CROP REPORT

(By F. L. KENT, Agricultural Statistician)

"Better than we expected" is the report of most growers of winter wheat who have threshed their 1922 crop, but a further decline in the condition of practically all other crops, during the month of July, in the August 1, Oregon crop situation, according to F. L. Kent, agricultural statistician of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture.

Winter Wheat

The winter wheat harvest began about two weeks earlier than usual in some parts of the state. A very large percentage of the crop had been threshed by August 1, particularly in the western district. In the sack on August 1. The quality of the crop is generally good. Mill operators state that the milling quality of the winter wheat is the best in many years. While there is some light weight wheat, due largely to hot weather conditions, the crop as a whole will doubtless grade well up to the average.

Average yield per acre for the state as a whole is estimated at 19.6 bushels, or a total production of about 16,300,000 bushels, compared with an estimate of 29,862,000 bushels last year, and a five year average of 14,867,000 bu.

The United States winter wheat crop for 1922 is now estimated at 541,150,000 bushels, being a decrease from the July 1, estimate of about 28,000,000 bushels. The 1921 U. S. crop was finally estimated at 587,032,000 bu. and the five year average is 650,950,000 bushels.

Spring Wheat

The Oregon spring wheat crop is estimated at 62 per cent of a normal condition. This condition would be much lower except for the fact that a good June rain occurred in some of the larger spring wheat growing sections, and the further fact that there is considerable spring wheat grown on irrigated lands. The Oregon crop will probably amount to about 3,000,000 bushels. The Washington state crop is estimated at about 12,000,000 bushels, with a 50 per cent of normal condition.

The United States spring wheat crop showed some improvement during the month of July, and is now estimated at 263,392,000 bushels, which is an increase of about 16,000,000 bushels over the estimate of a month ago. The 1921 crop was finally estimated at 297,361,000 bushels and the five year average is 243,600,000 bushels.

Oats

Condition of the Oregon oats crop declined during July to the low figure of 60 per cent of normal, and the figure would be still lower except for a heavier than usual seeding of winter oats last fall. The present condition figure indicates a probable production of about 6,400,000. The 1921 production was estimated at 8,704,000 bushels, and the five year average is 9,735,000 bushels.

The United States oat crop condition improved slightly during the month of July, and the 1922 crop is now forecasted at 1,251,156,000 bushels. The 1921 crop was estimated at 1,061,000,000 bushels, and the five year average at 1,374,382,000 bushels.

Barley

Condition of the Oregon barley crop is estimated at 78 per cent of normal, indicating a probable production of about 3,000,000 bushels. The 1921 crop was estimated at 2,240,000 bushels and the five year average is 3,176,000 bushels.

The United States barley crop showed practically no change in condition during July, and is now forecasted at 191,507,000 bushels, compared with 151,181,000 bushels last year, and a five year average of 191,021,000 bushels.

Corn

Continued dry weather reduced the condition of the Oregon corn crop to 85 per cent of normal on August 1, and a further condition decline will doubtless occur during August. The yield per acre will be materially reduced, which will result in a shortage of material for silage purposes. Practically none of the Oregon corn crop is ripened and sold off the farm where produced.

The United States corn crop showed some improvement during the month of July, and the 1922 crop is now forecasted at 3,016,950,000 bushels, compared with 3,060,372,000 bushels last year, and the five year average of 2,935,631,000 bushels.

Potatoes

Oregon potato prospects declined during the month of July, the estimated August 1 condition figure being 75 per cent of normal. Reports of acreage planted indicate about a 7.0 per cent increase over last year's acreage, but the present condition of the crop does not indicate any increase in the total production over 1921. Malheur county reports about 3,000 acres in early crop, compared with 800 acres last year. The Malheur potatoes were ready for market about July 29, but the demand was very light. The Hermiston district began selling about July 15.

Condition of the United States crop on August 1, was estimated at 84.3 per cent of normal, indicating a probable production of about 440,000,000 bushels, compared with the five year average estimate of 373,000,000 bushels.

Hops

Condition of the hop crop declined materially during July, and is now estimated at about 89 per cent of normal further decline probable. The continued dry weather, and the activities of the red spider are the principal factors in the reduction of the hop crop condition.

Fruit

Except where irrigation is practiced it is believed that the long continued dry weather will result in small sized fruit (apples, pears, and prunes). A month ago we estimated the Oregon commercial apple crop of 5,654 carloads, and the commercial pear crop at about 1300 carloads. The prevailing weather conditions will quite likely reduce these crops. Prunes continue to drop, even in some of the best cultivated orchards, and the small sizes will doubtless predominate at harvest time. The production of cherries was much below normal, particularly the Royal Ann crop in the western part of the state. The Lane County Royal Ann production has been estimated at only about one-third that of last year. Loganberries ripened very quickly, due to the hot dry days at picking time, resulting in fruit of inferior quality, and an abnormal demand for pickers. The marketed yield per acre was much below the average this year.

Farm Labor

The supply of farm labor for the harvest season has hardly been equal to the demand. The wheat growing districts have drawn on the Portland labor supply to a considerable extent. The Heppner district, for instance, "imported" about 100 men prior to August 1, in addition to those who came in without special request. The wage scale adopted at the beginning of the season has been fairly well maintained. "Common labor" is being paid $3.00 to $3.50 per day. Sack sowers, $4.00 on the smaller, and $5.00 on the larger machines. The basic rate for separator tenders is $8.00 per day. In a few cases $10.00 to $12.00 per day is being paid. All these rates include board.

CHINESE TO MODEL AFTER CALIFORNIA CITY

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 15.—A newly incorporated city in China, Woosung Port, near Shanghai, will have its city government modeled after that of San Jose if plans of H. C. Tung, in charge of research for the embryo city, materialize. Tung wrote recently to local officials, enclosing a copy of Woosung Port's city charter and requesting criticism of it.

City Manager Goodwin sent back the desired information with best wishes for the success of "New San Jose."
