WORKMEN BEING IMPORTED HERE CHARGES UNION

Workers Called Off in All Branches of Industry Until Strike Ended

No members of the Timber Workers' union will be permitted to accept employment in any capacity in any branch of the lumber industry until the strike is settled, except firms working on an eight-hour basis throughout, and all men now working are ordered to immediately to quit work. This is according to a resolution adopted at a meeting Thursday night of the Timber Workers' local and endorsed Friday night by the Central Labor council, declaring unfair all firms operating on other than an eight-hour basis.

The resolution affects in particular men employed as watchmen and firemen, termed maintenance men, and results, according to President R. H. Canterbury, from an "attempt to import strike breakers to operate the mills and logging camps."

Canterbury today issued the following statement: "The sudden change of attitude of the Timber Workers regarding maintenance men has been caused by their attempt to import strike-breakers to operate the mills, factories and woods. The mere fact of this attempt to operate with strike-breakers proves false their contentions that they did not want to run the plants anyway.

"Every logging camp has now become involved in this struggle for the eight-hour day, and each and every camp attempting to operate has met with absolute failure, now being closed down 100 per cent, and the woodmen declaring no logs will be cut or supplied at any price till the entire operation of the individual employer is on an eight-hour basis.

"All small mills in the outlying districts are equally affected, and neither logs, lumber nor boxes will be produced on other than an eight-hour basis this season.

"This resolution means all that it implies: That each and every individual, without any exception, who works for these unfair firms are declared strike-breakers in the full sense of the term and will be so considered by organized labor and treated as such.

"The eight-hour day is held so precious to the workers that it will not be relinquished, be the cost what it may in the loss of time or wages. And while we are always desirous of submitting our case to an impartial board, and welcome such investigation, yet our stand for the eight-hour day remains unchanged, holding no condition can arise in industry that could justify its change to the long, harrowing, destructive nine- or ten-hour day.

"No condition must be permitted to arise in American industry that places profits above human rights and resulting in the gradual breaking down of our justly boasted citizenship, making of our great free, intelligent America a replica of the slave pens of Southern Europe and China. Any industry that cannot operate without the destruction of the American standard, should not be permitted to operate at all as a menace to this republic.

"This does not mean that we believe the statements of the em-

FIRE PROTECTION FOR FORESTS IS URGED BY HARDING

April 16-22 Named for Conservation; Last Day of Week to Be Anniversary of Arbor Day

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Conservation of the nation's timber through forest fire protection was urged today by President Harding in a proclamation urging all governors to set apart the week of April 16-22 as Forest Protection week, and the last day of the week as the golden anniversary of Arbor day. The proclamation follows:

Whereas, both through widespread annual celebration of Arbor day and through the increasing observance of forest protection week public attention has been commendably directed to the value of trees, the unnecessary waste of our diminishing forests through preventable fires, the deplorable effects of forest devastation and the need for remedial measures against depletion of an essential natural resource.

Therefore, I, Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, do urge upon the governors of the various states to designate and set apart the week of April 16-22, 1922, as Forest Protection week and the last day of that week, April 22, as the golden anniversary of Arbor day, and to request officers of public instruction of counties, cities and towns and of civic and commercial organizations to unite in thought and action for the preservation of our common heritage by planning such educational and instructive exercises as shall bring before the people the disastrous effects of the present waste by forest fires and the need of individual and collective effort to conserve the forests and increase our tree growth for ornament and use.

GERMAN WETS ACTIVE

Nation Engaged in War with Liquor Smugglers; Arrests Numerous

HAMBURG, April 8.—Germany, like America, is engaged in a war with liquor smugglers. High customs duties and a dearth of "hard liquor," instead of prohibition, is the incentive to smuggling here and the rum-runners are able to sell their illicit goods at big profits.

Captains and crews of fishing boats are doing a thriving smuggling business in all parts on the German coasts, say customs and marine officials.

Arrests of numerous skippers have not greatly interfered with the trade. Members of an organization known to have smuggled thousands of quarts of whiskey and gin into the country have been apprehended and punished but the manner in which they carried on their enterprise, believed to have been over a secret waterway, was not learned.

The offenders emphatically declined to give the authorities any information, some of them admitting they expected to continue operations as soon as they were released from jail.

The band was discovered when the skipper of one of its boats put into a small place on the Elbe and sold his cargo of whiskey. For two or three days there was an epidemic of drunkenness in the community which caused authorities to investigate and resulted in the sailor's arrest.

Fishing boats engaged in liquor smuggling meet other ships by agreement at sea and take on their illicit cargoes.

Owing to the high customs and the dearth of "hard liquor" in Germany the smugglers are able to dispose of their wares at good profits.
