THE LOCAL PAPER

PARADOXICAL as it may seem, and is, the local newspaper, striving day after day thru its news columns to add to the sum total of human understanding by presenting the facts on matters of local and general concern; through its editorial columns to give a just and impartial analysis of the facts; through its advertising columns to build up the business of the community, is the least understood of all enterprises affecting community life. Is the least subjected to estimate and analysis and receives least proportionate value from its constant campaign for community unbuilding.

The average man has a hazy idea that the newspaper is a semi-philanthropic institution laboring for the good of the town, to be forgotten when it is functioning efficiently but criticized when it fails to measure up to his, uninformed standards of efficiency.

The average man's idea of his local newspaper is not a flattering or even a just opinion. He has little conception of the newspaper's real value and vital usefulness to the town, and little appreciation of its steady and persistent effort to make the town a better place to live in.

If he is in business he considers himself a prince of generosity if he gives the newspaper an advertisement now and then. He looks upon this largely as a donation. He has no idea of the value of the advertising service provided for him by the newspaper, considers that newspaper space is a cheap commodity and the price he pays is all profit.

As an abstract proposition it is a truthful statement that the average man in business has no adequate comprehension of the value to the community of the newspaper and of the benefits he himself gets indirectly by having a good newspaper in the community in which he lives.

Getting down to cases and the matter of publishing a newspaper in Klamath Falls. You will notice that we have referred not to the business man, but to the man in business.

The business man understands the power of advertising and uses it consistently to build up a bigger business. The man in business tests advertising occasionally, perhaps, with advertisements written by himself, poorly conceived, often setting forth extravagant and unsupported claims. Naturally he gets little or no results from such spasmodic and inefficient methods.

Which establishes the proof of our contention that the average man has little conception of the power and value of newspaper advertising, or how results are attained.

He understands that there is a vital force contained in electricity, with which marvels may be accomplished. But without knowledge of how to harness that force he would expect no results of power or light or heat from his uneducated attempts at an electrical installation.

Nor with the power properly connected would he expect to turn it off and on at irregular and spasmodic intervals of weeks or months and yet maintain a regular operation of the machine to which the current was harnessed.

But in applying the power of advertising to the growth of his business, the average man in business, expects results that are equally absurd.

In this community, as in every other, the power of the local paper is only partly developed. Like electricity there is a vast quantity of undeveloped potentialities in community publicity, which may be utilized with profit to the whole community.

But, like electricity, publicity must be properly applied to be of use, and the application must be made with understanding.

The small publisher in the past has only dimly understood the force that he controlled. Only occasionally was the small paper conducted on a business basis, under the management of one of any particular aptitude for training.

Costs and wages in the newspaper field in the past five years have advanced at least 200 per cent. The result has been a general readjustment that is weeding out the weakest of the smaller publications the country over.

It is actually and absolutely true that only the fittest are surviving.

It is a stern test, but it is resulting in a general benefit and when the shaking down process is completed the country newspapers will be on a sound business basis, better understood and better appreciated, for in order to survive they will have to make adequate charges for their services, will have to keep stricter records of revenues, will have to justify these charges to their customers, bringing about a better understanding on the part of the public of the inside workings of the newspaper business.

Nearly Swooned In Passing First Sentence

BELFAST, Aug. 22.—Lord Justice Andrews, brother of Thomas Andrews, the designer of the ill-fated liner Titanic, and also a victim when the ship was wrecked, nearly swooned when passing his first death sentence on a prisoner here.

When he was nearing the end of the death sentence his words were inaudible and he was so overcome that he rushed from the court as he finished.

The prisoner whom the judge was addressing and who had murdered a little girl under brutal circumstances, stood as if petrified until the warders seized him and took him to the cells.

MOTOR BOAT OWNERS WILL HAVE TO PILOT OWN BOATS IN RACES

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 22.—Among the conditions it is proposed to impose on entries in the international motor boat races next February between Miami, Fla., and Havana is that the owners of the craft must be aboard during the contests. Another is that the contestants engage in a 20 or 25 mile race off Havana so that the people of Cuba may have an opportunity to view the entry of the Havana Yacht club, Miss Havana, in action.

According to Rafael Posso, the Havana yachtsman who is representing Cuba in the negotiations for the race, prizes amounting to $10,000 have been assured through the support given the event by the national commission on encouraging tourist travel. This sum will be divided in three prizes of $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000, while the winner of the race will receive a $500 trophy, with $300 and $200 cups to those taking second and third place.

The Miami-Havana race will occupy a unique place in speed boating, according to Posso, who points out that while the boats will race in sheltered waters from Miami to the southernmost tip of Florida, in crossing the channel they must be prepared to meet open sea conditions which will test the metal of the craft to the utmost and inject an element of personal danger for the contestants.

Miracle Seen When Crippled Man Runs

PARIS, Aug. 22.—A miracle for which Lourdes, in some quarters, is given credit, is reported from Macon.

A pilgrim train bound for Lourdes was waiting in the station at Dijon and several pilgrims had crossed the tracks to the refreshment room when the whistle called them back. Among them was a paralyzed man who could only move with difficulty even with the aid of two crutches. As he was between the rails on his way back an express train was seen to be entering the station. A cry of horror went up from those who saw his dangerous position, but the man who has hobbled half way across with his crutches, now put them under his arm and ran for safety, escaping what seemed certain death.
