

The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

Hard Telling

The new servant was as truthful as could be. The first caller asked to see her mistress. "She's not at home," was the answer. When will she be back? asked the caller. "I don't know, mum, she's not gone out yet."

Admired That

He: You must have seen some trait in me to admire or you wouldn't have married me. She: I did—your sublime nerve in wanting to be my husband.

Here's a Wild Colym Conductor It was a cold and wintry night. A man stood on the street. His aged eyes were full of tears. And his shoes were full of feet.

The boy stood on the burning deck His feet were all in blisters He burned the only pants he had And had to wear his sister's. —Lakeside News.

As We Have It Now

"Dobbs is creating a tempest in a teapot." "He'd better law off that home-brew stuff."

St. Peter had had a busy day and Gabriel had not loafed any himself. Throng had visited gate and been looked over. Those who had answered their questionnaires successfully and satisfactorily were admitted. For others it was "going down." Finally when the books were about to be closed for the day, an soul that had belongs to a newspaper man when on earth came puffing along. "What'll we do with him—the books are practically closed for the day?" said Peter to Gabriel. Before Gabriel had any time to answer, the shade of the journalist (timidly spoke up: "You might label me 'Too Late to Classify,' and let me in anyway."

THE STRAND

Fernando de Ferney the neglected wife in "The Marionettes," played by Clara Kimball Young, which will be shown at the Strand theatre tonight, is a characterization in which this gifted actress gives free rein to the peculiar talents for which she has become famous. "The Marionettes" deals with the transformation of a dowdy wife, coifed, schooled and country bred, who having through her carelessness of personal appearance, lost her husband's love, determines to win it back again. From an unattractive frump with personal surroundings as drab as herself, she suddenly blossoms out into a gay social butterfly, and her surroundings take on a metamorphosis as complete as her own. As an inevitable result her husband is more than ever attracted to her, and she, when he realizes how near he came to losing her. Miss Young's portrayal of the chrysalis wife is one of the most interesting roles she has ever created. The supporting cast is of the highest order, and includes such well-known screen favorites as Corliss Giles, Nigel Barrie, Florence Atkins and Edwin Kimball.

THE STAR

What's an ordinary sneak-thief to a woman brave enough to face the camera without a tremor? So when Wanda Hawley walked into her Hollywood home the other afternoon accompanied by two girl friends, and heard noise upstairs, she didn't faint away, or anything like it. She sternly commanded her unnerved companions to silence, walked to the phone and summoned the police. Then she took her business-like little automatic out of a desk-drawer and marched upstairs. Miss Hawley has a good part in "The Woman Who Walked Alone," the George Melford Paramount production which will open at the Star theatre today. Dorothy Dalton is featured and Milton Sills is leading man.

THE LIBERTY

"If there is nothing but the carens of lips in a kiss, there's nothing to it worth having," says Marie Prevost.

The observation is apropos her latest Universal picture, "Kissed," coming to the Liberty theatre today. The story is all about kisses, one kiss and—a few others. "The eyes, and pressure of the hands, the electrical current of feeling that flows through air from one to the other is the thing that counts in a kiss," she adds. "Simply the pressure of lips upon lips is not worth having; it is purely physical, means nothing and brings no happiness. If you want to kiss someone and desire them to recognize it as having a lot of value, say a lot about it with your eyes first."

Kisses have from time immemorial been the subject of poems, ballads and essays, but never before has a motion picture been filmed with their furnishing all the material for the story, the title and the comedy action. Will we see Kissed? M-m-m!

WIRELESS AIDS DEAF TO HEAR

Newly Developed Science Will Prove Boon, Writer Believes

LONDON, July 21.—Wireless, with all the manifold benefits already to its credit may enable the deaf to hear, thinks a writer in the current number of the Medical Press. If recent experiments with wireless telephony come up to expectation, he declares, then there is little need for the deaf to give up hope, for by means of "thermionic" valves the very deaf have been enabled to hear.

The author records the case of a man of 59 who had been deaf for many years, so deaf that he could only hear the shouted voice. Nevertheless he experimented with wireless telephony. It occurred to him that by increasing the number of thermionic valves in his receiver he might thereby raise the sound to a degree of intensity to be heard easily. This he did, working up gradually until he had five thermionic valves in his apparatus, with the result that he can now hear his friends in Paris more plainly than he can a person sitting in the room beside him. Also his hearing for the ordinary voice has become more acute. The Marconi company's experts are using a valve similar to the thermionic on their "bonaphone" an instrument for imparting sounds to the brain by means of the bony parts of the cranium. It has enabled a large number of persons to hear who hitherto were deaf.

Thought has been given in England to a universal language for international radio communication, but no definite conclusions yet have been reached.

Questioned on this subject Godfrey Isaacs, head of the Marconi wireless system, said he did not think Esperanto would do. "But, at the same time," he added, "we are keeping in view in connection with the scheme now under consideration for the establishment of wireless broadcasting stations, the possibility of teaching languages by wireless telephony. I think this will be a highly important part of the educational action of our broadcasting programs. One foresees the engagement of eminent professors of languages for the purpose of wireless tuition."

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Cos's Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.—Adv.

YET THEY'RE FRIENDS

A conductor and a brakeman on a railroad differ as to the proper pronunciation of a station named Eureka.

The conductor calls—You're a liar! You're a liar!

The brakeman calls—You really are! You really are!

And the train passengers look in vain for a fight.—Topics of the Day Films.
