ARBOR DAY

In a region famed for its timber, it is peculiar that the chief city should be so destitute of trees as is Klamath Falls. It is a condition that cries loudly for remedy.

The President of the United States has this year proclaimed April 22 as the golden anniversary of Arbor Day, and asked co-operation in its observance by the governors of all states, public officials and good citizens generally. The week, which closes April 22, is set aside by the same proclamation as Forest Protection week, to be likewise generally observed by the direction of public attention to the value of trees, the unnecessary waste that is diminishing our forests, the deplorable effects of forest devastation, and the need for remedial measures.

Oregon, as one of the few remaining heavily timbered states, will doubtless join heartily in the observance of Forest Protection week, and Klamath county, as one of the most heavily timbered areas in Oregon, should be in the van of the movement.

The Women's auxiliary is encouraging a program of planting this year. The American legion post has considered a memorial tree-lined street in honor of Klamath county's sacrifice in the world war. The public schools will doubtless join the movement, for upon the coming generation will devolve most heavily the responsibility of saving the nation's forests.

The lumber interests may be expected to take an active part, and so may the Forest Protective association, the chamber of commerce and all other agencies for civic development.

All good citizens would join in so worthy a movement, if launched in a co-operative spirit and pressed vigorously as its importance deserves, and the next week can be made one of great educational and constructive value, culminating in a generally observed day of planting trees, shrubbery and flowers on April 22.

A shaded yard and well kept lawn often marks the difference between the real home, and a house where people dwell. With the cultivation of flowers, the community cultivates the home spirit, which is the basis of our community and national prosperity.

Good citizens could attempt no more constructive work than to form and follow an active program for the observance of Forest Protection week and the golden anniversary of Arbor Day in line with recommendations of the president.

ASK OPERATORS FOR STATEMENT OF BUSINESS

of San Francisco, president and owner of the Dwight Lumber company, and the principal owner of the Big Lakes box factory of this city; A. J. Voye of the Big Lakes box factory, and C. A. Jordan of the Chiloquin Lumber company.

Dwight said he only knew of the general conditions in the industry, because he had local representatives to take care of this end of the work. Voye said he could furnish data as to operation, and for contemplated operations. He reiterated the statement that the longer hour was vital to the life of the industry.

It developed yesterday from Jordan's testimony that only yesterday a committee from the union had called off some eight-hour men in the Chiloquin district who were working on the logging railroad. He could not give the names, but said they were from Klamath Falls and from the union.

Chairman Woodward then called to the stand J. D. McCoy of the union committee, who, as secretary, signed the resolution of yesterday, to explain this action in the face of their resolution of yesterday. McCoy

Outbursts of Everett True By Condo

Coy could give no definite information on the subject, except to say that if this had been done, and he knew nothing of it prior to that time, that it was doubtless the act of the local men at Chiloquin. He admitted that on all general matters the local union had jurisdiction. He promised to bring in the facts at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Chairman Woodward stated that "there is evidence of bad faith here some place on the part of the union men, and he would like to have the facts."

Asked by Flynn this afternoon whether he thought the strikers' statement that they would take a wage cut rather than longer hours, which might result in a demand for increased wages later in event they were reduced now, a ruse, Claude Daggert, Ewauna Box company, stated that while he did not doubt the sincerity of the men, he questioned their ability to live on a lesser wage. While not outwardly agreeing with Flynn, he intimated that he held a similar belief.

When Daggert declared that the price of box shooks had dropped $6, he was asked from what price the drop came. This information he refused to give on the grounds that it might be valuable to his competitors, and that prices varied with conditions. He volunteered to tell the board in private, however, and agreed to furnish a financial statement as requested.

GOLD MINING BOOMS

Mother Lode Country to Be Scene of Extensive Operations

MOSELUMNE HILL, Calaveras County, Cal., April 12.—Mother Lode country near here will be the scene of the most extensive mining development this summer that has been experienced in 29 years, according to E. M. Browder, Los Angeles mining engineer and president of a local mining company. Many companies of this vicinity are now preparing developments which have been rendered possible by decreased mining and milling costs.

WARDEN IS ON TRIAL

Will Defend Himself Against Charge of Misappropriating Funds

HELENA, Mont., April 12.—Frank Conley, former warden of the Montana state penitentiary, entered the district court today to defend himself against charges of misappropriation during his term as prison official, property valued at approximately $200,000.

Probably no case in the history of Montana has attracted such statewide interest. Political factions of the state have lined up both for and against the former warden and it is said the results of the present suit will do more to decide issues at the coming election in November than any other one factor.

STOCK BY AIRPLANE

Sheep Transported Through Air From Elko to Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 12.—Delivery of livestock by air mail parcel post was accomplished for what is thought the first time when a sheep was recently transported through the air from Elko, Nevada, to Salt Lake, over 200 miles, for exhibit at the fifth annual Intermountain Livestock show here.

The sheep was entered in the exhibits by E. J. Milne, superintendent of the Nevada Industrial school at Elko, and was placed in a crate which was strapped in the mail pit on top of the pouches of the mail plane piloted by K. J. Unger.

According to Claron Nelson, superintendent of the western division of the air mail service here, this is the first time the service has ever undertaken the transportation of livestock.

"DE LUXE ANNIE", A CROOK PLAY, AT STRAND TONIGHT

"De Luxe Annie," Norma Talmadge's latest Selznick revival, which will be shown tonight at the Strand theatre is said to be vastly different from the average crook play. It tells the story of a finely-bred woman whose husband is interested in criminal psychology and who is herself transformed into a criminal by an accident. The crime she practices is the "de luxe" game, an adaptation of the old badger game in which the woman poses as a seller of de-luxe editions and inveigles some individual with a weakness for pretty girls, whereupon her male confederate breaks in to the scene and blackmails the victim whom he has found in an embarrassing position with his "wife."

Norma Talmadge is especially suited for the title role in this screen drama which calls for beauty, style and a high order of artistry in the star. Miss Talmadge's performance in this picture brings out every shade of emotional feeling in her portrayal of this crook part, lifting it far out of the commonplace by the force of her vivid personality as well as by the odd psychological twist of the story.

"De Luxe Annie" appeared originally as a two-part story in The Saturday Evening Post; later it was made into a play by Edward Clark and achieved considerable success in New York. It then was adapted as a screen play for Miss Talmadge.

Miss Talmadge's leading man is Eugene O'Brien, who performed a similar function in "Ghosts of Yesterday" and "By Right of Purchase" for this star.

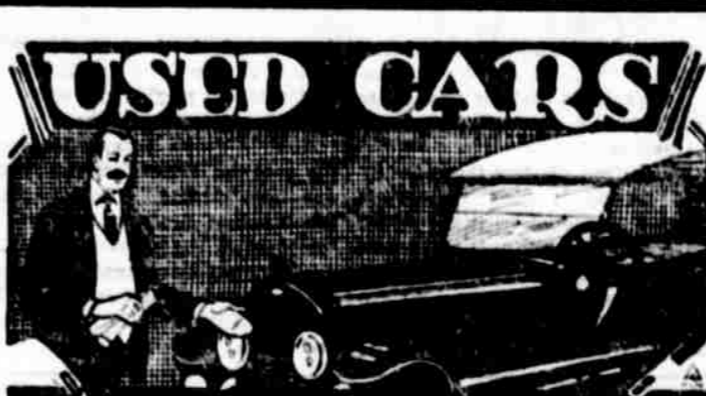

The play itself is keyed with suspense and moves swiftly from one transition to another. It is an absorbing story with a deep human interest and a tremendous surprise at the close.
