The Office Cat

BY JUNIOR

HARD TO BEAT

Last night I held a little hand,
So dainty and so neat,
I thought my heart would burst with joy,
So wildly did it beat.
No other hand unto my soul,
Could greater solace bring,
Than that I held last night,
Which was,
Four aces and a king.

"Here is a very touching article about the faithful old farm horse that is finally turned out to pasture when his days of usefulness are over."
"Yeh—but somehow you can't get up much sentiment over the faithful old Ford that is ready for the junk heap."

KNOW YOUR JOB

Of all the pessimistic truck,
I hate the cry, "I have no luck!"
A man should know his business,
Bill,
You don't need luck if you have skill.
We read in a paper that "the bride looked lovely in a navy blue ostrich plume." And we were not even invited to the wedding."
What becomes of the flappers, or do they grow into womanhood, asks Earl Shepherd.

A maid with a duster

Once made a great bluster
A-dusting a bust in the hall,
And when it was dusted,
The bust it was busted—
The bust now is dust, that is all.

IT ISN'T YOUR TOWN—IT'S YOU

If you want to live in the kind of a town,
Like the kind of a town you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start out on a long, long hike.
You'll only find what you left behind,
For there's nothing that's really new;
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your town;
It isn't your town—it's you.
Real towns are not made by men afraid,
Least somebody else gets ahead;
When every one works and nobody shirks
You can raise a town from the dead.
And if while you make a personal stake
Your neighbor can make one too,
Your town will be what you want to see—
It isn't your town—it's you.

SUBWAYS BELOW SIDEWALKS PLAN

Chicago Engineer Believed To Have Solved Problem At Reduced Cost

CHICAGO, July 27.—Subways under Chicago sidewalks instead of under the city streets is the plan proposed by D. Chase Denison, Chicago civil engineer, who contends that such an improvement could safely be built at less than half the depth of the ordinary type of underground roadway and at a tenth of the cost.
Only a small portion of such a subway system as Chicago needs can be built at the depth that would be necessary if excavation should be made under the street proper, owing to the expense, according to Mr. Denison, who has submitted to U. S. Schwartz, chairman of the Chicago council transportation committee, a plan for a subway system ten or 12 feet deep under the sidewalks instead of twenty-five to fifty feet deep under the streets. It is understood that application has been made to the United States patent office for protection of the plan, which Denison believes applicable to other cities.

"The city of Chicago owns the streets of the city including the sidewalks up to the building lines," said Denison. "The city has the right to lease to the surface lines the space under the sidewalks for the car lines. This space is now used, if at all, chiefly by business houses for coal holes.
"Such a deep subway as funds could be provided for would be inadequate for present needs, whereas a subway system built ten or twelve feet deep could provide for the future. In ten or twenty-five years the population of the city will be greatly increased. At present we are twenty-five years behind the times in our provision of traffic; most proposals are designed only to catch up with the growth that has already taken place and are not far-sighted. A deep subway would be but a temporary makeshift.
The sidewalk subway could be built at one tenth the expense of a deep subway, in one tenth the time, and could extend throughout the city, as ten times as extensive a system could be built for the same money. In addition to its economy, the plan offers several advantages.

HEAD-HUNTING AIDS CROPS

Wild Tribes of Remote Region Stage Expeditions Just Before Planting Season

RANGOON, July 27.—Ralph E. Henderson, a Harvard graduate who has spent the past eight months traveling in southern Asia, has just completed a trip through the British "unadministered territory" of north-eastern Burma and into the Chinese province of Yunnan, neither of which have been thoroughly explored by white men.

Among the wild tribes encountered on this trip were the head-hunting Was. Hitherto little was definitely known concerning the life and customs of this tribe, as most of those who intruded upon Wa territory failed to return. The Was do not hunt heads primarily from cannibalistic motives, but rather because of the belief that their crops will fail unless some fresh human skulls are imported every year. Under this impression, they organize head-hunting expeditions every spring, and it is small consolation to the unfortunate traveler who falls into their hands that it is only his skull that is wanted.

