WE'RE FOR PEACE

IT IS regrettable that the Central Labor council shows an inclination to split hairs in opposition to the state labor commissioner's attitude on the timberworkers' strike. To our way of thinking Mr. Gram, as an official of the state of Oregon, would have shown discrimination against his own state had he made any other finding under existing circumstances than that strike conditions have ceased to exist here.

As a matter of cold fact both sides entered into the controversy hastily and both sides have emerged very fortunately.

The operators have won a point in the matter of hours, but a little investigation shows that the workers have gained in the matter of wages. From a common-sense viewpoint, and we speak as a sympathizer with Labor's aims and aspirations, workers must realize that employers, too, have problems that it requires time to work out.

By the beginning of a new season there may be changes in conditions that will warrant further negotiations and further adjustments. Actually as conditions stand today, although it is not openly stated, there has been a compromise, through increased wages to meet the increased hours. And every fair-minded individual or organization should welcome a compromise in any dispute.

Quibbling and splitting hairs over terminology does not alter the facts. As far as actual conditions go the strike is off, temporarily perhaps, but off. The timber workers' union admitted that they could do nothing further for their members when they permitted them to return to work without forfeiture of union privileges.

We want to see peace, harmony and community progress; fair bargaining, fairly struck and fairly kept, without mental reservations and stated in plain words over which there can be no quibbling.

We want to see Klamath county cease to be a battleground on which is fought out all of the disputes that other communities are too wise to engage in.

The industrial situation here today is on all fours with the situation at Weed. The Weed workers went out at the same time the Klamath workers did, but the Weed workers returned sooner and called off the strike.

As a result Weed has not been posted as a strike zone for months. Weed is able to get workers of the best class. Now that conditions are similar, looking at the matter from the standpoint of community good, Klamath is entitled to the same treatment as Weed, and entitled to receive from the state of Oregon the political protection of its officials.

Under such conditions Mr. Gram, as an official of the state, would have been in a most anomalous position had he discriminated against a portion of his own state in favor of a neighboring state.

As far as Mr. Gram's statement is concerned, we find no evidence that he arrogated any power to his office to call off the strike. Mr. Gram did not make a written statement to The Herald. In an interview he told The Herald reporter that his investigation showed that there was no longer warrant for employers being forced to post notices that strike conditions existed here, and he had so notified the California labor commission.

If anything else was written into the statement by The Herald or read into it by Herald readers, it is an injustice to Mr. Gram.

In justice to our own community and state, and in behalf of progress and prosperity, we are opposed to this technical wrangling over words.

Leave such fine distinctions to the lawyers. They earn their living by searching for verbal flaws on which to hang expensive disputes. The rest of us, who make a living by hard work, will be better off if we forget the past and join hands to give the wheels of industry another spin.

MT. EVEREST RAFFLES MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS

Everest have been sufficient to battle explorers.

The world's highest peak lies in Tibet north of the British Indian border, yet, so far as known no Europeans with the exception of the Bury party have ever approached nearer than 60 miles to its base and few travelers have even seen its upper slopes.

The attempts which have been made to ascend some of Mt. Everest's sister peaks of the Himalayas have usually been made through Nepal because access to them through Tibet was not then open. The approach to Mt. Everest through Tibet is said to be more accessible and presents greater prospects of success than from the Nepal side.

Sir Francis Younghusband announced that the Tibetan government had granted his permission to attempt to ascend of the mountain by the Tibetan route. It was Sir Francis, who as Colonel commanding a British mission to the Forbidden City of Lhasa in 1903-04, opened Tibet to civilization.

The trigonometrical altitude of Mt. Everest is 29,002 feet; its probable height is 29,141 feet. The next known highest of the Himalayan peaks are Kinchinjunga, 28,225 feet, and K-2, or Bride Peak, whose altitude is 28,191.

The duke of the Abruzzi, who reached the top of Mt. St. Elias in Alaska (18,024 feet) and who at one time held the record of farthest north in Arctic exploration, tried to climb K-2 or Bride Peak in 1909 but failed because from whatever point of the compass he advanced he could find no way up to attain the summit. At 24,600 feet he and his companions were in good physical condition although progress was slow and laborious; a thick mist warned them that to go on "would have been madness." This achievement of the Italian explorer, however, is the world's record for mountain climbing. Bride Peak is in the Karakoram Himalayas. Besides it and its two higher sister peaks, there are in the Himalayas no less than 75 peaks above 24,000 feet, 48 above 25,000 feet, 16 above 26,000 feet, and five above 27,000 feet.

WHISKAWAY WINNER

Harry Payne Whitney's Great Colt Repeats Great Triumph

LATONIA, Ky., June 27.—Whiskaway, Harry Payne Whitney's great colt, which a week ago gave Morvich the only defeat of his racing career, repeated that triumph Saturday, when he swept past the wire, winner of the $50,000 special Latonia race for 3-year-olds, before a record-breaking crowd of $50,000 persons.

The chestnut son of Whiskbroom II defeated the best field the nation could send against him in what was probably the greatest race for 3-year-olds staged in a decade.

Thibodaux, a rank outsider in the betting, and a Kentucky-bred horse, finished second in a driving finish with Whiskaway, crossing the wire a half-length behind the winner. Morvich was third, 10 lengths behind Whiskaway. Pillory, winner of the $50,000 Breakneck stakes, was fourth and Deadlock was fifth. The mile and a quarter was run in 2:02 4-5, which is within one-fifth of a second of the track record.

There was no question of the relative racing ability of Whiskaway over Morvich. Morvich was decisively beaten, struggling with a tired, weary stride at the finish. In establishing his claim to be America's greatest 3-year-old Whiskaway showed a stamina and gameness which promises greater things in future events of the season.

The race was worth $42,550 to the winner, while $6,000 went to second place and $3,000 to third.

Eugene—Meadowview drainage project assured.
