

The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

Ted White says one thing that troubles the country is not only the unemployment of the idle, but the idleness of the employed.

Changed

Ike—"See any change in me?" Mike—"No, Why?" Ike—"I just swallowed a cent."

Rex Renner says most motorists thing repair shops have one mechanic and six accountants.

The Zoo of Trade

"But why is it called the Stock Exchange?"

"Because, Ethelbert, it is made up of so many animals—bulls, bears, lions, wolves, yellow dogs, wild cats, and lame ducks. There are plenty of monkeys there, too, because, dear boy, a broker can make a monkey out of a trader any time he so desires.

One thing those Blue Law scouts ought to discover is who put the "sin" in raising.

How Liars are Made

Some men are born liars, some acquire the habit, but most of them get married and have it thrust upon them, opines Merle Kilgore.

Forgive This Time

Mother—"Now, Violet, can you give me any reason why I should not punish you for being naughty?" Violet—"Yes, ma, Doctor said you weren't to take any violent exercise.

Chorus Girl's Version

Eat, drink and be married, for tomorrow he may be sober.

In Chicago

A resident of Chicago opened his front door and blew three short blasts on a police whistle. Twenty policemen appeared at the door almost instantly. "Gosh, this is embarrassing," said the resident of Chicago, when he saw the large mob of bluecoats, "I only wanted a quart."

A REAL HE-MAN

He doesn't smoke. My pal named Mike, He says it's too Damned lady-like.

The Voice of Authority

She (adoringly) It must be awfully nice to be wise and know oh—everything."

He (a recent graduate)—It is.

Never say "Die"—say "Damn."

It isn't classic

It may be profane.

But we mortals have need of it, time and again:

And you'll find you'll recover from fate's hardest slams, If you never say "Die"—say "Damn."

Louie Porter says the bobbed hair craze is creating a demand for switches. "Hair, not hickory," Louie adds.

Well, that'll be all for this time, beloved. Gotta cut down on the stuff these days on account of our fuel supply. Unless relief comes pretty quick, we've only got coal enough to work up about 2 more pomes and a dozen or so wheezes. It's gotta be pretty hard on you dearest!

TODAY'S FASHIONS

Pockets for Fall

Embroidered pockets of odd sizes and shapes of striking colors are the newest thing about fall skirts. Black, brown, gray, navy blue and tan are shown as backgrounds for the vivid embroidered or woven bands, often 15 inches deep.

New Colors

Toast and nut browns and several wood tones will be popular this fall. Fing and royal are the two most fashionable blues. A sketch shows the dimpled simple lines that will prevail this fall.

School Smocks and Frocks

One of the most popular versions of the smocked blouse is of white dotted Swiss, trimmed with an elaborate smocking of red, blue and green. It is shown with white sport skirts of linen or cotton homespun and is often accompanied by a white hat.

ADVERTISING IS RIGHT TONIC FOR AILING CONCERNS

That advertising is the tonic that can get a new business going right or put a pair of strong legs under a weak-kneed concern is understood by every progressive merchant or other businessman, but even at that there are occasional occurrences which surprise us all.

One of these came Saturday afternoon. Al Baker, of baseball fame, put a five line classified ad in The Herald offering to sell a used car. Within an hour and a half after the paper was off the press the car was sold, and the ad sold it too.

The pulling power of a Herald ad is one thing that can be counted on about as certainly as the proverbial "death and taxes." Perhaps it's because everybody reads The Herald even if some of them do have to borrow their neighbor's paper to do it.

Dad Getting Sidetracked

"Johnny, I'm afraid I'll not see you in heaven," said the father to his errant son.

"Why, what have you been doing now, Pop?"

FOUR VIOLA BROWNS FOUND THEIR AFFAIRS IN AN AWFUL TANGLE

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 21.—Four Viola Browns, all residents of Long Beach, recently found their incoming mail in such a tangle that a conference was necessary to straighten out addresses and identities.

Two of the Viola Browns, it developed, were graduate nurses from the same city and had husbands in the same Masonic lodge, while the initials of the tatter-in-law of one were identical with those of the other's husband. One Viola Brown had a new baby, but letters referring to the infant persisted in reaching the Viola Browns who had none.

Finally one of the Viola's called a conference of the other three for the purpose of re-distributing and un-lan-gling their correspondence and arranging for the adoption of distinctive middle initials and unmistakably separate street addresses.

INDIANS INVOKE RAIN GOD'S FAVOR WITH SNAKE DANCE

WINSLOW, Ariz., Aug. 21.—The annual snake dance of the Hopi Indians, a weird prayer ceremony invoking the favor of the rain god for successful crops, is scheduled to take place tomorrow afternoon at the desert town of Hotevilla, Ariz., near here.

Hundreds of tourists yearly view the tribal ceremony of the Hopis, which is held alternately at Hotevilla and Walpai. The dance is preceded by several days of fasting and religious rites.

Opening with tom-tom and flute dances, the principal ceremony starts between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Fourteen Hopi priests participate in the snake dance. Clad in the traditional regalia of breech cloth and fox skin shoulder cape and their bodies daubed with various colors and elaborate designs, the priests carry round rattles, shell cases made from the hard covering of land turtle, and goat toes.

Snakes figuring in the ritual are caught two weeks before the dance and confined in a khiva, an underground compartment, from which they are taken in ollas when the dance starts, and given to the priests as the latter gyrate in circles.

The priests dance in pairs, one carrying the snakes and the other irritating the reptiles with feather wands or "ticklers." At the end of the dance the priests run to the four points of the compass and loose the snakes. The reptiles then are supposed to transmit to the rain god the prayer for abundant crops.

JAPANESE FARMERS PROTEST EXTENSION OF IMPERIAL DOMAIN

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—An attempt by the Imperial Family of Japan to extend its private hunting grounds at Nikko has raised a storm of protest from the farmers in that section of Japan renowned for its beauty and revered for its associations, say recent advices from Tokio.

When the proposal to enlarge the emperor's private hunting preserve became known a mass meeting was called and a delegation sent to the capital to carry directly to the imperial household the protests of the people against curtailing their already scant agricultural land to make a game park for royalty.

The demand of the Japanese woman for varied and intricate patterns in the linen weaves she buys, and the more easily satisfied tastes of the European woman in this line have resulted in the linen weavers of Japan showing a marked penchant for saving their eyes and making material for the foreign market rather than for the domestic trade.

Recent figures in linen manufacturing circles show heavy sales of Japanese linen goods to Europe and, while part of this business is attributed to scarcity of flax there, it is said in trade circles that the simpler taste of the foreign housewife has had much to do with the growth of the exports.

Asparagus Crop This Year Largest of Record

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 21.—This year's asparagus crop in the Sacramento river delta section totaled 1,500,000 cases, worth $10,500,000, the largest crop on record. Ninety-eight percent of the canned asparagus consumed in the United States is prepared in Sacramento county, according to local estimates.

RUTENF, Referee in Bankruptcy.

CARD OF THANKS

Before leaving Klamath Falls, I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincerest appreciation to the various organizations, societies and individuals for the sympathy extended during my recent bereavement and for the many beautiful floral offerings. I wish particularly to mention the ladies auxiliary of the chamber of commerce; the Spanish American War Veterans and the Order of railroad telegraphers; also Mr. and Mrs. T. E. McDonald, Mrs. Frank O'Connor and Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Dunn, without whose kindness and sympathy in assisting me with the children I would have despaired. PAUL WALTER.
