IN THE COURT

State vs. Mallory

Motion to dismiss the pending charges against Walter and Emory Mallory, in which they were charged with obstructing the main highway between here and Bend last summer, was filed this morning by their attorney, in which it was contended that by reason of delay in bringing the matter before the grand jury the charge is automatically cancelled. The motion has not been passed on as yet.

MOVIES

THE STAR

If the title of the next picture to be shown at the Star theatre isn't enough to arouse your interest we can promise you that the picture itself is so timely and entertaining that you shouldn't let anything prevent you from seeing it.

Madge Kennedy in "The Girl With the Jazz Heart" is sure to make you forget every trouble you ever had. If you are a jazz enthusiast this is your special picture if ever there was one. If you are opposed to jazz this picture will help you to laugh at it. We know that you are not opposed to good wholesome, clean, sparkling comedy—nobody we've found yet is. That's why we recommend this picture to you regardless of any pet likes or dislikes you may have.

THE STRAND

Neva Gerber, popular and well known motion picture star, has one unexplainable characteristic as a photographic subject that no one has ever been able to explain, not even Miss Gerber herself. It is the continual changeability of her facial expression on all her photographs. This while never manifested by the motion picture camera is a source of continual puzzlement and annoyance to photographers who make "still" portraits of her.

In all of the thousands of such portraits that she had made during her motion picture career, no two of them, even of the same pose, ever look exactly alike. This unconscious mobility of expression has been so emphasized at times that hundreds of new and expensive photographs for advertising purposes have had to be destroyed because of their absolute lack of likeness of Miss Gerber.

Miss Gerber comes to the Strand tonight as the star of "A Yankee Go-Getter," and strange to say, regardless of the famed duplicity of her face, she plays a dual role in this picture that is one of the most illusive and startling bits of photography ever seen on the screen.

THE LIBERTY

A picture to please all tastes is offered at the Liberty theatre tonight in the Playgoers feature, "Home Keeping Hearts." From an original story by Charles W. Barrrell, it gets under your skin with a story of a man's love and regeneration.

Robert Colton, a role admirably played by Thomas H. Swinton, was robbed of his manhood by the fear that his little daughter would learn of his prison record. But when injustices on the part of the man he felt under obligations to, threatened those he loved, his protective instincts were aroused, and he rose above his fear.

Opening with some thrilling scenes under water of the rescue of a diver trapped in a broken sluice gate, the action of "Home Keeping Hearts" shifts to a small New England town. The acting of little Mildred Ryan as the daughter deserves special credit. Louella Carr, gifted daughter of her talented mother, Mrs. Mary Carr, is charming as the school teacher, Edward Grace and Henry West give splendid character portraits.
