OUR OPPORTUNITY

KLAMATH'S star of promise is risen above the horizon. It now rests upon our decision whether we follow the star, or continue to pursue the will-o-the-wisps that experience has taught tumble us only into an unending morass of dissension, discord and financial loss.

Whether we shall ever see our star glow in the zenith of achievement rests with us, and the time for our decision is now.

The stand taken by the Klamath Development company lays a foundation at last for the settlement of the courthouse controversy. If we refuse to build upon this foundation, if by action or inaction we push, or permit to be pushed, to any further length this fruitless quarrel, we will deserve every scornful thing that will be said of us, and every material loss that in the future befalls us.

The past is dead and all dead things are better off forgotten. The citizens who, on either side, maintained a stand for principle are entitled to respect. But for many of today, and for all who must come hereafter to build a city, and develop a surrounding empire, there is no controversial ground remaining.

The march of progress has left the original issues far behind. We are now at a critical point, and must decide whether we wish to go forward with accelerated progress, or return to the old battlefields and try to instill the fires of fresh hatred into mouldering cadavers. A poor task for any community to engage in, and at this time a destructive task for this particular community.

There has been enough of destruction. Let us have constructive effort. Had the energies we have devoted to tearing down and holding back been devoted to building up and bearing forward, it is difficult to estimate how much further along the trail of progress this county would have been today.

But repining over the past is useless. Men worthy of the name, do not weep above the ashes of a ruined edifice. They build anew, a fairer and better structure.

And that is the golden opportunity that is now ours to grasp. The foundation for future achievement is laid, and it is our united responsibility to decide if we will build upon it.

Such opportunities come once in the history of any cause, and do not recur. "Once to every man, or nation, Comes the moment to decide. In the strife of truth with falsehood. For the good or evil side. Some great cause, God's new Messiah, Bringing each the bloom or blight. Parts the goats upon the left hand And the sheep upon the right; And the truth goes by forever, 'Twist the darkness and the light."

COATS SHORTER THIS SEASON
New Modes More Attractive Than Ever and Vogue Promises to Be Popular

Last year's suit will not do. Just as skirts are getting longer, so coats are becoming shorter, as you will note in the new styles above. The styles this season promise to become unusually popular because they are becoming to almost any woman. Note the simplicity of design.

AT THE SIGN OF THE JACK O' LANTERN, AT THE STRAND

There is nothing quite so alluring in all the world as buried treasure, declares Wade Hoteler, who has one of the important roles in "At the Sign of the Jack o' Lantern," produced by Remco Film company for W. W. Hodgkinson, and which will be seen at the Strand Theatre Sunday.

"History is filled with the stories of adventurers who braved perils of unknown lands and uncharted seas in search of buried treasure," says Hoteler. "The romance of Captain Kidd and his gang of cut-throat buccaniers is heightened by the golden glow of stolen gold which he is supposed to have buried there on little known islands."

"So long as there are red blooded men who are willing to gamble with Fate and take a chance, just so long will there be seekers after buried treasure."

"At the Sign of the Jack o' Lantern," is an adaptation of the famous story of the same name written by one of America's foremost authors, Myrtle Reed. It was directed by Lloyd Ingraham, called "the director without a failure."

Hoteler is one of the best known actors of the screen. He has had leading roles in a large number of successful productions, including the following: "An Old Fashioned Boy"; "The Home Stretch"; "Stranger Than Fiction"; "Cup of Fury"; "Lahoma"; "Fifty Candles," and many others.
