CALM DOWN

THERE'S sound sense in the editorial suggestion of the Portland Telegram reprinted below. We cannot agree that there will be no clash of opinions until the next primary. In our opinion, regardless of who is selected as the republican candidate for governor, it will mark a democratic opportunity and pave the way for a hard party struggle during the general election campaign.

But political differences can be decided on the issues. We can tone down emotional appeals that stir up strife and hatred.

Temperance of speech, strict adherence to the facts in argument and ostracization of extremists will make Oregon a better state to live in, regardless of the political outcome, and will remove the ban that now rests upon it in the minds of too many large investors of capital. The Telegram's advice follows:

Now that the primary election is over, with satisfaction to one or more elements and disappointment to others, the time has come to forget animosities and practice the art of putting Oregon ahead as neighbors co-operating industrially and commercially.

As Americans we have learned to fight vigorously every two years, with a nation-wide fight every four years. Most of us are attached to one or the other major party, and through the agency of our party we seek good government. One of the other party is victorious every two years.

On both sides we struggle until the polls close, some of us stay up late for the election returns, and the next day we go about our ordinary affairs as good friends as ever but prepared in our minds for the next clash of opinion two years hence.

Because we have engaged in these contests biennially for more than a hundred years and because we make the test of strength at the ballot box we have succeeded in perpetuating what we believe to be the best government on earth.

It is needless at this time to review the unusual issues which were dragged into the campaign that ended this week but it is very important that all good citizens avoid intemperance of speech in future discussions which we cannot escape. Public opinion should never be suppressed but surely normal folk will be doing the community a distinctly good service if they frown upon extremists.

FROM LAUGHTER TO TEARS

"It is not a dull, didactic film. It is a living, pulsing representation of the biggest battle a human soul ever fought and won. It is shot through with laughter and tears and it sends you away with a new desire for the things in life that count." That is the way a prominent critic describes George Kleine's photo play production of Helen Keller in "Deliverance," and he hit the mark exactly. It is a drama of surprises and thrills—a "succession of wonders." The stories of Helen Keller and her childhood playmate Nadja parallel one another through life. The exception is that Nadja has a love story that is real, while Helen's is but a dream. It is through Helen, however, that Nadja finds her happiness and is redeemed. The drama abounds in diverting scenes and incidents that help to fasten it in the memory. Helen Keller in "Deliverance" will be the attraction tonight at the Strand.

Letters from the People

ADVISES NEUTRALITY

Editor Herald: The following dialogue expresses my views on the local strike situation:

"Ever see two dogs fight?"

"Uh-huh."

"Both good dogs?"

"Yeah, one a little larger and stronger than the other though."

"Yeah, but both good dogs though, of course the larger one had got the smaller one down."

"Uh-huh, but the small one was putting up a good fight though."

"Suppose she has any show to get up?"

"No, not unless he could let the larger one worry himself out."

"Any chance for him to do that?"

"Might, if he could be left alone."

"Can't he be left alone?"

"Yeah, he could, but you see in a dog fight, there is always a lot of dogs that want to look on. And they are not all satisfied just to look on. Most of them want to help. But being a little afraid of the large one they are pretty careful. So they reach in and bite the under one a little. You know; just to have a hand in the fight. Of course they don't bite very hard, but by the time they all get around, the under dog has had several hard bites, so he doesn't get rested very much by his scheme. He is a good dog though, and believe if he had a show he would whip the whole bunch."

"Of course a whole lot of men and boys crowd around to see the fight too."

"All want to see fair play?"

"Yeah."

"Hear anyone say, if the under one was up and on his feet he might whip the other one?"

"No, didn't hear anyone say anything like that."

"Hear a man say though that the large one was the best dog in town, and it would be too bad if the small dog would get up and whip him."

"Why don't someone take the large dog off and let the small one get his wind a little?"

"That wouldn't do, he might get the advantage then, and hurt the large one."

"Ain't the small dog any good?"

"Uh-huh, he is just as good as the large one only don't like to see the large one get hurt."

"But the small one is getting hurt, now ain't he?"

"Oh not much, you see he can stand more hurts than the large one can. Skin is thicker. So then, shake him up good old sport while you're at it. It won't cost any more while you have him down."

"Wonder why the people don't try to take the large dog off, couldn't they stop the fight quicker, and safer for themselves, if they would get them apart? Instead of trying to get the under one to lay still until the large one is satisfied, as long as one dog is just as good as the other, and has the same right to live, it seems as though it would be better to force both sides to give up, or else leave them alone and let them fight it out between themselves. Of course if they are spoiling the lawn, make them both get off. Better make them both quit fighting instead of trying to force the under one to quit, and let the large one keep on chewing. One might get their fingers bit that way."

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage, brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.—Adv.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Disease Lurks in every possible spot

There is only one means of combatting disease. That is at the source, by destroying the germs.

A reliable disinfectant should be used about the stables, out-buildings, hen houses, hog houses, in cesspools and about the bath room, sinks, etc.

No. 6 Disinfectant is best by test

It is six times as powerful as carbolic acid. It is non-poisonous, which makes it safe. Diluted with water, as directed, it is economical and truly efficient.
