DISTRUST

(Medford Mail-Tribune)

WHAT'S the matter with America? William Allen White, who made his reputation by telling what was the matter with Kansas, answers the question above in the current Collier's.

The chief trouble in Bill's views is the big city with its foreign population which is gradually producing a type that is destructive to the fine old, rural Anglo-Saxon type.

All our grand national policies, all our pompous parties, all our crucial issues—all the flub-dubbery of politics, are subsidiary to this fundamental clash of ideals: The Puritan ideal and its festive foe, that shrugs a gay shoulder, denies our brotherhood, rejects our cold justice, and giggles us out of our homely duties.

That is Bill's conclusion. It may be a good one. We don't know. But we do know the trouble with America at the present moment can't be blamed on the cities, nor upon the flappers, nor upon those who can't be recruited under the banner of 100 per cent Puritanism.

In plain English the trouble with America appears to be a general cussedness. It breaks out here and there and everywhere—in the little rural communities like Herrin, Illinois, in the big cities like New York, Boston and Chicago, in foreign districts, in native districts. There is no general geographical classification possible, no ethnic classification, the virus is not on Uncle Sam's skin, it's in his blood.

And as we dope it out Uncle Sam does not need a change of health so much as a change of heart. Distrust, suspicion, intolerance must somehow be removed before Mr. White's regeneration can be attained. There must be a little fresh air in the national mind.

Selfishness, that is the master ill—the one which in a sense includes all the others. There is too much thinking only of what is good for John Smith and not enough thinking on the part of John Smith of what is good for Bill Jones. Smith says you do as I do, you think as I do, you vote as I do, or you take this in the neck!

There is the fundamental trouble. Not biological, not physiological, but psychological. America is all right. She is essentially sound. She has far more good citizens than bad ones. All she needs is a new orientation, mentally and spiritually.

Toward this end, this article of Bill White's will help, no doubt, but the only master worker, we fear, is Doctor Time.

"OVER THE HILL"

We realize how futile it is to pick amusements that will satisfy everybody. But "OVER THE HILL" is a picture for everybody.

It is more than a mere motion picture. It is so frank an exposure of our inner selves that we cannot behold it without being startled.

For one solid year, twice daily, it has competed with the most successful theatrical attractions in the very heart of the world's amusement mart, and today its hold upon the public is stronger than when the picture was first displayed.

When you see this picture you will think of that old saying, "God couldn't be every place at once, so he made mothers."
