

SHOPMEN DROP TOOLS

RAIL WALKOUT STARTS IN ALL PARTS OF U. S.

Workers Quit Promptly at 10 A. M.; Train Movements to Be Continued

CHICAGO, July 1.—Railroad shopmen in all sections of the country dropped their tools today in a nation-wide strike. Reports from east and south up to noon indicated that 50,000 had already joined the suspension.

Promptly at 10 o'clock workers in various eastern shops quit. Railroad officials declared train movements would continue, and for a time, at least, the public would scarcely be aware of the suspension. Train operating crafts are not involved in the present controversy.

Six hundred thousand maintenance of way men and stationary engineers postponed their walkout temporarily, as a result of the railroad board conference yesterday.

The shopmen seek nullification of the $60,000,000 wage cut, a restoration of abolished rules and revocation of all permission to railroads to contract their shop work. The crafts involved are machinists, boiler makers, blacksmiths, metal workers, electricians, railway car men for repairing coaches and helpers and apprentices. The walkout means a suspension of repairs.

PORTLAND, July 1.—Approximately 500 Union Pacific shopmen walked out here, about 300 Southern Pacific struck here and an equal number throughout the state. Between 400 and 450 Spokane, Portland and Seattle men are out here and at Vancouver, Wash. Reports from the Union Pacific in eastern Oregon indicated the strike was 100 per cent complete at practically all points.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Strike orders was generally obeyed on the Pacific coast and in inter-mountain states, reports from all points where shop men are employed indicating practically a complete walkout.

Southern Pacific officials here said a number of men had walked out this morning but that the exact number was not known.

FIRE WARNING IS ISSUED BY FOREST PROTECTIVE ASS'N

Campers Asked to Observe Simple
Rules in Effort to Conserve
Timber Resources

"Be careful with fire in the woods," is the warning the Klamath Forest Protective association asks campers to bear in mind, particularly over the Fourth of July holidays.

During the past week, it was said, six fires started through carelessness were checked only after strenuous effort. Little harm is done when the blaze is discovered in time, but should it go undiscovered the resultant damage might run into thousands of dollars. Many fires are started through failure to extinguish a camp fire. Water should be poured on the ashes and all leaves and sticks raked away within a radius of several feet. Fires should not be built against logs or trees.

Another common cause of forest fires is the careless tossing away of a cigarette, a habit which has cost this county heavy losses each year. A cigarette tossed among dry pine needles, leaves or sticks is almost certain to start a blaze. Cigarettes tossed from passing automobiles are said to be the most common cause of fires started in this manner.

RAIL WALKOUT 28 YEARS AGO CAUSED PUBLISHER TROUBLE

Klamath Express Issued in Abreviated Form by D. B. Worthington Is Packed With News

Twenty-eight years ago in July the country was tied up by a national railway strike, and the Klamath Express was cut down to a four-page sheet, about the size of a man's pocket handkerchief. D. B. Worthington, now of Beloit, Wisconsin, was editing the paper and despite its miniature size managed to cram a lot of news into its columns.

A copy drifted into The Herald office recently, through the courtesy of Ned Worthington, son of the former local publisher, and below are some of the items culled from the issue of July 28, 1894:

Horseback riding is getting to be quite the fad at the Agency, and the following ladies seem to be experts: Mesdames Matthews, Worden, Cunningham, Watkins and Nickerson. All have fine saddle steeds, and Miss Oskie Matthews and little May Worden, with their fine ponies, help to make a merry party.

J. L. Hanks made a trip to Fort Klamath the early part of the week and on his return spoke glowingly of the hay and grain crops up that way.

"Everybody is haying in that vicinity," said he, "and the grass is heavier and better than I have seen it in six years. Several thousands of tons will be put up. The Indians are going to carry off the palm in the way of grain. The Fort country has been visited by a big rain the past few days which will make the yield along the Williamson river very large."

The Express is compelled to print its issue on brown paper again this week. D—n the strike.

H. P. Murdoch was admitted on the 29th of June to practice before all the courts of the state.

Baldwin and Reams carry a complete stock of Furniture and Burial Caskets. Prices to suit the hard times.

Judge Orr and G. J. Farnsworth went to Langell valley last Tuesday on a business trip—Farnsworth to rustle insurance and Orr to look after that famous suit—Orr vs. School Ma'am.

The school board held a meeting last week and engaged Mrs. H. F. Murdoch to teach the primary department during the ensuing year. The principal and intermediate teacher have not yet been engaged. Roy Wright, Charlie Roberts and

CUT-OFF HELD IMPORTANT TO S. P. RAILROAD

Sproule Quoted as Saying Greatest Interest Lies in Line's Completion

Apparently Union Pacific officials are not the only ones to have issued statements relative to future construction of the Natron cut-off. J. J. Miller, local agent for the Southern Pacific, points to a statement of Wm. Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific system, published in The Oregonian of June 20, which Sproule asserts that there is "every incentive" for the S. P. to complete the cut-off.

Sproule is quoted as saying: "One-half of the money had already been spent and so there is every incentive for the Southern Pacific to complete the cut-off in order to get that part of the line into operation. By spending the additional money the Southern Pacific can retrieve the earning power on the several millions of dollars already gone into construction on that job. Our greatest interest is to complete the work if the lines are allowed to remain with us."

MANY TROUT PLANTED

Successful Season for Eastern Brook Reported by Association

Planting of Eastern brook trout in this county is nearing completion. Dr. H. D. L. Stewart of the Klamath Sportsmen's association said today. Two hundred thousand have been planted in Lost river, 50,000 in Jenny creek and 100,000 in Fish lake, near Diamond lake. About 100,000 remain to be distributed in some of the smaller creeks of Klamath county.

This number will probably be increased next year and every year for an indefinite period between 500,000 and 1,000,000 will be planted in the waters of this county, Dr. Stewart said. The eggs are taken in Elk lake, near Bend, and shipped here via Portland, and hatched at the Crooked Creek hatchery in this county.

Fish experts predict that Eastern brook trout will do exceptionally well in Lost river, and they believe that they will attain a large size, and will remain hard and in good condition, even during the summer months, when rainbow trout would become soft.

The spawning season for Eastern brook trout is in the fall, so that if the propagation is successful local fishermen will be assured of good fishing the year 'round. It is quite probable that the closed season on streams containing these trout will be in the fall, during the spawning season, and that the season will open in the spring when the rainbow waters are closed. The state fish and game commission would in all probability act on a recommendation to that effect from the Klamath County Sportsmen's association, it is believed by members of the association.
