So To Speak
"How is she as a dancer?"
"Always thinking up new steps and knows how to shimmy."
"I see. Stands above the others head and shoulders."

TAKE NOTICE
You can be a helpful critter
As you motor day by day
Just by cleaning up the litter
When you picnic by the way.

Mutual Protection
Girl's Father (belligerently)—
"Young man, are your intentions serious?"
Sulter (hesitatingly)—"Arree yours?"

Oh, every fly that skips our swatters
Will have five million sons and daughters
Nephews and nieces, scores and dozens
And countless first and second cousins.

The teacher one day told the children the story of Socrates—how wise he was, how unhappy was his married life, and how at last he poisoned himself with hemlock. When she had finished she told the children to write down the story in their own words.

She was amused to find one essay wound up triumphantly:
"And Socrates died from a dose of wedlock."

We heard a chap say that he would see to it that even the janitors in the churches would be arrested if he caught them sweeping or doing any work on Sundays. He will fail, as janitors don't do any work on any day, so it can be seen.

Jack Slater says the tightwad is unwept, unhonored and unstung.

Why Men Lose The Trail
Little longer skirts, and we men will be looking where we are going.

Ex.—"What's that cow you said you was a'going to sell me for $2.00?"
Eph.—"She got well."

Some folks don't worry half as much about what the Lord thinks of them as they do about what their neighbors say about them.

WEEK'S WORST POEM.
Wouldn't it be terrible!
Oh, kind Fate, spare us, please—
What a disgrace to the nation
If Laddie Boy should have fleas!

A local doctor tells this story on himself: After writing a prescription for a patient he physician told him that the druggist would probably charge him 60 cents for filling it. Then the patient asked the doctor to lend him the money. Thereupon the physician carefully scratched out a part of the prescription and handed it back with ten cents, remarking: "You can have that filled for a dime. What I scratched out was for your nerve."

"Speaking about vaudeville—"
"Yes?"
"Some of these hams can't do anything, but you don't find it out for 20 minutes—the length of an act."

NEW MOTOR LIFEBOAT HAS WIDE CRUISING RANGE

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A new motor lifeboat said to be the largest and most powerful craft of the kind afloat, has been launched for the Royal National Lifeboat Institution. It is called the Barnett twin screw. Practically unsinkable, the Barnett twin screw has as many watertight compartments as a modern battle cruiser. Her radius of action is anything up to 150 miles. She carries a life-saving net, a line-throwing gun, and a searchlight. Her engines are two of the new six cylinder 75 horse-power motors and it is said they will continue working even when completely submerged.
