

VAMPIRE GHOST IS BLAMED FOR HIS DOWNFALL

Accused Ex-Pastor Claims Phantom Matron Haunts Him Unceasingly

By JACK JUNGMEYER

LOS ANGELES, July 11.—Court-ed by the dead.

Belieged day and night by the phantom of a matron who had killed herself for love of him—a posthumous love more powerful than the lure of living women.

Desperate efforts through drugs and amours to shake off the ghostly infatuation.

This is the weird defense Donald D. Stewart, one-time clergyman and prominent moral crusader of California, will make when he is brought to trial in Boston on charges of bigamy, grand larceny and conspiracy.

Stewart and one of his alleged wives, Mrs. Ethel Osbaldeston Stewart, were arrested near Los Angeles by Pinkerton detectives on eastern warrants.

This woman, while proclaiming him a Jekyll-Hyde, is standing loyally by the former pastor, corroborating his tale of occult terror and saying, "His last three marriages all were performed while he was under the influence of drugs."

Haunted by Lovelorn Ghost

For seven years, Stewart asserts, he has been haunted by Mrs. Maud Hendricks, Hayward, California, who he declares committed suicide because of unrequited love for him.

Explanatory notes were left, and the scandal that ensued resulted in the then fighting pastor being dismissed from the Presbyterian church.

"Her spirit has fitted between me and happiness," explains the cultured, fascinating heartbreaker, as he is pictured by those making the charges.

"Every night since that tragedy the woman's wraith has trooped with stealthy, accusing footsteps outside my door.

"Women used to say I had fascinating ways. They were the ways of desperation. Anything to counteract that creeping presence. It followed me everywhere. There was no peace. It was while so haunted that I went from bad to worse in marriage ventures."

There it is, a tale told in the Los Angeles jail—one of intrigue the successors of Edgar Allan Poe as well as to interest the law.

At the time he was unfrocked, Stewart, it is charged, was married and the father of three children. He left them to go east and in Wilmington, Delaware, married again, he asserts, "seeking forgetfulness."

Weds Again in New York

"Then in New York I met Mrs. Ethel Osbaldeston, the most inspiring influence in my life, whom I afterward wedded. I married three others.

The asserted wife who was arrested with Stewart is declared by detectives to have posed as his sister and secretary, to have abetted his subsequent marriages and to have conspired with him in wheeling money from various brides, as is charged.

Psychologists who have had Stewart, alias Brown, alias McGregor, under observation declare him to be a striking case of dual nature: One a Jekyll of honor, integrity, brains and honest desire to uplift his fellows; the other a Hyde of sinister promptings.

"Perhaps I am," says he. "If so it was because of the woman who haunted me."

Ex-Pastor's Dual Nature Analyzed

By HERBERT LAPHAM

Character Analyst and Psychological Investigator

Donald D. Stewart has two distinctly conflicting natures.

In both these selves there is the characteristic which has predominated throughout his life and which is responsible for part of his present difficulties.

That is an aggressiveness which knows no rest.

It must be directed against something all the time, if not outside himself, then within. He wants to fight, to reform. But in contrast to this is a counter inclination for one shielding affection, domestic peace and loyalty to one woman. To battle and to rest, these war within him.

The attractiveness for women

Blames Vampire Ghost

Donald D. Stewart, alleged bigamist, and Mrs. Ethel Osbaldeston Stewart, one of the women he is said to have wedded.

which Stewart undoubtedly possesses offers strong temptations to the man who loves feminine worship. This gives rise to many tragedies. The same intensity that makes the single-track mind so powerful also makes it the more dangerous when deflected from its normal course.

Then the inclination to brood induces self-suggested mental pictures of a haunting nature. They become nightmares of obsession, as Stewart speaks of.

It is the man he was, nagging the man he now is.

Caterpillars Nearly Past

Defoliating caterpillars, so prevalent this year, are in the majority of cases about mature and the injury is practically at an end. Observations indicate little likelihood of a repetition of this year's abundant crop of these leaf feeders as parasitic insects are very active on them at present.

Dust Controls Flea-Beetles

Garden flea-beetles are beginning to get in their work on potatoes and other garden vegetables. A dust made of one part powdered arsenate of lead to nine parts air slaked lime will prevent serious damage. Mix the ingredients thoroughly and apply the dust to the plants by means of a cheese cloth bag or hand duster. Best results may be had by applying it early in the morning or at other times when there is no wind.

S. F. Club Building Team for Next Year

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—Already the San Francisco club of the Pacific coast baseball league is rebuilding its machine for next year when two of its stars, Jimmy O'Connell and Willie Kamm, go up to the majors for a sale price of $175,000 and players.

According to present plans of Manager Jack Miller, Hal Rhyne, who plays shortstop for the Seals, will be at third next year in place of Kamm, Ralph Miller, late of the Phillies, will be at short and Gene Valla, promising recruit, will take O'Connell's job in the outfield.

A Seal scout, Nick Williams, who recently toured the middle west looking for material, reports that he has been unable to find anyone who can come near replacing Kamm or O'Connell.

"We are on the lookout for anyone who will strengthen the Seals next year," Charles Graham, vice president of the club declared recently. "We want a large number of candidates for all the positions."