Writing of the wild Was, Henderson says:
"The Was are especially keen on hunting heads during February, March and April—just before the planting season. From the Wa angle of looking at it, the business isn't the madness we take it to be. It is a convention, and quite as reasonable as afternoon tea. Every decently religious Wa knows that unless the seed grain is properly charmed and conjured with a human head, the crop raised from it will be a failure. And who wants to starve? In fact, if worst comes to worst, and there are no heads forthcoming from raids on neighbors, the Was prefer to take the head of some feeble person in the village, rather than run the risk of scant crops and consequent empty stomachs.
"In February, March and April, then, the wild Wa men go a-hunting. Of course, any head that offers itself to be collected is regarded as fair game, and it behooves the man working alone cutting jungle or the woman hoeing alone in the field to be cautious when the Was are about. A common artifice is to barricade some jungle highway and lie in ambush, some just behind the barricade, some on either side, to rush down on the flanks of any party caught in the trap.
"Heads of men, women and children over 12 years old are acceptable. Heads marked with small-pox, for superstitious reasons, are not desired. A successful foray is one which yields one or more corpses. Immediately the heads are cut off and put in bags. Then back home go the rejoicing

Was, not neglecting to take the bodies along for the larder, and raising a tremendous whooping and hubalalo along the way. At home there is a ceremony to perform. The wife or mother of the man who made the kill takes the head out of the bag and proceeds to wash it formally. She must wash the blood from the dead face, and wall an incantational song as she does so. She must work herself into a sentimental frenzy, which feat under the circumstances is usually easy of performance. If her wailing lacks the ring of genuineness, her husband helps to supply that which is lacking by beating her.
"This song, strangely enough, beseeches the aid of the spirit of the head, and addresses it as a mighty ruler. It is this spirit which is to promote the growth of the crops, and it must be treated with great reverence. I heard this song once.
"After the head has been washed and wailed over, a raw egg is put into the dead mouth, to feed the spirit. Then the head is thrust up on a pole. A basket of seed paddy (rice) is put under it and left for a few days. As the head decays, the droppings fall into the seed paddy, and are thoroughly mixed with it. The paddy is then ready to plant, and a good crop is insured."

IN THE COURTS

First State vs. Eblen

Pursuant to the showing of A. R. Campbell, in charge of the defunct First State & Savings bank, that a portion of the security held under a $5,000 note given by O. C. and Eva Eblen could be sold to advantage and the proceeds applied on the note, release of a portion was ordered today by Judge Leavitt.

First State vs. Sutton

An order was issued by Judge Leavitt yesterday releasing a certain note of $3000 given the First State bank by R. S. Sutton, it appearing by the showing made by A. R. Campbell in charge of the defunct bank affairs that the note was secured by 504 head of sheep and 130 tons of hay, but that the note was to be sold to the War Finance corporation, and that Sutton was unable to sell the note to the Finance corporation, and therefore received no benefits. It was ordered that the note be canceled and the chattel security released.

SAILOR LEAVES STRANGE WILL

Minute Characters Engraved on Identification Disk Convey Property

LONDON, July 27.—Strange as the story of any document told in fiction is that of a will which has just been admitted to probate and is now filed in Somerset House.

It is the "last will and testament" of a sailor, William Skinner, who lost his life when his ship, the Indefatigable, was sunk in the battle of Jutland. It is in the form of the ordinary identification disk. On one side, in the usual deep-punched letters, appears the name, number, rating and religion of the man to whom it had been issued.

On the other side the disk appears at first sight to be just a cir-

Goodrich
announces
new tire prices
—lowest cost mileage ever known

Effective July 20th, Goodrich establishes a revised price list that is a base line of tire value. It gives the motorist the buying advantage of knowing that whatever size tire he selects is of the same quality—the Goodrich one-quality standard. It gives him the longest mileage, the most satisfactory service and the highest quality his money can buy. Results will prove that it is impossible to buy tire mileage at lower cost.

Think of being able to buy
Silvertown Cords
at such prices as these:

SIZE	BASE LINE PRICE	SIZE	BASE LINE PRICE
30 x 3 1/2 CL.	$13.50	34 x 4 S. B.	$30.85
31 x 3.85 CL.	15.95	32 x 4 1/2 S. B.	37.70
