of packers and livestock producers to unite in a campaign to reestablish meat in the public esteem is both timely and sensible.

The recently deprived by its parents of its accustomed perusal of a yellow newspaper, turned to the erpedient of getting up a newspaper of its own. The first copy, done in pencil, showed on its front page ten illustrated stories of violent crimes of all sorts. This was the child's idea of a newspaper as gleaned from actual experience.

tal reaction is natural, and that it is a consequence to be expected from the nature of the news print ed by the average sensational journal? An editor will excuse the printing of crime news on the ground that it is the function of a newspaper to hold up the mirror of life and show it for whatever it is. Such logic is faulty. It starts with a wrong premise and reasons to a wrong conclusion. The plethora of crime news that decorates the front page is not a true representation of life, but only a selec-
