

DEATH RATE LOWER IN ENGLAND; MORE CHILDREN ARE BORN

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Some interesting and novel facts respecting England's social progress and national health are revealed in the current report of the registrar-general of England, a monumental work of 531 closely-printed pages. More children were born than ever before, while the death-rate of 12.4 per 1,000 was the lowest recorded. Never before were there so many marriages in one year. The divorce rate continues to increase, the number being three times that of any year prior to 1919.

There was a striking growth of marriages of boys less than 20 years old. The number of young widowers and elderly bachelors who married was double previous records, while the total of widows under 25 who married again was exceeded in only one previous year.

Divorce increased by 100 percent over the previous year, and was nearly twice that of any earlier date. The number of illegitimate children was below that of war times, being 4.69 percent.

The death rate in tuberculosis was considerably lower than that of any previous year on record, but the mortality rate in malaria greatly increased, while in measles it doubled. Cancer mortality for both sexes was considerably higher. Infant mortality decreased, but the number of women who died in childbirth was distressingly large, owing largely to septic causes.

The figures relating to the birth-rate confirm the old belief that nature succeeds in restoring the balance between males and females which war tends to destroy. An excess of male over female births is normal, but the highest recorded ratio in the years of peace was 1,043 boys to 1,000 girls. In 1919 this ratio had risen to 1,060, and in 1920 it dropped to 1,062.

IN THE COURTS

Gregson vs. Axel

Suit was filed in the circuit court this morning by Fred U. Gregson against Charles Axel and Mrs. Charles Axel, asking judgment on several causes in the sum of $867.59 with interest at 8 per cent from May 1, 1921 with $150 attorney's fees, and for the further sum of $128.17 with interest, $440 attorney's fees with interest from October 10, 1921.

Like An Elephant

While in the country last summer a little city boy saw his first baby pig, and it made a great impression on him. So great was the impression, in fact, that the youngster made the pig the first object of his concern when the family again visited the country place this spring.

"Where is my little piggie?" he immediately inquired.

"Come with me and I'll show you," his country cousin replied.

When the city boy reached the pen with his companion and saw what looked to be about eight hundred pounds of pork "on the hoof" he was dumfounded.

"And did that little piggie grow as much as that in one year?"

"Yes."

In open-eyed wonder the boy exclaimed: "Gee! I betcha when I come back next summer he'll have a trunk!"
