KANSAS COURT TO FACE TEST

Industrial Relations Will Be Main Issue In November Election

TOPEKA, Aug. 29.—Having safely—in fact, with flying colors—weathered the storm which threatened it in the primary election, August 1, the Kansas court of industrial relations now faces a new test. Indications are strong that it will be the main issue in the general election, November 7, with the republican party backing it unreservedly, and arrayed against it, the democrats. The parties will draft their state platforms at the biennial party councils in Topeka tomorrow, these conventions composed of party nominees and hold-over state and congressional officials, being held in keeping with the state primary law.

W. Y. Morgan, editor of the Hutchinson News, who won the republican nomination for governor in the primary election, is a strong advocate of the court. He had the backing of Gov. H. J. Allen, "father" of the industrial court act. The main fight in the primary campaign against the industrial court act was made by labor unions, through their state organization, and several anti-taxation leagues which selected Fred W. Knapp of Salina as their candidate for the republican nomination. Returns show Knapp ran a poor fifth in a field of seven candidates and, carried but one county—Saline, in which he resided. Incidentally, the sixth and seventh honors in the race went to the two women candidates—Miss Helen Pettigrew, on a light wine and beer platform, and Mrs. W. D. Mowry, advocate of "more office work and less oratory." Neither of the women carried a single precinct of the 2536 in the state.

Girl Dead Nine Months Photo Appears on Mirror

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 30.—Tales of voodooism, magic and all of the ancient superstitions of the Louisiana negro were recalled last week by the negro population of Campt, La., when a photographic likeness of a mulatto girl, dead nine months, appeared on the mirror of the room in which she was placed after her death, according to a report of the phenomenon by C. M. Cunningham, former state senator.

The girl was a member of the Triche d family, who live about 4 miles from Campt. The body was laid in front of the mirror with a large bouquet clasped in the hands. Next day she was buried and the room has been occupied since that time by her elder sister.

About a month ago, it is related, the sister was thrown into violent agitation when she saw what appeared to be a likeness of her dead sister etched on the silvered surface of the mirror.

Gradually the likeness grew until from top to bottom of the mirror, a distance of 18 inches, the photograph is now complete. The girl appears with the bouquet clasped in the hands. The boards on which the body rested also are clearly visible.

It is the accepted theory that the photograph is the result of action of sunlight on the window panes and the silvered surface of the mirror, although so far as known here no similar case is on record.

The picture most closely resembles an old-fashioned Daguerreotype, and efforts to wash or rub it off the mirror both from the front and back have proved unsuccessful.
