DISILLUSION

I met a girl so cute and neat I took her to a dance. My heart and feet together beat. I loved her at a glance. I vowed that she my Queen should be My idol, my romance!

The dreams I wove as we whirled by No mortal could repress Until she said, "Excuse me, Ned, I have to fix my dress." Where did she go? Why I don't know But maybe you can guess.

Then she came back, O horrid sight! A gaudy wild Corinne! Each inch of space on lips and face Glared with the rouge pot's sheen My Dearest, 'Wish! My Angel Fish! Was now a Canned Sardine!

A Terre Haute Ind., man stole 500 morphine tablets. Probably wants to sleep until the various strikes are settled.

Visitor—You must have been visited by a bad hurricane from the appearance of your buildings. Farmer—No, I rented my farm last month to a movie concern for a thriller in a five reel comedy.

The federal government, according to the public print, "is on the lookout for high prices." If the federal government will drop in at these parts we can show it enough high prices to satisfy the most exacting.

One Ray of Joy "And what kind of a filling do you want, my little man?" asked a kindly Klamath Falls dentist of a small boy who had been suffering a dozen martyrdoms in the chair.

It was the first cheerful word the boy had heard for an hour. "Give me chocolate," he replied, brightening visibly.

The richest coal country in the world is importing coal from Wales. Sometimes, when we hear the street corner orator on the way he would run the government, we are tempted to tell him to go ahead and try.

There Were Others A lady with excitement in every syllable she spoke called up a big movie theatre and told the manager that she had been told by a lady friend that her husband was in his theatre with another man's wife.

The manager stopped the show and made a little speech: "Ladies and gentlemen, this is a clean show and a clean theatre. If there is any man here with another man's wife, I will darken the house and this couple will be given the opportunity to depart unobserved."

When the house was darkened fifteen couples left.

There are plenty of laws to keep down vice if we only had plenty of men in public office to enforce the laws.

Thoughts of a Middle-Aged Guy I cannot look youthful So why should I try? I am, to be truthful, A middle-aged guy.

A Pittsburgh judge has ruled that a man can do nothing if his wife boss her hair. This makes it unanimous as he can do nothing no matter what his wife wants to do.

MOVIES

THE STAR

At the Star theatre tonight the Hildebrand company will repeat the comedy-drama "Merely Mary Ann" and for Tuesday and Wednesday nights the thrilling play of the Blue Ridge mountains, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" will be given. This is one of the best plays in the repertoire of the Hildebrand company and is sure to please everyone. On Thursday night "Paid in Full" will be played for the one performance only and the company will bring their engagement to a close here on Friday and Saturday nights with the greatest play of the day "Do Foolish Wives Pay."

THE STRAND

The talk of the town is the new admission price for The Strand on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays of only ten cents to everybody. When asked how he could do it, Ted White, manager of the Strand said, "Why ask how I can do it. Just join the crowd and take advantage of the ten cent rate, never mind the how."

Every one seems to be taking his suggestion and joining the crowd. All seats taken each evening that the rate was in effect last week was the pleasing result and the same thing is looked for this week.

There is no cut in the program either. White says that he will give the best picture show that he can squeeze into the two hours' time and the price has nothing to do with the quality of the show.

Money and Markets

Business Conditions

Basic conditions have not changed during the last 30 days. The normal mid-summer slackening in business has been less noticeable than usual despite the fact that the railroad and coal strikes have continued to exert an adverse effect.

Evidence of the steadiness with which all classes of goods have been moving is the fact that carloadings for the months of July exclusive of coal, were one-fourth greater than such loadings for July, 1921 and lacked very little of reaching the total for August, 1920, the highest recorded month for American railroads. Equally convincing evidence of the remarkable maintenance of business activity is the total of debits to individual accounts as reported by member banks to the federal reserve board which were 13 per cent higher for the week ending August 5, 1922 than for the corresponding week in 1921.

On the basis of freight movement thus far in 1922, an unprecedented strain on the capacity of the railroads seems certain in the autumn as a result of the expected expansion of business, the delayed movement of coal, and the marketing of large crops. The roads have ordered more than 100,000 cars during the year, and have steadily improved their facilities in other ways, but it is nevertheless difficult to see how serious traffic congestion can be avoided.

Wholesale trade in most lines is satisfactory. It is apparent that retailers are continuing their policy of conservative orders, but reports from all parts of the country indicate that a good autumn business is expected. The most recent reports, together with the fact that aside from men out on strike, there are now fewer unemployed workmen in the United States than at any time since the beginning of the business recession of 1920, amply justify this expectation.

The iron and steel industry is being increasingly affected by the difficulties arising from the coal and railroad strikes, but aside from the effects of the labor situation, the outlook for the industry on the basis of unfilled orders and other evidence of demand is for stable business to the close of the year. While no marked changes have occurred in conditions in the various divisions of the textile industry, there has been a gradual recovery in New England from strike conditions. A slightly improved demand for broad silks is in evidence. Operations in the boot and shoe industry and other sections of leather manufactures are expanding. The automobile and tire industries have not as yet shown as much seasonal curtailment as was expected. The machine tool industry is about holding even and a steady although restricted distribution of agricultural implements continues. Demand is fair and a reasonable activity prevails in many special lines, such as electrical apparatus, household utilities and furniture.

Money Rates

Aside from temporary fluctuations, money rates have shown no change during the last 30 days and easy conditions prevail in all sections of the money market. Prime commercial paper rates at 4 to 4 1/4 per cent. There is only a very small amount of paper moving and with a few exceptions, buyers are disposed to insist on rates somewhat better than 4 per cent. Demand from country banks is especially poor, being even less than at the corresponding season a year ago. Banks in financial centers outside New York have been buying some paper, but most New York city banks have not been active purchasers.

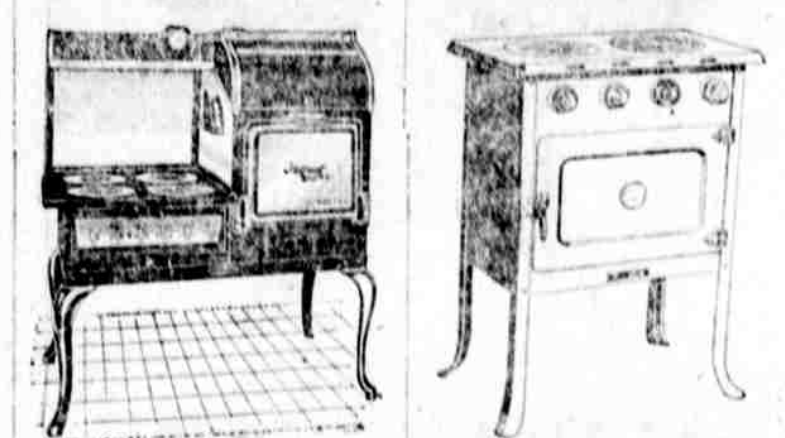

Call money has fluctuated considerably from day to day without any marked general trend, and there has been no notable change in the volume of loans on stocks and bonds as reported to the federal reserve board either by the banks of New York city or elsewhere. Renewal rate on August 15 was 3 1/2 per cent. Time money ruled at 4 per cent for 90 days and 4 1/4 per cent for four to six months.

The brokers' selling rate on prime 60 to 90 day bankers' acceptances is 3 per cent, the rate being the same as 30 days ago. The volume of transactions is comparatively small.—(National Bank of Commerce, New York).

It is all right to rave about Grecian noses in poetry, but the nose to admire, in common, every-day life is the nose that is kept out of other people's business.
