WOODEN RAILS FOR LAKE VIEW RAILROAD

tor, it is estimated, would be capable of hauling a train of from 10 to 20 cars, having a capacity of 10 tons each and upward. The fact that the wheels would be tired with hard rubber would give protection to both the rails and equipment, it is declared, and consequently the upkeep would not be large.

Construction Cost $2200 Mile Newell, who is the chief engineer of the company, has estimated that the cost of construction of the proposed line would be only about $3,200 a mile. When it is considered that the cost of the average macadamized road is $5000 a mile the economy of the proposed means of transportation may be realized, it is declared. The promoters say that the proposed means of transportation could be made especially valuable in the development of the timber lands of the state.

The proposed road contemplates provision for passenger service as well as freight. Headquarters for the company has been established in the Falling building, and it was announced that the permanent main office would be maintained in this city. It is also planned to construct the cars and locomotives here.

LONDON CHINATOWN IS DISAPPEARING; NUMBERS DWINDLE

LONDON, Sept. 12.—London's Chinatown is fast disappearing. Four years ago 2,600 Chinese seamen were living within a stone's throw of the West India dock gates. Now it is doubtful whether there are 700, says the Daily News.

During the war London's Chinatown had its most prosperous days, for quite a number of British ships were manned by Chinese crews. But when the war ended the edict went forth "British crews for British ships," and as the Chinamen were paid off they either went back to China or to some other country where their labor was in demand.

The result was that Chinese traders in Chinatown began to suffer, and one after another had to put up their shutters. Then suddenly there came a boom. A beautiful actress died while attending an opium smoking party. Stories were printed about the thrills to be experienced in Chinese opium dens and public attention was focussed on the sinister alleys and by-ways of Chinatown. Restaurants in which Chinese dishes could be obtained opened here and there in Chinatown. Many Americans visited them to see how they compared with similar places in their own Chinatown and curiosity led a number of English folk and various European visitors to do likewise. At night they were often filled to overflowing.

Commercially minded Orientals invested their moneys in the exploitation of what was a new craze and for a time they prospered exceedingly. But gradually the novelty wore off, the glamor faded, the people came to the conclusion that there was all sorts of cooking that was really much nicer than Chinese cooking. Visitors became fewer and fewer and now there are only one or two shabby restaurants left in London's Chinatown. What remains of it is but a shadow of its former self.

QUESTION HALL MOVE

Legality of Nomination As Impendent to Be Examined

SALEM, Sept. 12.—Attorney General Van Winkle, at the request of the secretary of state, is giving the nomination of Charles Hall for governor by the Portland assembly of electors consideration as to its legality. Should he decide adversely an appeal will be taken to the supreme court to determine the constitutionality of the statute.

Hall was formally named as an independent candidate for governor at a meeting held Saturday night at Pythian hall. One hundred and sixty qualified electors were present. W. B. Elbert of Forest Grove was in the chair, and M. J. George, the Republican county chairman of Washington county, was secretary. A platform was adopted which favored the compulsory public school education bill.
