The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

A pretty good firm is Whtch and

And another is Attit, Early and Layte;
And still another is Doo and Dairet;
And one of the best is Grinn and Barrett.

Town chickens are just like those on a farm. If you allow them to run around too much they get tough.

Always Remember

A guy in the city jail may be down, but he is never out.

Bobby wanted a donkey—and he had seen the donkey in a near-by field.

"What would happed if I stole that donkey?" he asked his father.

"You would get six months in prison," replied his father. Bobby thought a while and then said:

"You wouldn't forget to feed it while I was awdy, would you, father?"

Wonder what a chewing-gum magnate says when he steps on a wad of his gum? asks Horace Manning.

The saddest words of tongue and pen,
No doubt of it,
Are "Please remit."

Uncle Levi Zink says that to the American boy there is an awful, a majestic difference in weight between the butt end of a fish-pole and a hoe handle.

Proprietor to Customer: "Do you know that Fruitkist ice cream tastes better than kissing a girl?"

Customer: Why?

Proprietor: "When you eat Fruitkist ice cream you get the kiss, but not the breach-of-promise suit."

Coxie Says

If the married men today could be talked to sleep as easy as they once were rocked to sleep, sleep would sure be a blessing.

Being a nobody has its virtues. When you make a jack of yourself the newspapers do not send reporters for your photograph and full particulars.

A. M. Collier says all the good advice and counsel about high heeled shoes fell on deaf ears, but when fashion said go, they went.

The hornet is a dynic,
A pessimistic thing;
His style of conversation
Is ne'er without its sting.

Mr. Smith: "What is the difference between the death of a barber and the death of a sculptor?"

Mr. Brown: "I don't know, what is it?"

Mr. Smith: "Well, one curls up and dies and the other makes faces and busts."

Why is Life Insurance so Important from the Standpoint of Credit?

President A. Barton Hepburn, of the Chase National Bank of New York, states one of the reasons succinctly: "When a man comes to us to borrow money, we want to know how much life insurance he carries, not so much because of its bearing on his financial power, but as an indication of his type of mind, for the type of mind that induces a man to insure his life is the type of mind which makes for success in business." There are other important reasons, however. For instance, many business and professional men are so endowed with energy, honesty, ability and initiative that those from whom they seek credit are willing to extend it practically on the strength of these personal qualities alone, provided such qualities are protected by sufficient life insurance, for it is reasonably certain that by no cause other than death will the repayment of the loan fail.

As with the individual, so with the corporation or partnership. Through business insurance, cash assets to take the place of prominent officers, or partners, are immediately created when these officers or partners die. Thus are possible financial difficulties averted.

INSURE IN THE MUTUAL LIFE

In this relationship of life insurance to credit, the strength, the prestige, and the reliability of the insurance company itself is of vast importance. The Mutual Life Insurance company of New York is the "Oldest Company in America." It is also one of the largest and strongest companies in the entire world. It has standard, up-to-date contracts built to fit the needs both of business and individuals. Full information covering any case may be secured from
