

EGYPT IS SPLIT OVER POLITICS

Country Divided Into Two Camps Over Question of Constitution

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 23.—There are two important questions uppermost in Egyptian politics at the present time, the representation of minorities in parliament and the future of the Sudan.

The new constitution makes no provision for the former, and vigorous protests are being heard from the Copts, the largest Egyptian religious minority; the Syrians, and the Jews, who all demand full guarantees and the right to be represented in the government.

The country is divided into two camps. One side argues that the representation of minorities has no precedent in other constitutions; would be damaging to Egyptian unity as a whole, and that all Egyptians, regardless of creed, should show a united front to the world in general and England in particular.

On the other hand spokesmen for the minorities argue that Egypt presents a situation, in this regard, different from what exists in the countries of Europe, for here large groups in the civil life of the land are under special laws; the Moslems, for instance, under the Koran; the Jews under the Mosale laws, and the Christians under the Patriarchal laws, and these differences do not make the nation less united.

No less acute is the question of the Sudan. This came first to the fore when the commission framing the constitution included the Sudan within the boundaries of Egypt, and gave Fuad the title of King of Egypt and of the Sudan.

To offset this Lord Allenby, the British high commissioner, went to Here he met a group of 30 sheiks of Sudanese tribes who, according to the reports given out of the conference, took advantage of the occasion to express their loyalty to the British government, and at the same time asked for assurances that they would never be placed under British rule.

Some Egyptian newspapers accuse England of insincerity in this move. They allege that the sheiks were coerced into false expressions of loyalty, and otherwise attack Britain's methods and motives.

The British attitude in the Sudan matter has not yet been made clear, the question being reserved for future discussion with the Egyptian government. British silence has led to Egyptian deduction, which are that England ultimately contemplates declaring the Sudan a Sultanate separated from Egypt; appointing one of the sons of the Mahdi to rule it, and placing it under British protection.

WOMAN CANDIDATE TO WAGE CAMPAIGN IN WISCONSIN RACE

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 23.—Wisconsin's only woman candidate for congress, Miss Martha Riley of Madison, believes that members of her sex have much to contribute to political progress by their active participation in government affairs.

It is that belief, she says, that has caused her to enter politics after twenty-five years as a teacher and social worker in this state. She is planning an active campaign for election at the November general election when as a democrat, her strength is to be matched with that of Congressman John M. Nelson in the third Wisconsin congressional district.

Miss Riley for 14 years was connected with the public schools as teacher and principal. In 1912 she gave up teaching and entered the field of social work, where she is now engaged as director of the bureau of communicable diseases.

This varied experience, she says, has given her a conviction that women are needed in political positions in order to insure consideration of social problems. Certain definite conclusions concerning the political needs of the people have grown with her varied experience, the candidate declares.

In her statement of principles upon which Miss Riley says that she will stand for election, she declares herself in favor of a lower tariff, repeal of the Esch-Cummins law, immediate passage of the soldiers bonus act, drastic reduction in the size of the army and navy, and a merchant marine without subsidies.

"I am opposed to tax revision for the bucaners, to a tariff for the profiteers, to a ship subsidy for the privateers to senate seats for the auctioneers," her platform says. "I stand for equal rights for all and special privileges for none; instead of a millionaire bloc in congress, I favor a people's bloc."

Miss Riley plans an active speaking campaign.

NATURE'S OWN METHOD OF PROTECTION

ONLY one method that gives absolute protection in burial has ever been discovered. This is the "diving bell" idea—based on a natural law that the air within an inverted vessel keeps out all water. A child proves this principle by placing an inverted glass in a pan of water.

This principle has been utilized in the Clark Grave Vault and made permanent by the use of twelve gauge Keystone copper-bearing steel which positively resists rust and corrosion and will not leak. (Stone, brick and concrete vaults allow water to seep in, and act as a basin to hold it.) Over a period of twenty years the Clark Grave Vault has proved this principle by completely satisfactory results in all climates and soils.

Civilization demands absolute protection
