPLORABLE CONDITIONS

Chiloquin, Oregon, March 22, 1932. Editor Herald:—Replying to editorial in your paper of March 21, about loyalty to party in power to restore equilibrium. It takes a real man to be a real American in all its true meaning. The true test of that was the 1920 campaign. The real true republicans that could be justly classed as Lincoln republicans of which there were thirty-one, the cream of your party, including Hughes, Root, Wickersham, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Hoover, and others, pleaded with such benighted republicans as you to stand behind the party then in power, to avoid the same as you are asking now for support of present party; to avoid the worst set-back civilization has ever got, industrial stagnation, ever increasing disrespect for law, and what is more alarming to a staid future safety.

The seeds of radicalism are multiplying a thousand fold. A real American then counted a hundred fold to what he counts for now. They meant for, by all means to put patriotism above partyism, as was pleaded on the floor of the senate by Senator McNary. You, in your boasting partyism and American patriotic intelligence followed Lodge, whose history shows he has always traveled in narrow, bigoted selfish grooves; who has reversed himself on every issue of consequence he has ever stood for. You are referring to a Mr. Bell as renouncing the democratic party. You forget the state and county chairmen of the republican party in California and New York, who out of patriotism renounced your party when campaign was on in 1920.

CONSERVATION

THE great national demand of today is for "conservation." The electric range can conserve more food, fuel and labor than any other household device.

IN THE United States there was used 132,000,000 tons of coal for domestic purposes. Millions of tons could have been saved if more homes had been equipped for cooking "electrically."

THE CALIFORNIA OREGON POWER CO.

Movement to Draft Geo. A. White for Next Governor of Oregon Is Launched

Dissatisfaction with the showing that has been made in dealing with Oregon's governmental affairs, and doubt that gubernatorial candidates now in the field will remedy matters, is shown in a circular letter to citizens of Oregon, signed by members of a committee organized to secure the candidacy of George A. White, state adjutant general.

The committee is composed of Judge Grant B. Dimick, of Oregon City, temporary chairman, to whom it is requested every interested citizen address a letter giving his candid opinion of White as a candidate; J. E. Dunne of Portland; George E. Halverson, mayor of Salem; Frank R. Prince, manager of the Shevlin-Hixon Lumber company at Bend; Dr. Joel C. Booth of Lebanon, and the Rev. Wm. S. Gilbert of Astoria.

The letter which has been addressed to all citizens of the state is as follows:

We are addressing you personally as a citizen of Oregon, proud of your state and interested in its welfare and good government. We are called upon to take part in the coming primary and election campaign and are deeply interested in candidates for governor, there being a number of candidates already in the field.

We believe the state has reached a crisis in its affairs that requires us to act on new lines and secure a new deal for the people of Oregon. Our state has reached the limit in high taxes, and yet we are faced with propositions for additional forms of taxation.

We believe the time has come to make a decided cut in the overhead expenses of government; to stop imposing new taxes in any form and turn the tide in the direction of tax reduction as has been done in the state of Washington, where, under the leadership of the governor, backed by loyal citizens, 72 boards and commissions were abolished; a deficit of $2,600,000 wiped out; $4,459,010.13 less taxes are being collected this year than last year.

In Oregon state treasurer Hoff's report, just published, shows total receipts for 1931 were $14,378,560.62 total expenditures $15,580,484.98, a deficit for 1931 of $1,201,924.36. By the activities of nearly one hundred boards, commissions, and taxing bodies the number of tax funds was increased from 132 to 231 the past year. Our bonded debt was increased $25,495,125 the past year and our annual interest charge increased $717,744.48. Contrast this with the record of the state north of us.

To fight the tax reduction battle we need a strong man in the executive office for the next four years. He should be brought out by those who are bearing the burdens of government as taxpayers, producers, and conducting the business and industries that give employment to labor in the development of a highly progressive commonwealth, and in that office under the constitution he should be amenable to the people direct and not be a mere agent of the top-heavy and extravagant political machinery that has been built up at their expense. Our candidate must be chosen by the people, be responsible to the people, in order to be able to fight their battles.

We have such a man in mind. We are asking from you an expression, not so much for the individual but for the principle that we have the right to command his services—the right to have the best man in the state who is free to serve the people in this crisis—a man size man who has the stalwart ability, courage, and tireless energy to say to the organized demands for more and more taxation, thus far and no farther, here we begin to unload the burden.

He refuses to be a self-made candidate. His prominence in the American Legion forbids using his position to seek political honors, but we can say to him:

We request you to serve the people of Oregon under the constitutional right we have to draft the services of any citizen, and that when you are thus called it is your duty as much to serve the people in a civic crisis as it was to volunteer in the Spanish-American war, to serve in the national guard on the Mexican border, or to mobilize the manpower of Oregon in the great world war, in every instance with credit to yourself and the state.

Will you help us to give expression to this thought, that we desire to call as our standard bearer in this campaign, Geo. A. White, the efficient head of the Oregon national guard. We believe him to be a man of untarnished reputation with no spot or blemish on his public or private life. He is 41 years old, a man who will command the respect of all elements of our state, a trained writer and an effective public speaker, capable of putting punch into his campaign, and who will create enthusiasm in the hearts of all loyal and patriotic voters.

We want immediate action in this contingency. The primaries are held May 19th. He is a republican, and more than that he is a broad-minded patriot with five years training in circumstances that tried men's souls. He has come up through military service from the ranks to positions of the highest responsibility on the general staff overseas. He will not be a military candidate or a military martinet in the state house, but he will institute high standards of ability and loyalty in the public service in every department of the state.

He has no connection with any controversies that divide the people in any section of Oregon. He stands for the new order of progressive statesmanship, to unite and harmonize the people of this state to new endeavor, and for better systems in our public affairs along the lines of the most progressive and best-governed states in the union.

34 vs. 66

Swift's Premium Ham and Swift's Premium Bacon are produced from only the best hogs. Many of the animals we buy do not furnish meat of Premium quality.

Since these are the choice cuts from the best hogs, cured and smoked in the best way, with scientific care and precision, they are naturally in great demand; but these cuts, with the loin from which pork chops come, represent only about 34 per cent of the live animal.

The remaining 66 per cent consists of the cheaper cuts, such as spare ribs, shoulders, trimmings, pigs' feet, lard, etc., and shrinkage in dressing and curing. Shrinkage is equal to one pound in each five, and has no value whatever.

That is why the prices of "Premium" Ham and Bacon and pork loins are higher than the price of the live animal.

Everybody wants them—and yet they are only about one-third of the entire weight. "Premium" Bacon alone is only about 8 per cent.

The great demand for the choicer cuts, and the smaller demand for the cheaper cuts, constitute the reason for the comparatively higher price of the one-third, and the lower price of the other two-thirds. (Some of the lower priced cuts sell at less than the per-pound price of the live animal.)

It is only by utilizing all possible by-products and exercising the utmost skill and efficiency that we are able to average a profit of a fraction of a cent a pound on all our business.

N. B. Some very delicious dishes can be prepared from the cheaper cuts.
