

MAJ. WESTOVER BALLOON CHAMP

Will Represent U. S. in International Race for Bennett Trophy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Major Oscar W. Westover, who will represent the United States army in the International Balloon races for the Gordon Bennett trophy in Geneva, Switzerland, has his place by winning the national elimination race from Milwaukee, last May. His balloon won from a large field, traveling almost twice as far as any other bag and landing in Quebec. He was the only contestant who landed outside of the United States.

Major Westover is listed among the few higher army officers who won their way to commissions by way of the ranks. He started as a private in K company of the Third Battalion of engineers, in 1901, and a year later was appointed to the military academy. He graduated in 1906 and was assigned to the infantry. Most of his service has been in the infantry, in which arm of the service he won distinction as a rifleman and expert pistol shot.

Prior to the participation of the United States in the world war he served in the Signal Corps, being assigned to the air service in 1918, in which he rose to the temporary rank of colonel.

Major Westover's service in the army has been distinguished. He served in several responsible positions, among them at posts at the port of embarkation at Hoboken. He was largely responsible for the organization and administration of the bureau of aircraft production and served as executive of the air service, from 1919 to 1920.

He is 39 years of age and holds the rating of balloon observer and airship pilot. With Lieut. Colonel Frank P. Lahm, another well known army balloonist, he was a contestant in the national balloon of 1921. It is interesting to note that Lahm, then a lieutenant, was the first Gordon-Bennett free balloon race for the Gordon-Bennett trophy.

While in the military academy Westover was very actively interested in sports and athletics and he has carried the same keen interest into his free balloon work.

Major Westover went to Geneva early in July to make detailed studies of the air currents and conditions in that part of the world preparatory to his participation in the international race.

Ancient Theatre at Fiesole May Be Used Again for Production

FLORENCE, Italy, Aug. 5.—The old Roman theater at Fiesole will this autumn, if present plans are carried out, be used again for the purpose it was originally so well constructed for centuries ago. It will witness the production of a series of plays, but this time its stone seats will be filled. It is hoped, by latter day tourists who will find interest in the novel idea, Gabriele d'Annunzio is giving his support to the project, and it is probable that one of his tragedies will be in the repertory.

This ruin of the days of Rome is beautifully located in the ancient Etruscan town that stands upon the olive-covered hills above Florence. It has admirable acoustic properties. Nineteen tiers of stone seats still remain in the semi-circle 27 yards in diameter, while just below these are three more rows of special seats used in older times by persons of rank.

It is proposed, beginning next September, to give performances every spring and autumn when the weather in Italy is particularly agreeable. In addition to the d'Annunzio play, the first series of productions will include a Greek classic tragedy; a melodrama, probably Orpheus by Monteverdi, and a drama from the pen of a modern Italian writer.

That the route of the new west side road has not been decided upon, and until this is determined no action should be taken on a camp site.

That while we realize there is a necessity for a public camp ground, we feel that a majority of the citizens of any community would want this form of municipal improvement in the outlying districts of the city and not in the residence sections. There are many fine people who will use a public camp ground, but there is also a large percentage of floating campers who should not be parked immediately adjacent to residence property. We feel that there is not a member of the chamber of commerce who is fostering this movement who would willingly have the property immediately adjacent to his home turned into a public camping ground.

We therefore protest against the movement as at present outlined, and respectfully ask that the chamber of commerce take no definite action to locate a Municipal Camping Ground until the matter has been properly put before the property owners and taxpayers at large and they are given a voice in the matter, and until some definite and feasible method of financing the purchase and maintenance of a camp ground has been determined upon.
